Civil Service Faces Inquiry By Senate on 'Favoritism'

Plan Also Is Offered to Restore Postmasters to Patronage.

Support Gathers For Investigation

'Pretty Face' Often Wins Over Efficiency, Is Ellender's Charge.

By James D. Secrest.

Senate investigation of the administration of the civil service system by bureau chiefs was indicated yesterday simultaneously with a move to nullify the President's executive order placing first, second, and third clas postmasters in the merit system.

Senator Ellender (Democrat), of Louisiana, introduced a resolution calling for an investigation of the civil service administration, and almost at once he was promised the support of Chairman Bulow, of the Civil Service Committee, and many other senators who in the past have been highly critical of what they call the "czarism" of Government bureau chiefs.

Ellender charged that favoritism and discrimination are practiced by dictatorial division heads who often advance an employe because of a pretty face or personal favor rather than for efficiency. Ellender, who succeeded Senator Huey Long denied any intent to promote patronage.

Postmaster Patronage Sought.

At the same time Senator McKellar (Democrat), of Tennessee, introduced a resolution which would restore the appointment of postmasters to the patronage system that prevailed prior to the issuance of the executive order.

McKellar's bill, which was referred to the committee he heads, Post Office and Post Roads, also nullifies the Ramspeck bill, passed by the House, to apply the civil service laws to postmastership appointments.

The Tennessee Senator said he had called a meeting of his committee for next Tuesday and will try to have the measure called up and sent to the House this session.

Senator Bulow likewise an-

President Returns To Duties Today, 'Fully Recovered'

By the United Press.

Unless unforeseen complications develop, President Roosevelt will return to his desk today, completely recovered from an infected tooth and an intestinal disorder which caused him to cancel engagements for three days.

Dr. Ross T. McIntire, White House physician, said last night Mr. Roosevelt has shown no ill effects from the twin illnesses that had kept him in bed for two days. He also disclosed, as Mr. Roosevelt approaches his fifty-fifth birthday next January 30, that the President's weight is "just right—about 183 pounds," and that his "muscle tone is fine."

"His health is 'Capital A No. 1,'" McIntire said: "Of course the combination of an infected tooth and intestinal condition made it a little hard on him."

A Navy dentist, Lieut. Comdr. Arthur H. Yendo, pulled an abscessed Presidential molar yesterday morning. Dr. McIntire treated the Chief Executive for the other complaint. The toothache developed Monday night and Mr. Roosevelt has not been at his desk since.

France Offers Reich Part of Colony Trade

Would Give Raw Materials for Products to Develop Possessions.

By the United Press.

Paris, Nov. 18.—France tactfully invited Germany tonight to share in the exploitation of her colonial empire, part of which was taken from Germany after the World War, under a plan whereby the reich would be given raw materials in exchange for manufactured goods.

The ministry of colonies, apprehensive over Hitler's colonial demands, announced in a communique its willingness to study a project for exchanging credits under such an agreement.

The manufactured goods from Germany would be used entirely in development of the colonies, it was stated.

High diplomats in Paris asserted Hitler and Premier Mussolini of Italy may have agreed to use Germany's colonial demands as a means of attempting to break through the British corridor running lengthwise through Africa.

According to diplomatic officials, there is now a definite Italo-German program of colonial expansion, chiefly confined to Africa where each power wants to find room for colonization and at the same time weaken Britain's grip on the continent.

Bill Asks Refund Of Taxes Woman Paid Twice 9 Yrs.

Senator Lonergan (Democrat), of Connecticut, yesterday introduced a bill to refund $3,750 to a Washington woman who paid her personal property taxes twice yearly for nine years.

District officials explained Mrs. Mary E. McConville, of the Wardman Park Hotel, authorized the American Security Bank & Trust Co. to pay taxes on a $75,000 trust fund and also paid the levies herself from 1928 to 1937.

British Arms, Sold to China, Jam Hongkong

Supply Held Backed by Government to Prevent Clear-Cut Defeat.

The Sino-Japanese War.

British shipments of arms to China were reported to be overflowing warehouses in the British crown colony of Hongkong.

Germany was reported to have called on Japan on November 6 to cease her warfare with China because she was weakening herself "for other activities."

Arms for China.

By the United Press.

Manila (Friday), Nov. 19.—British arms shipments to China are reaching Hongkong in such volume that warehouses are jammed, according to reliable private messages from the British crown colony today.

The shipments were said to have been made by private British interests with the "encouragement" of the London foreign office which was said to be anxious to prevent a clear-cut Japanese victory in China.

The shipments were said to include airplanes which were being flown by Chinese pilots from Canton to the Yangtze valley.

China Pays With Silver.

London, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—The financial correspondent of the Evening Star said tonight that large shipments of silver reaching London from Shanghai are being used to pay for war munitions.

Germany Asks Japan to Quit.

Paris (Friday), Nov. 19 (U.P.).—Germany formally asked Japan on November 6 to end hostilities in China, pointing out that Japan was weakening herself and lessening her potentialities in other fields, it was reported reliably today. German industry was said to be bringing pressure to bear on Japan to accede.

Japan May Favor Franco.

Tokyo (Friday), Nov. 19 (U.P.).—A foreign office spokesman said today Japan soon will recognize the insurgent government of Generalissimo Francisco Franco in Spain.

Brazil Chief Puts End to High Courts

By the Associated Press.

Rio de Janeiro, Nov. 18.—President Getulio Vargas tightened his grip on Brazil today through a decree abolishing Federal courts in the nation.

The decree, furthermore, made the supreme military tribunal the highest court in military cases and gave state appellate courts supreme appellate jurisdiction in all other cases.

The new Brazilian constitution abolished state and national legislatures and gave Vargas supreme administrative powers.

At the same time, a national political party that would make Brazil a one-party state under the leadership of President Vargas was reported being formed to support his new regime.

Dispatches from the politically dominant State of Rio Grande do Sul and the economically dominant State of Sao Paulo indicated administration leaders were working actively for creation of such a party.

States like Minas Geraes, most populous in Brazil, Bahia and Pernambuco were expected eventually to adhere. Parties in Brazil heretofore mainly have followed state lines.

Latest in Dictatorial Steps.

Yesterday's decree abolishing federal courts in Brazil was the latest in a series of dictatorial steps by President Vargas that began with his seizure of power in 1930, when he lost a presidential election, but led an army and made himself ruler.

At the end of four years, the constitutional term for President, Vargas proclaimed a new constitution, lengthening the term to seven years.

Last sprin, when Vargas' seven years were up, he proclaimed a stage of siege and remained in office.

Last week, he proclaimed a fifth constitution, totalitarian, with himself as supreme head of the state. Vargas wrote the constitution so he will serve a six-year term, with no limit to the number of times he may succeed himself.

Abandons Control Program.

Then he abandoned his seven-year coffee-control program, which was costing too much money, and decreed a moratorium on Brazil's $762,000,000 foreign debt.

When he took office in 1930 Vargas strengthened his army backing by recalling to service all officers retired or exiled for revolting in 1924. He promoted them, paying six years' back salary.

But the army grew restive again two years ago, and Vargas presented an "adjustment bill" to the Parliament. He was short one vote for passage so he appointed a fireman from a coastwise steamer to a vacant seat, paid him a month's salary, put the bill through, then sent the fireman back to his ship.

The bill increased the pay of common soldiers 280 per cent, that of non-commissioned officers 150 per cent, that of lieutenants 100 per cent, and that of higher grades 30.

Hull to Seek Wider Trade With Canada

An Editorial—Page 8.

By Franklyn Waltman.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull last night announced the Canadian-United States reciprocal tariff agreement signed here two years ago will be reopened for further negotiations aimed at its expansion by both countries.

Word that the agreement with Canada will be reopened came several hours after Secretary Hull formally announced that "this Government contemplates the negotiation of a trade agreement with the United Kingdom." Issuance of this notice, forecast in The Washington Post Wednesday, indicated first hurdles in negotiation of a trade agreement with the British had been cleared.

Political Importance Seen.

It was an announcement for which the American trade negotiators have striven for the last 18 months. Consummation of such an agreement—which probably will require several months—is regarded as the arch stone of the reciprocal trade structure which Secretary Hull has worked to construct for the expansion of all foreign trade.

Important though this step is to the economic interests of the United States, coming at this time it is regarded as having greater political importance in world affairs. Following on the heels of the co-operation displayed at the Brussels Conference between the United States and Great Britain and the formation of an Italo-Japanese-German Fascist bloc, the decision of the two great English-speaking countries to negotiate a trade agreement—granting concessions of mutual benefit to each other—was held to be evidence of a new solidarity among the democracies of the world.

Hull's announcement that this Government is ready to negotiate relaxation of the American tariff on some of the commodities of its two best customers in return for reciprocal concessions on other American products was expected to set off another vigorous assault on the New Deal's reciprocal trade program.

Shoe Tariff Cut Feared.

No sooner had Secretary Hull announced the British negotiations than Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (Republican), of Massachusetts, asserted he will seek Congressional action to suspend the entire trade agreements program until the effect of wage, hour, tax and other legislation upon labor and the consumers could be determined. He pointed out that "factories and shops, large and small, are closing, causing added unemployment and increasing the relief rolls in my State and other industrial States."

This grandson of the late Henry Cabot Lodge, who successfully fought American entry into the League of Nations, at this time is more concerned over pending trade agreement negotiations with Czechoslovakia than over the British undertakings just announced. A dele-

2 Carolina Felons Seized in Virginia After Long Chase

Special Dispatch to The Post.

Richmond, Nov. 18.—Two of the three suspected fugitives trapped today on the Washington-Richmond highway near Fredericksburg were identified at Virginia State Penitentiary here tonight as Eddie Cobb and Roscoe Grice, escaped prisoners from North Carolina. The third man remained unidentified.

Arrested after an all-day chase through Virginia, the trio was at first believed to include William Payne, North Carolina's No. 1 desperado.

Oscar Pitts, superintendent of prisons of North Carolina, said tonight that Grice escaped alone from Caledonia Prison Farm, Halifax, N. C., where he was serving a six to eight-year term for breaking, entering and larceny.

Cobb was one of eight prisoners who escaped from Central Prison, Raleigh, on August 12. He was sentenced in 1935 to terms aggregating 30 to 40 years for burglary with explosives and possession of burglary tools.

Lord Cecil Wins Nobel Prize For Peace Work With League

British Leader Visited President Roosevelt a Few Days Ago.

By the United Press.

Oslo, Norway, Nov. 18.—Viscount Cecil of Chelwood, 73-year-old president of the League of Nations union, who wishes that airplanes had never been invented, tonight was awarded the 1937 Nobel Peace Prize for "distinguished and important work in the League of Nations" and for "promoting peace among the nations" by helping President Wilson organize the League.

The tall, partly bald statesman was informed of the award in New York City. He is on a lecture tour, crusading for international harmony and disarmament. Last weekend he was the guest of President Roosevelt at the White House.

Lord Cecil, fourth Englishman to receive the peace prize, will be given 158,463 Swedish crowns ($40,859).

Militantly religious, it has been said that he would go to the stake for his religious beliefs and would do the same to advance the cause of world disarmament.

LORD CECIL.

United States Secretary of State Cordell Hull had been mentioned with Lord Cecil as a leading candidate for the award.

Labor Assails Wage-Hour Bill, But Lewis Urges Its Passage

Rep. Connery Offers Substitute Measure for That of His Brother, With Essential Features as Recommended by A. F. of L.

Dissatisfaction of organized labor with provisions of the pending wage-hour bill was given vigorous expression yesterday, but John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization, urged its enactment as the best that can be obtained at present.

Lewis replied to a letter of Chairman Mary Norton, of New Jersey, of the House Labor Committee, with the observation that the bill does not meet requirements of labor in many particulars but said the "legislative situation" is such it should be passed.

Mrs. Norton had requested the views of Lewis, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, and Secretary of Labor Perkins.

New Bill Introduced.

Representative Lawrence Connery (Democrat), of Massachusetts, who succeeded his brother, the late William P. Connery, jr., introduced a new wage-hour bill.

Connery said that he would offer his new bill as a substitute for the pending bill if the latter reached the House floor by the petition route December 13.

Representative Connery proposes to make it "unlawful to employ in interstate commerce or in the production of goods shipped in interstate commerce any person for more than 40 hours in any week, or to pay les sthan 40 cents an hour, or, to employ any person under the age of 16 years for hire."

Lewis said that the principle of the wages-hours legislation is "undeniably sound."

Lewis asserted that "determined opposition" by employers profiting through "sub-standard labor conditions" in the face of the "present legislative system" made prompt action imperative.

LaGuardia Refuses To Come to D. C. Parley on Housing

By the Associated Press.

Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia of New York City criticized delays in the Federal housing program today and declined to participate in a conference called here next week by Federal Housing Administrator Nathan Straus.

In a telegram to Straus, LaGuardia asserted Straus' proposal to defer consideration of applications until after January 1 would result in the loss of an entire year in the $526,000,000 housing program authorized under the Wagner-Steagall act.

Green Holds Business To Blame for Setback

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, blamed business, in a statement last night, for its own setback, and prescribed a strong dose of wage increases and cuts in working hours as the remedy. To aid recovery, however, Green also suggested a gigantic housing program, a Presidential investigation of price increases and immediate modification of the corporate surplus taxes.

'2 More to Go,' Union Warned After Teamster Aide Is Slain

By the United Press.

Minneapolis, Minn., Nov. 18.—An anonymous telephone call that "two more are to go" led police tonight to fear that the slayers of Patrick J. Corcoran, secretary-treasurer of the powerful teamsters' council, had marked other Twin City labor leaders for death.

Corcoran, for years prominent in Northwest labor circles, was shot once behind the left ear last night, apparently while making a desperate effort to escape his assassin.

Before his body was discovered, the telephone rang at the home of S. J. Juetten, business agent for the Laundry, Linen and Dry Cleaners' St. Paul local. Mrs. Juetten answered.

"Two more are to go," the voice on the telephone said. "There's going to be a mopping up of some other leaders. It's going to be a cleaning up of some of these dictators."

Earl Martin, district organizer for the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Iron Workers, A. F. of L. affiliate, also was called to the telephone at about the same time.

"After you read today's papers you will know we mean business," a man at the other end of the line

'Stop Wasting Time,' Sen. George Cries as Filibuster Goes On.

Republicans Score Confusion in House

Barkley Challenges Plan to Attach Rider to Revenue Bill.

By Robert C. Albright.

A growing demand for immediate business tax relief yesterday clashed in House and Senate with leadership opposition to special session tax revision.

Concern over the declining industrial graph overshadowed measures on the President's program in a Senate field day on business tax complaints.

Taking the floor in the third day of the Senate's antilynching bill filibuster, Senator Walter F. George (Democrat), Georgia, called on the Senate to "stop wasting time" and to lay the measure aside so that the Finance Committee can work out a tax relief program.

Session Called "Futile."

In the House, Republicans opened a broadside against the special session's "futility and confusion," and urged Congress "to enact into law a fair and reasonable system of taxation, now."

While the tax debate raged in both chambers, a House Ways and Means sub-committee continued back-stage preparation of business tax modifications, for Congressional action at the regular January session.

Across the Capitol, Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, Kentucky, tried to stem preponderant sentiment for special session tax changes, and challenged constitutionality of a move to write modifying amendments into a pending revenue measure on the Senate calendar.

Sales Tax Not Planned.

Chairman Pat Harrison, of the Senate Finance committee, assured the Senate he has under consideration no program for a sales tax or lowering of income tax exemptions, after Senator William E. Borah (Republican), Idaho, pressed him for explanations.

Harrison, following a conference with Secretary of the Treasury Morgenthau on Wednesday, had informed reporters a sales tax and a broadened income tax base might offer the only alternative for reve-

W. Boone Groves Wins Acquittal of Senate Contempt

After deliberating more than four hours, a jury in District Court last night acquitted W. Boone Groves, vice president of the Railway Audit & Inspection Co., of charges of contempt of the United States Senate.

Groves was charged with having ignored a Senate summons to present himself and the records of his company before the Black-La Follette sub-committee of the Civil Liberties Committee. The subpena called for his appearance August 21, 1936, when the committee was conducting an investigation of labor disturbances.

Groves was the second acquitted among several company officials indicted. The other was L. Douglas Rice, general manager of the company.

Judges and Klansman and Governors' Wives Win Bankhead's Colleague the Poetry Prize

To an accompaniment of nervous tittering from members and uproarious guffaws from their male guests, Representative Luther Patrick, of Alabama, recited to the Women's National Democratic Club last night a series of doggerel verse about the rise of two former Ku Klux Klansmen of his own State. Of this pair, according to Patrick:

"One is now a Governor—
And one is now a judge
Appointed by the President—
And he won't budge!"

The earlier part of the recitation dealt with the possible repercussions of Klan membership. Said Patrick:

"I've always heard tell it's a mighty bad sign

However, the moral of the story was contained in the concluding line: "It might have been risky—but the boys got by."

Scarcely more discreet, in the opinion of many members, were Representative Patrick's observations about an Alabama patriot (Gov. Bibb Graves), whom he represented as saying "I regret that I have only one wife to give my country." But merriment broke all leashes when he recited some more verses telling how

. . . . / Governor Bibb
"Filled a Senate chair with his thirteenth rib."

The irrepressible Patrick also quoted an address which he said had been made to a jury by Speaker Bankhead, as a 25-year-old prosecuting attorney. Patrick's version of Bankhead's peroration was:

"Gentlemen, behold this culprit. He is lower than the bottom of the sea. He has stolen money from those who had not a cent in their pockets and bread from the mouths of those who had nothing to eat. He ought to be taken to a desert, chained to a tree and kicked to death by a jackass and I should be glad to be the one to do it."

Speaker Bankhead, the guest speaker, struck a more serious and "inspirational" key, classifying Roosevelt with Jefferson, Madison, Monroe, Cleveland and Wilson among the "great American Presidents."

'Lost' Planning Report Asked Of Woodring

House Committee Requests 'Suppressed' Facts of Regional Survey.

The House Rivers and Harbors Committee yesterday called on the Secretary of War to produce a purportedly "suppressed" report by the Corps of Army Engineers on the Administration's projected regional planning program.

A letter to the Secretary asked him to bring the report with him when he appears before the committee next week on the planning bill.

The committee with 14 members present on Wednesday unanimously adopted a resolution calling for the report, after Representative George A. Dondero (Republican), Michigan, charged an Army Engineer's finding hostile to the regioal planning program, was "lost, concealed or hidden."

Claims Report Filed.

Dondero said copies of the report were filed with the Budget Bureau, and his resolution directed letters be sent to the Chief of Army Engineers and the Budget Director, as well as the War Secretary.

Maj. Gen. Julian L. Schley, chief of Army Engineers, said last night he did not know of the existence of such a report, but explained he had only recently taken office and it might have escaped his attention.

The House committee plans to reopen hearings Tuesday on the regional planning measure, one of the five bills on the President's special session agenda. Secretaries of War, Interior, Commerce and Agriculture and the Chairman of the Federal Power Commission will be asked to testify.

With the exception of Representative John A. Rankin (Democrat), of Mississippi, most of the witnesses who testified at hearings last session were hostile to the plan to set up seven new regional "authorities." Chairman Joseph J. Mansfield was said to have suggested it would be well to hear some witnesses who were "favorable."

"Another Overlapping Agency."

The bill as orignially introduced called for regional authorities similar to TVA, but the President recently warned reporters against calling them "TVA's" and said the authorities would have power only to make recommendations to Congress.

Dondero, who charged an Army engineers, study was made, but the report "suppressed," declared the program would establish "just another overlapping agency."

"Instead of a single national policy, such as we now have under the Army engineers, it would set up seven provincial agencies with separate policies," he said. "I have asked every witness if the ground was not adequately covered by existing agencies, and most of them said it was."

Working for Washington

Enraged Georgetown Women Organized New Citizen Group

MRS. ELIZABETH DRAPER.

By Christine Sadler.

About 12 years ago some of the women of Georgetown began to feel one "discrimination" was enough for any District resident to endure.

Although they lived in a pre-Revolution town, they could not vote. More biting still, Georgetown men barred them emphatically from membership in the citizens' association of that area. The former "burden" they could accept with some grace, since so many others were in the same boat. But the latter situation they determined to remedy.

They organized their own group—the Progressive Citizens' Association, of which Mrs. Elizabeth Draper is president. What is more, they turned the other cheek and accepted men as members.

Group's Aims Listed.

Mrs. Draper lists the following as the association's "plan of work" for this year:

1. "We are vitally interested in the establishment of a medical center, for diagnosis and treatment, to be in or near Georgetown."

2. "We are making an effort to have clean water flow through the stream in the park area bounding Georgetown on the east."

3. "We are desirous of co-operating with all organizations in attempting to build right character and citizenship in the boys and girls of Georgetown."

4. "We are concerned with all measures that will provide the best possible school conditions in our area."

5. "We are eager to co-operate for the improvement of traffic conditions in our community."

6. "We are eager to secure more comfortable sidewalks for our area."

Sidewalks Are Ancient.

By more comfortable sidewalks the association means fewer ups and downs due to antiquity. It is on record as pledging itself to uphold the historic traditions of Georgetown and to do all it can to preserve its charm, but feels no hesitancy about "seeking to improve conditions that do not seem so desirable."

Anyone with an abattoir to build had best watch the progressive association, for its approval of modern comforts does not include any industry that would turn Washington and neighborhood into a region of smells and smokestacks. It "whipped" the abattoir proposed for Arlington County, just across the river, in 1929, and is on record against the one proposed for the Southeast of the District.

The group joined with other associations in opposing efforts to place an addition to Gallinger Hospital on the land vacated by the Tuberculosis Hospital when it was moved to Maryland.

Founded by Etta Taggart, whose "main hobby" is national representation, it is always on record in favor of suffrage. And just now its members are hoping the alley Dwelling Authority can clear up some of the bad housing spots in the community.

A Busy Worker.

Mrs. Draper, who is a teacher of English in Gordon Junior High School, has been president two terms and this year is also a delegate to the Federation of Citizens' Associations. She has been a member of the association since 1928 and is well known in the District for her work with dramatic groups and with the American Federation of Teachers. She was a voting delegate from the latter society to the meeting of the World Federation of Education Associations held in Tokyo last summer.

Slender and attractive. Mrs. Draper finds time to get an amazing amount of work done. In addition to civic work, teaching and dramatics, she is on the editorial board of the District Teacher, keeps up a lively interest in antiques, and is enrolled at Georgetown University for postgraduate work in secondary education problems.

On Monday—Edwin S. Hege, president of Chevy Chase Citizens' Association, is next in the "Working for Washington" series.

Housing Parley Lays Slump to Labor Trouble

Buying Public Needs Safeguard Against Delays, Report Declares.

By the Associated Press.

The Housing Conference of the United States Chamber of Commerce yesterday said labor disturbances had contributed to a recession in home construction.

"Assurance must be given the buying public," the report said, "that projects once started will not be delayed and disrupted by labor disputes and so-called sympathetic walk-outs occasioned by happenings in disassociated and non-connected enterprises." This was the report, adopted by the conference, of the gathering's committee on principles.

Other factors the conference said must be considered in efforts to stimulate building were: Competition for the building dollar, misconception of building costs, obsolete building codes, lack of co-ordination within the construction industry, and financing.

Publicity Drive Urged.

To counteract competition for the "building dollar" the industry should launch a wide publicity campaign aimed at selling the security, comfort and utility of modern homes, the report said.

Steps also should be taken, it said, to correct an impression that building costs are unduly high. "Analysis of building costs compared with costs of other necessities definitely disproves the contention,' 'said the report.

Discussing finance, the committee said it indorsed "in principle the sound economics of a steady, long-term amortization of construction loans." The report said many Government agencies, particularly the Department of Commerce, the Bureau of Standards and the Federal Housing Administration, had furnished important services to the construction industry, but added:

"Your committee sounds a note of warning with respect to the necessity of continually guarding against the undue intrusion of governmental agencies into the field of private enterprise in construction."

Would Exclude Realty Frms.

The conference recommended active bona fide operating real estate companies be specifically excluded from classification as personal holding companies under the operation of the 1937 revenue act.

It also recommended local and national studies looking to "a more equitable tax base in order to counteract the home owner's opinion that he is paying an undue tax on this property, thus bearing too great a share of Government costs."

Henry I. Harriman, of Boston, former president of the chamber, indorsed another suggestion of the president for stimulating construction—lower hourly wages for building trades workmen, who are guaranteed minimum annual earnings.

Addressing a banquet session tonight, he said there was "ample justification" for a lower hourly wage rate for employers guaranteeing 200 or 250 days' work per year.

"But wages are only one factor of the labor cost," he continued. "In the building trade there has too often been a tendency to curtail output below a fair day's work, or to refuse to use labor-saving devices."

Gerrish Gassaway, secretary of the Wilmington, Del., Chamber of Commerce, yesterday told the conference business should answer President Roosevelt's call for increased home building by demanding an end to Federal competition and "confiscatory" taxes.

Nathan Straus, administrator of the United States Housing Authority, previously had assured the 300 builders and Chamber of Commerce executives attending the conference that the authority would not compete with private enterprise.

John McC. Mowbray, of Baltimore, chairman of the housing committee of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, estimated the annual income value of real property at $6,000,000,000 and said annual taxes totaled $4,500,000,000.

Beverly Hills, Calif., Nov. 18 (AP). Burglars took $20,000 worth of jewelry, silverware and furs from the home of Louis D. Lighton, film producer, and stole a car to carry away their loot, police reported today.

On Capitol Hill

Black Case Echoes in Capitol as Bridges Asks Hearings on Judicial Nominations.

CONTROVERSY OVER the Supreme Court reorganization plan and the appointment of Associate Justice Hugo L. Black to the court both found echoes on Capitol Hill yesterday.

Senator Bridges (Republican), of New Hampshire, offered a resolution to require hearings on judicial nominations.

Bridges was thwarted in his effort to force a hearing on the appointment of Black, then a member of the Senate.

His resolution asked that "every nomination for judicial office be referred at once to the Committee of the Judiciary, and such committee shall in every instance conduct a full public hearing upon the matters touching upon the fitness and qualifications of the nominee for the judicial office."

Representative Samuel B. Pettengill (Democrat), of South Bend, Ind., opponent of court reorganization, said he would campaign in 1938 for the re-election of Senator Frederick Van Nuys, Democrat.

Pettengill had announced he would not seek re-election. Pettensaid Van Nuys' "re-election would inspire the friends of constitutional democracy throughout the Nation."

THE HOUSE ADOPTED a resolution directing the Agriculture Department to report on the sale of sulfanilamide elixir.

Representative Chapman (Democrat), of Kentucky, who offered the resolution, said he wished to determine the truth of reports that some 90 persons had died from effects of the drug. The Senate recently adopted a similar measure.

SENATOR DIXIE BIBB Graves is going to make her first Senate speech today in opposition to the anti-lynching bill.

Mrs. Graves, like other Southern Senators, said the bill would not discourage lynching. She has said public opinion in the South would take care of the problem without the necessity of Federal Legislation.

SIX MEMBERS of the North Carolina delegation arranged to meet with the House Agriculture tobacco sub-committee, of which another North Carolinian, Harold D. Cooley, Nashville, is chairman, to urge revisions.

Representative Lindsay C. Warren said the committee's draft differed in many respects with a tobacco bill approved shortly before the last session of Congress. He did not enumerate them.

SENATOR LA FOLLETTE (Progressive), Wisconsin, announced his Civil Liberties committee would meet today to receive records subpenaed from four organizations.

The committee, La Follette explained, in continuing its investigation of "violations of the rights of free speech and assembly and interference with the rights of labor to organize and bargain collectively."

Records, he said, would be received by the committee from the Constitutional Educational League of New Haven, Conn.; Johnstown Citizens Committee of Johnstown, Pa.; Citizens National Committee of Johnstown, and the Johnstown Chamber of Commerce.

SENATOR CLYDE L. Herring, Iowa Democrat, advised officers of a dozen Iowa colored organizations he opposed consideration of the anti-lynching bill ahead of agricultural legislation but would assist in bringing it before Congress "in the proper order."

3d of Kidnapers Found Hiding, Ill and Hungry

Geary Trapped Two Blocks From House Where Pals Were Caught.

By the United Press.

Syracuse, N. Y., Nov. 18.—Police captured Percy (Angel face) Geary in a shack hideout today, thus completing their round-up of the three escaped O'Connell kidnapers who broke jail Tuesday. Geary's pals, John Oley and Harold (Red) Crowley, were arrested yesteray in a lodging house.

Geary was found, suffering from an injured leg and weak from cold and hunger, in a shack behind a mid-town warehouse. He offered no resistance.

The warehouse is but two blocks away from the rooming house to which the three fugitives yesterday were enticed by a painter who called police after promising to aid the three kidnapers.

Geary leaped from a window of the second-floor room where the three had been led as police arrived. More than 350 State troopers, 50 G-men and hundreds of city police had scoured the city for him today.

The three men were under long prison sentences for the $40,000 kidnaping of John J. O'Connell, jr., of Albany. They broke from the Onondaga County Jail early Tuesday, binding four guards and fleeing in a commandeered car.

"Angel Face" Percy Geary was camera shy—very—when detectives and police marched him into headquarters at Syracuse following his capture yesterday less than 24 hours after his two companions in a jail break were returned to stronger cells. Despite Geary's objections this exclusive photo was made.

A Washington man was instantly killed and a woman critically injured last night when the car in which they were riding crashed into the rear end of a truck on the Washington-Richmond highway at Snake Hill, in Fairfax County.

The dead man is Patrick Brown, 59, of 610 I street southwest. The car was driven by Joseph Haddeson, 25, of 455 N street southwest.

The driver's mother, Mrs. Kathleen Haddeson, 54, was critically injured. At Alexandria Hospital, she was reported suffering from a fractured skull, leg and arm. One eye was destroyed.

Haddeson and the driver of the truck, Charles Mason, of Tampa, Fla., were held pending investigation.

'Woman's Trial Set In Father's Death

Gate City, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Mrs. Myrtle Cox was held for January trial today on charges she killed her father, W. H. Mitchell, prominent Rye Cove, Va., farmer. Her mother, Mrs. Venice Mitchell, arrested on similar charges, was released.

J. H. Franklin testified Mrs. Mitchell called him from his home the night of November 11. He quoted Mrs. Mitchell as saying "Come quick, Myrtle has killed Bill.'"

Mrs. Cox was released on $5,000 bond.

By the Associated Press.

Glendale, Calif., Nov. 18.—Paul A. Wright covered his face in police court today when the police reconstructed his story of finding his wife and his "best friend" together at dawn and killing them. He was ordered held for trial December 6 at conclusion of his preliminary hearing on murder charges. Counsel for Wright elicited testimony that Wright, an airport executive, told two persons he had caught his pretty 28-year-old wife "cheating." An autopsy surgeon testified three bullets which struck Mrs. Wright entered her back and three which pierced her companion, John B. Kimmel, 32, also an airport official, entered his body from the front.

Reed testified Wright was distraught when police arrived in response to his telephone summons and that his breath smelled strongly of alcohol

Inquest Set Today In Man's Slaying By D. C. Waitress

GLADYS JUANITA EVANS.

A coroner's inquest this morning will determine the immediate fate of Gladys Juanita Evans, 18, a waitress, who police say confessed the fatal shooting of John V. White, 26, early yesterday.

Mrs. Evans, who also used her maiden name, Love, had been living with White for about three months, police said. The shooting occurred after a quarrel at their home 624 Eleventh street northeast.

White, shot through the right temple with his own .38-caliber revolver, was taken to Casualty Hospital, where he died four hours later.

Police said Mrs. Evans, who is separated from her husband, said she shot White in self-defense after he threatened her. White's rifle was found near his body.

'Not Guilty' Plea Entered by Ross

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Walter L. Ross, 17-year-old Marine under indictment for the murder of Elmer J. Davidson, 52, Washington attorney, pleaded not guilty when arraigned today. Ross was returned to the Fredericksburg Jail.

Judge Coleman drew a second venire of 24 names because of possible difficulty in obtaining a trial jury.

Frank P. Moncure, counsel for Ross, said the defense would rely on a claim Davidson was killed in self-defense.

Wife Aids Man, Admitted Killer Of 1st Husband

Present Mate Says He Wed Woman to Atone for 1935 Slaying.

By the Associated Press.

St. George, Utah, Nov. 18.—A 32-year-old wife came to the aid today of the man who assertedly killed her first husband, then married her to atone for his deed.

As officers in this southern Utah community dug in an abandoned well for the body of Spencer Malan, dead nearly three years, Mrs. Eva Bosshardt rushed to the jail cell of her husband here and sobbed:

"I'll stand by you, Charley."

Sheriff Antone B. Prince said yesterday Bosshardt admitted he killed Malan in self-defense and later married the dead man's widow because he felt "responsible to her" and to his victim's 11-year-old son.

Mrs. Bosshardt denied she had known of the killing, the result of a fight on Malan's ranch near Enterprise, Utah, in March, 1935.

"I knew nothing of it until yesterday," she said. "When Penney (her first husband's nickname) was drinking, he often threatened to leave me."

Bosshardt and George Schaefer, the woman's brother, were charged with first degree murder today. County Attorney Orval Hafen declared Schaefer helped dispose of the body.

Diphtheria Rises 5 Cases in a Day

Chiang Masses Fresh 200,000 About Nanking

War Council Remains as Civilian Government Is Rushed From Capital.

Copyright, 1937, by the United Press.

Shanghai (Friday), Nov. 19.—Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek massed 200,000 fresh soldiers in and around Nanking today and prepared to defend his Central China capital to the death.

Foreign military attaches agreed ti generalissimo was preparing an effective defense and might be able to hold out in Nanking for a month or more.

Evacuation of the civilian government was hastened, but the generalissimo retained in the capital all members of his supreme war council—the supergovernment he created to reinforce his dictatorship when the war started.

The generalissimo rushed scores of fresh regiments into his battered "Hindenburg Line," west of Shanghai, and rallied his demoralized divisions, defeated in the first two phases of the Shanghai battle, for an effective stand on the 85-mile line running northwest from Hangchow, through Soochow, to the Kiangyin forts.

River Barricaded.

New barricades were built across the Yangtze River, above the Kiangyin forts, to impede efforts of the Japanese navy to reach Nanking and bombard the city.

When announcement of the abandonment of Nanking as China's national capital is made the United States, British, German, French and other embassies immediately will evacuate the city, following the foreign office to Hankow, where it will remain unless a further flight to Chungking, in distant Szechuan Province, becomes necessary.

Other developments in the war included:

1. The Chinese government of Shantung Province evacuated its capital, Tsinanfu, bringing the total number of provincial capitals in the north occupied by Japan to five. The Japanese were proceeding slowly with their conquest of the wealthy province.

2. It was understood that United States Ambassador Nelson T. Johnson, working with Consul General Clarence Gauss here, was attempting to obtain Chinese and Japanese assent to neutralization of Kwangfoh Island, in the Tai Hu (Big Lake) back of Soochow. Several American missionaries, with patients they evacuated from their hospitals in Soochow, were in refuge on the island.

Johnson to Follow Chinese.

Secretary Hull said yesterday that if the Chinese government decides to evacuate the capital at Nanking, American Ambassador Johnson will leave so as to insure uninterrupted communication with Chinese officials.

Delinquency Work Up 40 Pct. in Year

The Juvenile Protective Association henceforth will be known as the Children's Protective Association.

The name was changed by members at their annual meeting Wednesday at the Y. W. C. A. They added, however, that the society will continue to be a protective and preventive service to children, directed epecially toward prevention of delinquency.

Mrs. William Hurd Hill, chairman of the nominating committee, presented Mrs. Milton A. Francis, Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, Mrs. Daniel Foster Hewett, Miss Jessie LaSalle, J. Wilmer Latimer, Elwood P. Moray and Prof. H. G. Spaulding for re-election as directors.

The number of children provided for in foster homes in the last year was 117, an increase of 40 per cent over the previous year, Miss Mildred Terrett, executive secretary, reported.

France Makes 150 More Raids On Gun Caches

By the Associated Press.

Paris, Nov. 18.—Agents of the Surete Nationale swept across France tonight in a series of 150 raids to uncover more caches of arms and munitions of the "hooded men," terrorist who allegedly sought to stage a "putsch against the Popular Front government. It was stated 300 more raids are planned.

Leftists sought to involve a former premier of France and a Rightest leader in the widening net of investigation.

The Surete—France's Scotland Yard—ordered the raids and established 700 emergency commissions of inquiry throughout the nation to crush what authorities described as a revolutionary plot aided by foreign Fascists. The higher-ups of the plot were believed to have escaped abroad and eight men and women already in prison were described as small fry.

De la Rocque Named.

A demand was made in the Chamber of Deputies for the arrest of Col. Francois de la Rocque, leader of the outlawed Croix de Feu, and the trial of former Premier Andre Tardieu in the high court of justice.

One of La Rocque's former lieutenants, Rene Anceaux of Dieppe, was among eight persons under arrest after discovery of several tons of high explosives, arms and munitions and secret "arsenals" in the heart of Paris.

Jacques Duclos, Communist leader, asked La Rocque's arrest on charges of plotting againt the state.

He also demanded the trial of Tardieu, who admitted during recent libel trials brought against La Rocque that as premier he financed La Rocque's Fascist organization with secret government funds in an effort to stamp out Leftist elements in France.

Master Mind Unknown.

Duclos charged Tardieu with divulging state secrets.

Authorities hinted that arrests of "important political personalities" were imminent in the roundup of the leaders of Les Cagoulards—the Popular Front and establish a identity of the master mind of the revolutionary plot was unknown.

The "hooded men" were alleged to have adopted plans to overthrow the Popular Frant and etsablish a royalist or Fascist regime.

In one raid a huge arsenal with enough high explosives to blow up an entire section of Paris was found. The police also found underground bomb-proof shelters, hundreds of German-made machine guns and a concrete "post of command" replete with radio equipment and secret telephone lines.

Senators Back 'Czar' Inquiry In Civil Service

Ellender Claims Favoritism; McKellar Plan Seeks to Restore Patronage.

nounced his approval of the McKellar bill and indicated that the Ramspeck measure will be allowed to die in the committee.

The Ellender resolution, on which early committee action was promised by Bulow, seeks to set up a special committee of three Senators to make the investigation of the civil service system, both in Washington and in Federal bureaus over the country.

The committee is directed to inquire into:

"(1) The extent to which discrimination is practiced by appointive and supervisory officials with respect to appointments promotions, transfers, reinstatements, disciplinary action and allocation of positions in the Government service, and

"(2) The adequacy of the opportunity for impartial hearing given to employes who are discriminated against in regard to such matters."

Ellender said that he was amazed at the response his resolution brought from other Senators, and he confidently predicted its early passage.

"The civil service system might as well be in the waste basket as to operate the way it does now," he said.

"Examinations should be mandatory for promotions, so that little czars can't push their own favorites ahead."

Claims He Has Examples.

Ellender, who said he has a number of flagrant instances of discrimination on file, invited all Government employes who have legitimate complaints to submit them to him, with the assurance that their identities and rights will be protected.

"I think an investigation of this sort might be a healthy thing," commented Senator Bulow.

Senator McKellar's bill relating to postmasters brought a prompt protest from Chairman Ramspeck, of the House Civil Service Committee, who several times during the summer and fall attacked McKellar in public addresses for "sabotaging" the civil service bill.

"It seems to me the proper parliamentary procedure would be for the Senate to amend the House bill in any fashion it wishes and then to send it to conference," he said.

Ramspeck added that he naturally will fight the measure when it reaches the House, and he predicted that the President would veto it if it passes both houses.

"I know the President wants my bill passed," he said.

Senator Bulow, meanwhile, disclosed that a serious deadlock had developed over the filling of many postmasterships which had become vacant by the expiration of the terms of incumbents.

Harry B. Mitchell, chairman of the Civil Service Commission, called on Bulow yesterday and told him scores of new appointments are being held up because Congressmen have refused to approve the single names of applicants submitted to them.

Under the present system only the name of the applicant making the highest grade in a civil service examination is selected. Under the old system, which McKellar's bill would restore, the names of the three highest eligibles are submitted to the Representative from the district concerned, and he selects one for appointment.

McKellar Confident.

Senator McKellar, who was confident regarding his bill, said he knew of only four Senators who favor the merit system for postmasters. He explained his attitude thus:

"A clerk in the Civil Service Commission is not as competent to select a postmaster as the Congressman in that district.

"A Civil Service Commission investigator went to a town in Tennessee to pick out candidates for a postmastership. He recommended two Republicans and a clerk of a local bank and ignored all the able men there."

The Ramspeck bill was passed by the House last session only after a bitter fight against it by a bloc of members who wanted the patronage system retained. Many members, however, expressed relief at getting rid of the task of making selections on the ground that the choices made more enemies than friends.

It was passed under a special rule after the President had indicated that he wanted it adopted.

The effect of the Ramspeck bill, if enacted into law, would be to make permanent the civil service system instituted by the President in the invocation of an executive order.

Since it was sent to the House, months ago, the Senate Civil Service Committee has made no move to report it or bring it onto the floor. Senator McKellar was named chairman of a sub-committee to study it, but he has held no hearings.

New Deal Leaders Clash With Rising Demand For Business Tax Relief in House and Senate

nue if the undivided profits and capital gains taxes were modified.

Meantime, the filibuster by Southern Senators against anti-lynching legislation raged in the Senate, which has the votes to pass the measure if it can be forced to a ballot. Anti-lynching bill advocates asserted their numerical strength in a 42-to-25 test vote, preventing Senator Pepper (Democrat), Florida, from sending a speech by Majority Leader Barkley to the desk for filibuster reading.

On the business front, the committee on principles of the United States Chamber of Commerce housing conference yesterday expressed "sympathy with the published senatorial reports concerning the desirability of a readjustment of the undistributed surplus profits taxes." The committee said "operation of this tax has seriously affected plant expansion, modernization, the purchase of equipment and retarded residential construction."

The fourth day of the President's special session slipped into oblivion without major action on any of the measures on the Administration's agenda, but farm bill progress was noted by House and Senate Agriculture committees.

Agree on Granary.

Chairman Ellison D. Smith, of the Senate Agriculture Committee, whose goal is a farm bill by Monday, announced general agreement on most features of the ever-normal granary measure except cotton.

A compulsory cotton control plan may be presented today by Senators Bankhead, of Alabama, and Ellender of Louisiana. Smith, an opponent of compulsory control, disclosed he will not object to the point of blocking legislation.

A House Agriculture sub-committee has agreed on a "voluntary" program for cotton, but another sub-committee yesterday reported a plan for compulsory marketing quotas on wheat, with a 20 cents a bushel processing tax. Another House sub-committe was leaning toward marketing quotas for corn, without processing taxes.

Bill Faces Opposition.

Chairman Marvin Jones said he "hoped" for a completed bill next week. But the proposed compulsory wheat and corn programs must run the gauntlet of a full committee that has informally favored voluntary programs for both commodities, without processing taxes.

The House Rules Committee front against a wages and hours bill rule remained unbroken, with no apparent likelihood that the committee will change its mind.

The wage bill's only other apparent chance for House action this session lay in the "discharge" petition filed by Representative Mary Norton, of New Jersey. The petition picked up only 27 signatures yesterday, bringing the number of signers to 132. Another 86 must sign before the Rules Committee can be discharged, and the bill called up on December 13.

Green, Lewis Views Sought.

Mrs. Mary Norton, Labor Committee chairman, wrote letters yesterday to Secretary of Labor Perkins, President William Green, of the American Federation of Labor, and John L. Lewis, of the Committee for Industrial Organization. She asked their present views on the bill, in an attempt to muster petition support. Both labor leaders have publicly criticized the bill.

First to reply, Lewis said the bill has many "serious limitations," but he favored immediate enactment of it because "any attempt substantially to improve the bill would perhaps result in its complete failure." He said he regarded establishment of labor principles in the bill of "transcendant importance."

Status of other bills on the President's agenda was: Reorganization bill blocked by Senate's anti-lynching filibuster; regional planning bill at a standstill in committees; anti-trust bill not drafted.

Senator George followed Senator Josiah W. Bailey (Democrat), North Carolina, in charging the Senate was "trifling with an opportunity to serve America."

"There is nothing fanciful in the President's address to Congress and he reminds us that there is a recession in the tide of business and commerce and industry in the United States," said George. "There are grave reasons for that statement by the President."

Lack of a farm bill, he said, was "no possible excuse" for the Senate not addressing itself to the business problem.

"It would be far more heartening," George said, "to every little business enterprise that is closing down and putting out of employment men who have faithfully served during the past few months as employes, if the finance committee were given time from the floor of the Senate to give real consideration to matters the Senate must consider."

Majority Leader Barkley interrupted to "assure" the Senate he was "as anxious as anyone in the Senate to take up tax legislation at the earliest possible date." But he insited "the Senate cannot take up tax legislation until it has been sent here by the House."

George pointed to a revenue measure which has passed the House and is on the Senate calendar, and said the Senate could write modifying amendments on that. Barkley replied that if the Senate attempted a revenue "rider" the House would "refuse to receive the bill and send it back here because of the constitutional provision that they have exclusively the right to inaugurate revenue legislation." George retorted that the House might refuse on "ordinary" occasions, but this was no ordinary occasion.

Move Not Customary.

Replying to George's request for Senate Finance Committee tax action, Barkley said the committee "theoretically" might proceed, but "it has not been customary to do that until the House * * * sends a bill over."

Earlier, Senator Harrison told the Senate he did not favor complete repeal of the undivided profits tax, but suggested modification to permit "corporations to carry over and pay some of their debts out of their profits instead of imposing this so-called penalty when they do it." Harrison also suggested "permitting them to pay the normal corporation tax rate, whether it is 15, 18 or 20 per cent."

"I do not believe any corporation would object to paying the normal corporation tax because it has been the policy of the country for a long time for corporations to pay the normal corporation tax," Harrison added. "It is a very just tax and I shall not quarrel as to the particular amount that shall be imposed."

Replying to a question by Borah, on whether Harrison thought undivided profits tax repeal would mean levying of a sales tax or lowered income tax exemptions, Harrison said:

"It is not my opinion that it would necessarily take us into that field, because if we change the undistributed earnings tax, we may increase the normal tax on corporations, and raise a sufficient amount of money."

Senator William H. King (Democrat), Utah, declared an increase in other taxes would not be justified if the undivided profits tax was modified, because the Government would profit by increased revenues from increased business activity.

In the House, the Ways and Means subcommittee, which already has approved tentative modification of the capital gains tax and undivided profits tax exemptions for corporations earning $5,000 and less, considered possible further exemptions in the higher brackets extending up to $50,000 or $100,000. Also under consideration were general exemptions that might encourage use of profits for plant expansion and debt retirement.

Eaton Assails New Deal.

Meantime, Representative Charles A. Eaton, (Republican), New Jersey, appealed to the House for immediate tax action, and declared "business, hamstrung and manacled by punitive New Deal legislation and class propaganda, is ceasing to function."

He said the American people "want Congress to repeal the undistributed profits tax and the capital gains tax now. They want Congress to resume control over the value of the dollar now. They demand that this Congress enforce every possible economy in the administrative expenses of Government now. They want a budget balanced by a drastic cut in bureaucratic organization and cost, now."

Representative Roy O. Woodruff (Republican), Michigan, said the Ways and Means Committee minority foresaw the unfavorable business consequences of the undivided profits tax in their minority report last session. Woodruff said the President "led the country into this depression, but now turns to business and industry . . . and demands that they now rescue the country from the consequences of his own follies."

Hull Announces Plan to Seek Broader Pact On Canada Trade and to Treat With Britain

Possible Commercial Cooperation Has World-Wide Implications.

gation from Czechoslovakia is due here next month to conclude an agreement with that country. New England Republicans in Congress are fearful this agreement will include a reduction in the tariff on low-priced shoes.

Observers believed the decision to expand further the trade agreement with Canada will arouse more opposition than the negotiations with the United Kingdom, especially from agricultural interests along the Dominion border. Although the record shows American agriculture has fared well under the reciprocal trade program, the farmers still have strong misgivings about this part of the New Deal.

For instance, the National Grange, in convention at Harrisburg, Pa., yesterday adopted a resolution declaring the reciprocal trade program, in a measure, had traded the American market for agricultural products to foreign countries for industry and demanded "American markets for the American farmer." The resolution also proposed that the reciprocal trade act be amended to require Senate ratification of all agreements concluded.

No Commitments Made.

The State Department did not reveal what commodities will figure in the bargaining between this Government and the United Kingdom, on the one hand, and Canada, on the other. Although the announcement that negotiations are "contemplated" is a preliminary step in this country's reciprocal trade procedure, it means that considerable spadework already has been done and that the negotiators have reached a point in their discussions where they feel that no serious obstacles stand in the way of some sort of an agreement.

Secretary Hull at his press conference emphasized that there have been no commitments of any kind on the part of either this Government or the United Kingdom with respect to rates or any commodities. He said the question which caused a delay in the decision of the United Kingdom and the United States to commence formal negotiations was whether the flexibility of the Ottawa agreements was sufficient for this Government to feel justified in going forward with the negotiations with the British. He said that phase of the situation is now behind us.

The Secretary of State indicated no further announcements regarding negotiations with other Dominions of the British Empire are imminent, but said this Government looks forward to concluding trade agreements with the entire British Commonwealth just as it expects to achieve understandings with the major portion of the nations of the world.

The announcement that the Canadian agreement, which was signed on November 15, 1935, to run for a three-year period, commencing January 1, 1938, would be reopened occasioned surprise, particularly since the announcement came almost simultaneously with the announcement of the United Kingdom negotiations.

This led to speculation that negotiation of the two agreements was interdependent and that perhaps this country was contemplating concessions to Canada to equalize concessions granted on American agricultural products by the United Kingdom. But this thesis was vigorously denied at the State Department where it was asserted negotiation of each agreement would be independent and would stand on its own feet, that concessions would be granted to Canada only in return for concessions granted by Canada and to the United Kingdom in exchange for a relaxation of British restrictions on American commodities.

Pact Hurriedly Made.

The existing agreement with Canada was negotiated somewhat hurriedly after Prime Minister Mackenzie King got control of the Dominion government in 1935. At the time he, as well as American officials, expressed hope the agreement might in the near future be expanded with mutual benefit. It is known State Department attaches had devoted their efforts to that end for the last 18 months.

What course the revision of this agreement will take remains to be determined, State Department officials asserting the only commodities outside of the range of consideration were those on which the American tariff already had been reduced 50 per cent in the original undertaking. That is the limit which the President can reduce tariff rates under the reciprocal trade law.

United States exports to Canada in 1936 had a value of $384,151,000, or $60,957,000 more than in 1935, when the trade agreement was not in operation. United States imports from Canada in 1936 were valued at $375,832,000, an increase of $89,388,000 from the 1935 figure.

In the first nine months of this year, United States exports to Canada were valued at $381,785,000 and imports from Canada were valued at $313,903,000. American exports to Canada in the first nine months of this year increased nearly 38 per cent over the same period for 1936, while imports from Canada increased nearly 21 per cent, State Department figures showed.

In 1936, American exports to the United Kingdom had a value of $440,122,000, accounting for 18 per cent of this country's exports. These exports in 1935 had a value of $433,399,000 or almost one-half of what it was in 1929. American imports from the United Kingdom in 1936 were valued at $200,385,000 as compared to $155,282,000 in 1935 and $329,751,000 in 1929. In the first nine months of this year American exports to the United Kingdom totaled $342,763,000 and imports from there $158,182,000.

The difficulty of negotiating an Anglo-American trade agreement has been intensified by the huge favored trade balance which this country now enjoys in that relationship. This is accounted for in large part by English purchases of American raw cotton and tobacco leaf. This country also supplies the United Kingdom with large quantities of meats and edible animal fats, chemicals, leather, fruits and nuts, saw mill products, petroleum products and electrical and industrial machinery.

The United Kingdom is an industrial producer and an importer of raw material and agricultural products. Thus it is expected that British concessions will be on farm products such as cereals, bacon, hams, lard, lumber, apples, raisins and fresh dried fruits.

On the other hand, this country's concessions most likely will be on manufactured products, such as distilled spirits, our principal import from the United Kingdom; undressed furs, woolen goods and textiles, flax manufactures, cotton manufactured goods, leather goods, linoleum, tin plate and anthracite coal.

The possibility that the British may admit American wheat duty free on a basis with Canadian grain caused a flurry in the speculative grain markets yesterday. The United Kingdom tariff on American wheat is now 6 cents a bushel. Such a move on the part of the United Kingdom would destroy Canadian preference at Liverpool and it is for that reason that negotiation of the Canadian agreement will be watched to see what concesisons, if any, this Government grants the Dominion to offset that loss by the Canadians.

Thus it is possible concessions to Canada will be on agricultural products, in exchange for a reduction of tariffs on American industrial products, while concessions to the United Kingdom will be on industrial commodities in exchange for lower duties on American farm products.

London, Nov. 18 (AP).—British industry tonight indorsed Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain's announcement that negotiations were contemplated for an Anglo-American trade treaty.

Champions of preferential trade among units of the Empire were disposed to make necessary sacrifices because of the wider political possibilities in an economic link-up of English-speaking countries.

Rate Evidence Is 'Immaterial' In TVA Attack

U. S. Wins Major Point in Defense of Agency's Constitutionality.

By the United Press.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Nov. 18.—Tennessee Valley Authority attorneys today won a major point in defense of constitutionality of the Federal Government's planning project.

A three-judge Federal court, holding hearings on a suit making a broad attack on constitutionality of TVA, ruled that "evidence on rates" was "immaterial" to the case.

Attorneys for the 18 Southeastern utility companies attacking constitutionality of the Federal power agency, notified the court they will raise the rate question later.

"This is not a rate case," Circuit Judge Florence Allen, presiding, said.

TVA rates are involved in several major points in the power companies' suit. Their bill of complaint repeatedly charges the Federal agency's rates are "unfair," below cost, "subsidized by taxpayers" and "unreasonable and confiscatory."

The court took under advisement the question of admissibility of evidence concerning Public Works Administration grants and loans for construction of publicly owned distribution systems for using TVA "yardstick" power.

The court previously refused to issue a subpena authorizing power company attorneys to take a deposition from Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes.

Montgomery, Ala., Nov. 18 (AP).—The Alabama Supreme Court dissolved today a temporary injunction restraining the City of Guntersville from building a municipal power system, holding it had "full legislative authority to that end."

The decision was against the Alabama Power Co.

Prichett Estate Placed at $20,000

An estate of $20,000 was left by Mrs. Natalie Campbell Prichett, socially prominent in the District, who was killed in an airplane crash several weeks ago, it was learned in District Court Wednesday with filing of a petition for probate of her will.

A major portion of the estate is to be held in trust by Hugh D. Auchincloss and William P. MacCracken, jr., the income to be paid to Flora L. Cloman, an aunt, for life. After her death the income will be divided, with one-fourth going to Mrs. Prichett's son, Wilson, jr., 15 per cent to Natalie Hathaway Keeney, a niece; 20 per cent to Mr. and Mrs. James Campbell, mother and father of Mrs. Prichett; 10 per cent to Josephine E. Smith, an aunt; a like amount to Mrs. Emma Curtis, another aunt; 10 per cent to Frank Smith, an uncle, and 10 per cent to a friend, Evelyn Curtis Kouchakji.

After death of several of the beneficiaries, the income is to be divided between relatives, with the larger share going to Mrs. Prichett's son. MacCracken was named attorney for the estate.

Dean Doyle Will Speak At Language Conference

Dean Henry Grattan Doyle, of George Washington University, will be the principal speaker at the foreign language conference to be held in New York City tomorrow, under auspices of the New York University School of Education. His subject will be, "Is Co-operation Between Educationists and Foreign Language Teachers Possible?"

Dr. Doyle, who is dean of Columbian College and professor of romance languages at George Washington University, also has served for the past four years as editor of the Modern Language Journal. This magazine is the official publication of the National Federation of Modern Language Teachers.

Pennsylvania Halts Rush Of Snuff Fortune 'Heirs'

Philadelphia, Nov. 18 (AP).—Pennsylvania closed the door yesterday on further claimants to the $20,000,000 snuff fortune left by Mrs. Henrietta E. Garrett seven years ago. Nearly 1,000 claimants joined the "gold rush" in the last week. This brought to approximately 22,000 the number of persons claiming kinship to the recluse widow, whose will in 1921 disposed of only $62,500.

TEMPERAMENT among the tasters: It is learned that the flash of a photographer's bulb in the room where the six ladies and gentlemen were tasting turkey in an Agricultural Department scientific experiment would simply have upset the experiment. This tasting, it seems, was not just tasting turkey; it was a most serious business. It called forth the severest concentration on taste—and also some wise cracks.

Certain low comedians wanted to know if the tasters were organized into a union, such as the Amalgamated Turkey Tasters of America, functioning under a charter from the More Abundant Life, Inc. And they wondered if they got overtime compensation when called upon for some overtime eating. All of which was, of course, very impudent and not funny at all.

Life Insurance Firms Scored In Rail Failures

Truman Calls Them Partly Responsible for Outcome of Reorganizations.

By the Associated Press.

A Senate committee spokesman said yesterday a major responsibility for the outcome of pending railroad reorganizations rests with life insurance companies.

Speaking for the Senate Railroad Finance Investigating Committee, Acting Chairman Truman (Democrat), Missouri, criticized as "not very happy ones" previous rail reorganizations in which insurance companies participated as creditors.

"Unless the insurance companies carry out this responsibility with more lasting success than they have in the past, the fate of present railroad reorganizations will be very uncertain."

Truman made the assertion at completion of a study for reorganizing the Misouri Pacific system. On the witness stand were Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., and Fred P. Hayward, vice president of John Hancock Mutual Life, of an organization of creditors which recently agreed to accept a debtors' plan of reorganization.

Truman said the debtors' plan would enable Alleghany Corporation top holding company in the $3,000,000,000 Van Sweringen rail empire, to continue in control of the railroad.

"Insurance companies are the biggest class of investors in American railroads," Truman said. "The money they put into the railroads comes from the savings of over sixty million life insurance policy holders. These investments give to life insurance companies a major role in railroad reorganizations."

Ecker and Hayward contended that "unforeseen" increases in operating costs, coupled with declining revenues, had been responsible for reorganization failures. Government regulation and increased competition, they said, made it impossible to forecast earning possibilities accurately.

District National Guard Holds Field Day Sunday

The District National Guard will hold a field day at its Camp Simms rifle range Sunday.

Events will start at 10 a. m., continuing until nightfall. The program includes a turkey shoot, football game between Seaman Gunners and members of the 260th Coast Guard Artillery, band concerts and dancing.

Minneapolis police found the body of Patrick J. Corcoran, 45, a labor leader, who was slain by a bullet in the head, his body covered with a thin layer of fresh snow. He was found slumped against the corner of a house two doors from his home.

Hormones for Cows Promise Better Milk Supply for Nation

Experiments on injections of certain hormones in cows, at the Agriculture Extension School of the University of Missouri, have brought about increased quantity and improved quality of milk.

This statement was made yesterday by Dean Frederick B. Mumford of the school, who is in Washington attending the annual meeting of the Land Grant Colleges of America.

"We have found quantity and quality in secretion of milk are dependent on hormones of the various glands," Dean Mumford said. "By introduction of hormones, we can control the amount of milk produced."

For 20 years, Dr. Mumford has directed the research.

Already the center of national interest, the work has attracted attention of two medical groups. One contributed $2,500, the other $250 for research.

The medical groups seek to determine whether cancerous growths in the mammary gland of the cow and in the human are related, Dr. Mumford said.

Quality of milk in this country has improved so much within the last decade that today milk produced in the United States is far superior to that of any other country, Dr. Mumford stated.

'2 More to Go,' Union Told in Labor Killing

told him. The informant hung up immediately.

Martin said he had received a written threat and had turned it over to postal authorities.

Police, meanwhile, had received information that four others also were under threat of death.

Alderman A. G. Bastis disclosed he had turned over to investigators the names of five labor leaders sometime ago and had asked that they "keep a close watch on everything."

He named Grant, Vince and Miles Dunn, brothers who led the bloody truck strikes of 1932, Bill Brown, another drivers union official, and Corcoran.

Authorities said they had eliminated the robbery motive in Corcoran's slaying and apparently were centering their investigation of the bitter struggle for supremacy on the northwest labor front.

The A. F. of L. teamsters whom Corcoran led have been a center of the controversy. They were said to number 12,000.

Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Mohn, neighbors of the Corcoran's, supplied police with their only tangible clew to identity of the assassins.

They said they saw two heavy-set men, of medium height, wearing jackets and cloth caps, flee from the vicinity of Corcoran's home between 9 and 10 p. m., about the hour he was believed shot. They said they also heard what might have been shots just before the men ran under an arc light.

"I met a very close friend of mine in the Loop last night (November 8)" he said. "He's given me scores of items in the past; some of them have been little scoops, too. And he's never been wrong. Here's one he dropped last night—you can take it for what it's worth: A prominent labor leader in Minneapolis will be "taken for a ride within two weeks."

Meanwhile, Gov. Elmer Benson and the Minneapolis Star each posted a $500 reward for apprehension of Corcoran's killers. Corcoran's union offered a $10,000 reward.

Corcoran's son, Patrick, jr., told officers his father mentioned casually two weeks ago that he had been threatened.

Mgr. Gavan's Estate Totals $18,000 in Cash

An estate of approximately $18,000, all in cash, was left by the late Mgr. Patrick C. Gavan, pastor of the Shrine of the Sacred Heart, it was learned in District Court yesterday when Attorney William H. Collins filed a petition asking that the cleric's two sisters be appointed to administer his estate.

Hoover and Boy After Presidency Are Table Mates

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Herbert Hoover dined last night with a Democrat who expects to be President of the United States.

His table companion was Robert (Bobby) Gallagher, 12, representing a boys' club at a testimonial dinner in honor of Albert B. Hines, club director.

Hoover autographed Bobby's menu.

"Sure," said Bobby.

"You're not a Democrat, are you?"

"Sure," said Bobby, emphatically.

Penalizing The Voteless.

At the semiannual dinner of the voteless District League of Women Voters, men and women active in the field of education, public welfare and business gave evidence based on first-hand knowledge of local conditions to support an appeal for national representation for the District. Stress was laid upon the importance of the vote as a protection against legislative monstrosities like the red rider and as a means of inducing Congress to make adequate provision for essential municipal services.

Representation in Congress for the District would undoubtedly discourage hasty and ignorant handling of local problems. With someone to present the views of the community and interpret its needs to Congress, there would not only be fewer complaints but also better opportunities for pushing those basic reforms in the structure of local government that are of first importance.

District representation is, however, a term of vague import, with different meanings for different people. Just what form such representation should take opens a wide field for debate. Amendment of the Constitution so as to give the District representatives in one or both houses awaits the formulation of a specific proposal that would obtain approval in Congress as well as the united support of the community.

The League of Woman Voters is doing an excellent public service by stimulating interest in a problem that has been before the people for many years. The mere fact that Washingtonians are becoming increasingly awake to the defects of the system of government under which they live is encouraging. An aroused civic consciousness is the first step toward positive remedial action.

The ultimate political emancipation at which the League of Women Voters aims is entirely compatible with concentration upon certain immediate reforms that would do much to relieve if not to correct the conditions which give rise to complaint. Even without benefit of the vote, a determined citizenry should be able to convince Congress that the District needs a decent measure of self-government. That can be obtained in some measure without a constitutional amendment by simply increasing the powers of the District Commissioners and by emancipating the city from its fiscal bondage to the Federal Budget Bureau.

These and other essential reforms would be easier to achieve, no doubt, and less likely to be lost by an already enfranchised community. But votelessness does not imply political impotence, nor does it justify an attitude of helplessness on the part of the unenfranchised.

Who Wants It?

"Who wants the bill anyway?"

That question was asked by Chairman O'Connor of the House Rules Committee, in referring to the wages and hours bill, now held up in the House by the refusal of a majority of the Rules Committee members to report it out for consideration.

Mr. O'Connor's query is the more pertinent because there seems to be diminishing support for the bill in its present form. Neither President Green of the A. F. of L. nor John L. Lewis of the C. I. O. is satisfied. Secretary Perkins has certain changes to propose, and Chairman Norton of the House Labor Committee is seeking advice with a view to possible modification of the pending bill.

Even President Roosevelt appears to have lost much of his original enthusiasm for a once cherished legislative plan. In his address at the opening of the session, indeed, he stressed the importance of a gradual approach to the goal of uniform wage and hour standards, explaining that "there are geographic and industrial diveralties which practical statesmanship cannot well ignore."

The basic objections to Federal regulation of wages and hours—both economic and administrative—are, of course, quite as valid in good times as in bad. But they make a much greater impression upon the average mind when a business recession is under way. The fear of increased labor costs with resultant pressure to discharge workers is particularly alarming at such times. No doubt the recent reversal of the upward business trend helps to explain the growing opposition to a measure which from the beginning has had rough going.

Democracy Talks Business.

Announcement of the beginning of formal negotiations for a trade agreement with Great Britain comes at the psychological moment, regardless of whether emphasis is placed on the political or economic aspect of the parleys.

In the latter field the importance of the negotiations is intensified by the current recession, which will deserve a stronger name if the downward trend is not soon checked. It would take much more than an expansion of Anglo-American trade, vital though it is, to offset the present sharp declines in domestic business activity. Moreover, the step announced by the Department of State yesterday is only the first move in a protracted procedure which will at best be slow in achieving practical results. Yet the step is nonetheless promising from an economic viewpoint.

It is promising, for one reason, because it represents a considered British decision to turn away from the system of pronounced imperial preference and thereby assist in removing one very hampering impediment to the improvement of international trade.

For the United States this is particularly vital because Great Britain and the self-governing dominions are traditionally such excellent customers. Restoration of these export markets to anything like the pre-depression levels would be a sizable stimulus to American industry and of substantial benefit to our agriculture. And while the negotiations now announced concern Great Britain alone, the logic of the situation calls for similar agreements with all the British dominions, including a further accord with Canada supplementary to that made two years ago.

The negotiations now announced are of further economic importance because they imply a reversal of that movement toward self-sufficiency which has been so effective in strangling commerce and driving the standard of living down in every country where it has gained control. When Great Britain and the United States proclaim their joint intention to oppose this trend it is a heartening matter.

Any immediate effect will be purely psychological, and it would be a mistake to expect very notable positive gains even if the negotiations move more smoothly than is likely toward a constructive end. But even so, there is far from negligible significance in the act of reversing a clearly destructive economic course.

From a purely political viewpoint, the implications of yesterday's announcement are even greater. The two most powerful democracies have agreed to negotiate for their mutual advantage at a moment when it had begun to appear that only the dictatorships can collaborate effectively.

As Germany, Italy and Japan consult in secret to support their respective aggressive plans, the United States and Great Britain have agreed to work openly for an ameliorating program. And the objective of the latter two powers is of general rather than exclusive benefit. The importance of this evidence of constructive collaboration is fully appreciated in Berlin, Rome and Tokyo.

It will take more than negotiations for a trade agreement between Great Britain and the United States to convince the dictatorships that the democracies are not decadent, and to prove that the latter have the brains as well as the courage to defend liberal ideals against either undermining from within or assault from without. But the mere fact of Anglo-American accord in this matter will tend to weaken the arrogance and simulated self-confidence of the totalitarian powers. They will realize that the democracies do not propose to see the world go Fascist through default.

Commercial prosperity is necessary to save liberal institutions, in this as in every other country. Commercial prosperity is impossible with continuously languishing trade. The underlying purpose of the Anglo-American negotiations now announced is to rebuild trade, both international and domestic, in behalf of peace and the preservation of democratic institutions.

It will be necessary to remember, however, that trade is trade—that the forthcoming discussions would be fruitless if the goal of either side were merely to gain selfish advantages and to make no concessions. Mutual benefit, here as always, will depend on a sense of the constructive value of judicious compromise to attain a common end.

The promise now foreshadowed will not be achieved unless the dominant public opinion in both democracies realizes that the long-range interest of all is more important than the immediate benefit of a few.

Unimpressive Defiance.

The near-ultimatum issued by Japan to the other Nine-Power signatories throws into high relief the sorry pass in which the peace-loving nations now find themselves.

Repeatedly these nations have tried to placate the aggressors by giving way to them. But such a policy of retreat has not made for peace. On the contrary, it has only emboldened the lawless nations to embark on new and increasingly reckless invasions.

Now Japan has gone one step further. Having flouted her own commitments under the Nine-Power Treaty, she now insists that the other signatories refrain from living up to theirs. She has warned them that the granting of aid to China, now fighting desperately for its territorial integrity, would be regarded by the Tokyo government as a hostile act. It is as though a criminal before the bar were to threaten the judge and jury with reprisals if the law were invoked to his disadvantage.

But it must not be supposed that Japan is as strong as this threat sounds. The succession of military victories won in China by no means offsets the increasing financial and economic difficulties with which the island empire is harassed. More and more American and British exporters are refusing to do business with Japan except on a cash basis. Should this attitude become the rule, Japan's situation would become parlous. This has, in fact, already been admitted by the Japanese themselves.

"If both American and British money markets refused financing to Japan," says one economist in the latter country, "it would be a more serious situation than mere political or economic sanctions."

In other words, despite Japan's blustering it is still the peace-loving nations, in particular Great Britain and the United States, which hold the upper hand. Should they decide, as they have every reason to do, to withhold from Japan the unneutral aid she is now receiving from this country and the British, Japan's military victories in China would become meaningless. In threatening the powers with reprisals should they do their bounden duty, Japan speaks not out of strength but with a frantic anxiety to avert the step she has such good reason to fear.

A New Recovery Program.

Many members of Congress must share Senator Bailey's dissatisfaction with the manner in which the extraordinary session is proceeding. Legislators were asked to return to Washington to enact several measures which remained unfinished from the last session. In the meantime a business recession of increasing seriousness has arisen to demand their attention. But none of these issues is occupying the attention of either house.

Congress is not primarily responsible for the confusion in which the extra session has begun. It was convoked without regard for the unfinished status of the farm bill and the changed situation with regard to the wages-and-hours bill. Having thus met with no specific program ready for action, a certain amount of bewilderment was inevitable. And the Administration has not attempted to minimize the bewilderment by suggesting specific ways and means of counteracting the business slump.

The Senate began consideration of the anti-lynching bill and the House began twiddling its thumbs as a means of marking time. With better leadership, they might well have given first thought to the business situation, even though some time will be required to work out detailed legislation. The psychological effect of such a favorable attitude would have been important whether or not new recovery measures can be enacted before the regular session.

As matters stand, majorities in both the Senate and House seem to favor revision of taxes that place a severe handicap upon business enterprise. The House Ways and Means Committee is working on that problem. But it cannot be said that the demand for encouragement of private industry to expand its activities and employment has been shaped into a definite program.

Something more than relief from unreasonable and discriminatory taxes is needed. Business is not likely to regain stability until some of the uncertainty arising from general Administration policies has been removed. Will Congress address itself to this task? With questions of such vital importance awaiting decision, there can be no excuse for what Senator Bailey describes as "fiddling over a useless act."

It is not too late for Congress to redirect its energies toward a recovery program that will permit private industry to resume its normal activities. Since that is the most important issue arising at the extra session, it may properly be given a right of way ahead of the farm bill. Indeed, farm legislation should be made to conform to the more general policy of encouraging private initiative. Congress would find it very difficult to convince industrial leaders that it intends to ease restrictions on private enterprise if it should simultaneously enact a bill setting up compulsory quotas and tax penalties upon farmers.

The Administration ought to take the leadership in this proposed recovery movement, especially in view of the fact that it has so frequently identified the status of business with its own policies. Since it has failed to act, however, the responsibility falls directly upon the leaders of Congress.

America, Britain And The Far East.

A. F. Whyte in the Contemporary Review (London).

In the present conflict the part which the United States or Great Britain, or both together, can play is limited by certain plain facts. The part which they could play if those limitations were removed is equally plain. They could hamstring Japan by cutting off oil and refusing to buy silk, but before they had done so they would have brought nearer that very conflagration which it is their declared purpose to avert.

No one knows better than I do the weakness that lies at the root of the Japanese economic structure, but even giants with feet of clay are not to be laid low by the sling of economic sanctions without a struggle and it is improbable that economic restraints could be applied to Japan without provoking repercussions far beyond the immediate theater of the present conflict.

Taking all the factors into account, we must conclude that there is very little chance of an official boycott being enforced against Japan either by Britain or by America, and an unofficial boycott, though it may be the natural expression of popular anger with Japan, cannot do more than inflame Japanese feeling without any compensating advantage of a practical kind.

Chest And The Hospitals.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The person writing under the initials of "P. T." on the subject, "District Doctors' Stand" in The Post of November 18 is in some error regarding the relationship of the Community Chest to the hospitals. The hospitals do not, in the same sense as do the other social agencies, "through the Community Chest, make an appeal for funds to the people of Washington."

The Community Chest appeals for funds to take care of sick and injured men, women and children who are not able to pay in full for the care they need. It buys service for these sick and injured people from the only source equipped to supply such service—the hospitals. The Chest does not subsidize the hospitals, nor make up any deficits. The only way that it could avoid paying money to them would be to refuse aid to the sick and injured, something I am sure "P. T." would not want the Chest to do.

The Chest will continue, to the fullest extent of its ability, to take care of the needy sick and injured. It should be noted that, because of failure to attain our goal for 1936 and 1937, the Chest was unable, by approximately $100,000, to pay for all the services rendered by hospitals last year, and is paying for only about 75 per cent of the services actually given by the hospitals in 1937. But the services are continuing, thus creating hospital deficits, because hospitals never refuse to accept a patient in need of care.

We are now engaged in a campaign for $2,059,000, that is, we are the campaign organization for 69 organizations whose needs total this amount. In this fund there will be a certain sum, to be determined by our volunteer budget committee, for the care of the needy sick and injured. This money will be paid to hospitals for service. I hope that Washington will see that there is enough money provided to pay for the care of all these prospective patients.

Town Hall Suggestions.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Assuming that the Town Hall directors are not averse to suggestions from subscribers I would like to call attention to what I believe would be improvements in the present arrangements at the Riaito Theater.

1. The poor lighting makes it impossible to see the audience. As the meetings draw many distinguished persons whom it is interesting to see, this is unfortunate.

2. The elimination of oral questions from the floor detracts from the interest. Direct participation by the audience is one of the most interesting features of public forums.

3. The mezzanine seats are very disappointing. Owing to the brass rail covered with curtains those holding seats in that section, at least as far as the side seats are concerned, cannot see into the orchestra at all. The height of these seats and the distance from the stage make it difficult to see the faces of the speakers.

The Town Hall meetings are such delightful and stimulating occasions that it seems a pity that anything should be permitted to mar their full enjoyment.

SUBSCRIBER.
Washington, Nov. 16.

Transit Company Stockholder.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

According to reports, the Central Labor Union has adopted resolutions denouncing the Public Utilities Commission for its decision permitting certain increases in fares of the Capital Transit Co., saying, among other things, that the commission "seems to be more interested in the welfare of the stockholders of the Capital Transit Co. than in the people of the District of Columbia who are compelled to use their street cars and buses."

I know an employed lady who some years ago invested in stock of the Capital Transit Co., paying therefor about $100 a share. Today the same stock is quoted at about $9 a share, and the highest price reached during the current year was $16.

It seems to me that the representative of union labor, as well as all other citizens, should remember that the corporation mentioned is not a public enemy, to be gotten rid of by fair means or foul, but that it is furnishing an essential public service and is probably our largest employer of labor.

Glenn Dale Mural.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Must our good artists constantly be subjected to attacks from officials who don't know a Corot from a chromo? The recent outburst by Dr. Ruhland against the very fine mural which Miss Bernice Cross painted in the children's ward of Glenn Dale Sanitarium over a year ago seems to me to be uncalled for.

Miss Cross is one of our most outstanding artists. Her work has received high praise from the best critics and several of her paintings have even been selected to hang in Washington's famous Phillips Gallery.

In the mural which our health officer has questioned, Miss Cross has with fine artistry caught the real spirit of Mother Goose, with all the fantasy and gayety which has made that book a children's classic everywhere. The success of the mural is perhaps best established by its popularity with the children. If it can bring cheer to the tiny inmates of the sanitarium, swell their hearts and open their eyes to beauty, then it has accomplished the purposes of art.

MAIRI F. FOREMAN.

Crop Control.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

The best argument that I ever heard against crop control was advanced by Gov. Franklin Delano Roosevelt in his Topeka, Kans., address to the farmers—before his first election. Among other things, he condemned it. He told the farmers that to them it meant a race with poverty to see who would win. But—crop control was then Hoover's baby. I think that it had a premature birth and was at that time in an incubator.

However, after F. D. R.'s inauguration and after he told us that he would drive the money changers out of the temple, he actually adopted Hoover's baby and hired Wallace to nurse it. Wallace went to Congress and got Congress to give it a diet of pap. This was furnished by both the producers and the consumers of food. Crop control waxed fat on this pap diet. He grew so fast that "nine old men" who spend their time in Washington decided that he should be weaned and took his diet of pap away from him.

This was very disheartening to both the nurse and his foster father. He languished and got palpitations of the heart. So they decided that he needs a blood transfusion, and a special session of the Congress has been called to perform the transfusion. The American farmers and the consumers are to furnish the blood, while the farmers of foreign countries will go on an "American pap" diet.

Doctors On Group Health.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Mr. Konkel, in his letter in The Post of November 16, has expressed what must be the opinion of the majority of the public on the vindictive action taken by the District Medical Society against the newly formed Group Health Association of the HOLC employes. The only cause for regret in the organization of this health group is that it is to be restricted to Government employes.

You might perform a real public service by printing a list of the names of members of the District Medical Society, in order that those of us who must still depend on the private practitioner for our medical care may be enabled to know and avoid these physicians who have so little sense of the obligations of their profession toward society.

United States And The World Today.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir:

Utterances reflecting America's uneasiness toward present world conditions are already being heard in Congress. It is perhaps too much to say that our national conscience has been awakened, but at least it can be said that we have ceased emulating the ostrich—that absurd and infinitely dangerous attitude which we tried at first to assume. Now the question is not whether we should attempt to ignore world conditions but whether we should do anything about them.

It goes without saying that both the advocates of neutrality and of co-operation are equally concerned with one thing—peace. But the neutrality advocates say, in effect, that so long as America has peace, the rest of the world is none of its concern; the advocates of co-operation with other democratic countries say that the very fortunate circumstances in which America is placed make it her imperative duty to try to help stabilize the rest of the world.

A good many things have happened during the past few years to furnish the isolationists with excellent talking points. The secret treaties for division of spoils under which the allies were fighting while our boys were being sent to save democracy; the trouble-breeding Versailles Treaty; the repudiation of the war debts; the history of the League of Nations—these are open secrets, and they do not make pretty reading. Nineteen years of post-armistice "peace" have made isolationists of many people whose sincerity and idealism cannot be questioned. Yet the fact remains that international anarchy seems to be the order of the day; that whole nations are assuming the roles of outlaws; that, while we have peace today, we may not have it tomorrow—and if we should, it is a debatable sort of peace, indeed, which could flourish in a world made safe by and for the dictators.

While it does no good in itself, so many years after, to regret America's refusal to enter the League of Nations, it may do us some good to reflect that that very refusal lent an impetus to treating-breaking by France, so alarmed for her own security that she immediately started to re-arm; that that treaty-breaking furnished an excuse, if not an example, for the treaty-breaking policies which Germany has followed for some years; and that bad examples, when they prove so successful as Germany's have been, are all too easily followed by other countries which desire that which cannot lawfully be obtained.

The past is gone; only the present and the future are ours. Yet the past furnishes some light by which to walk—and the immediate past furnishes lessons too plain to be ignored. If we continue to do as we have done for 19 years, are we not saying that, whatever may be the rule for individuals, as a Nation we consider selfishness the best policy; that we are not concerned with the fate of the rest of the world; that international law and morality may go into the limbo, and that we are willing to take the risk?

The alternative, the isolationists will say, is war. It need not have been—not in 1934, when Japan was invading Manchuria; not in 1935, when Mussolini marched into Ethiopia; not even when Japan began the invasion of China this year. It is even doubtful whether, if the democracies would unite today and refuse to trade with Japan while China is blockaded, it would mean war. But every day's delay is dangerous.

After the democracies have demonstrated their unity, it will be time—and high time—to do something about those causes which have led to worldwide unrest. The democracies might as well make up their minds now that they may not forever be the "haves" of this world; that co-operation and conciliation and sacrifice are concomitants of position and influence; that civilization is faced with unmistakable ruin unless recognition is taken of these facts and something definite is done about them.

Old Williamsburg.

THE gentleman definitely was annoyed. It was evident from the tone of his voice, from the ruffled line of his brow, and from the belligerent thrust of his chin.

He stood at the side of my desk, a towering, bulky individual in a plaid overcoat, and glowered at me, and for the first time I was thankful that my desk was not in some secluded spot in the building.

"Did you," he demanded, "recently write a piece about Williamsburg?"

I confessed that I did.

Still glaring at me, he reached behind him and drew up a chair.

"I thought so," he said.

I wondered what would come next.

"My wife read that piece," my visitor said. "You have no idea the trouble it caused."

"I'm sorry," I said.

"You should be," the gentleman said. "My wife is an impressionable woman. She read what you wrote about old rooms and old ladies and historical places, and nothing would do but that we go to Williamsburg, too."

He paused, but I didn't say anything, because I liked Williamsburg and I couldn't see why anyone should be upset about going there.

* * *

"Last week," he said, "we went to Williamsburg.

"I looked about for an inn, and on a side street I found a neat little place and was about to go in when my wife objected again.

"'This won't do at all,' she said, 'because this is not an old place, and we came to Williamsburg to visit old places.'

"So we looked around some more and I saw a lot of nice places, but none of them would do. Finally my wife saw an old house that had a sign up, 'Over-Night Guests,' but you could hardly read the sign because vines had grown up and almost covered it up.

"'How quaint,' said my wife. 'This is just what we want.'

"I wasn't so sure, but we went into the house and were greeted by an old man with watery eyes whose legs creaked as he came to the door. He was evidently surprised that we came because it seems that he had had no overnight guests since his wife died five years before and he had been meaning to take down the sign in front of the house but never had gotten around to it. But he did have a room if we wanted to stay.

* * *

"I thanked him and was ready to leave, but my wife nudged me and we went up to look at the room. I'll admit that if she wanted an old place she couldn't have found anything better. That room must have been old . . . it took years for all the dust in it to collect.

"There was no furniture in the room but a bed and two chairs and a clock. The bed was old and looked hard and uncomfortable. There was no seat in one of the chairs. And while we were there the hands on the clock reached the quarter hour and there was a great clattering and ringing of bells. The noise was enough to awaken the dead and I couldn't see how anyone was expected to sleep with that going on. But my wife liked the room and she paid the old man and told him we'd stay.

"We left our bags, and on the way out we saw a gray-haired darky with more wrinkles in his face than a prune, and our host told us that was his cook.

"Outside it was different. We visited the old homes and old public buildings and it was interesting and we had a good time.

"But eventually we had to go back to our room. It was dark when we got back and there was very little light in our room and no heat. My wife's teeth were chattering when she got into bed, and mine were chattering when I followed her there. There were not many covers on the bed and I stood it as long as I could.

"Then I got up and went downstairs and told the old man we were freezing.

* * *

"'Oh, I'm sorry,' he said. 'I forgot to give you your heater.'

"He gave me an oil-heat contraption that was popular in the time of our fathers. As I struggled up the stairs with it he called after me: 'We serve breakfast at 8.'

"But I was not thinking of breakfast then, and I cursed softly under my breath until I got to our room with the heater.

"Then I shivered there in the cold and tried to light the oil-heater, but the secret of how to operate that sort of thing had died when our ancestors died.

"Finally I ran out of matches, then I must have turned the wick the wrong way, because great billows of smoke rose out of the thing and I ran, choking, to open a window and let the smoke out.

"But even the windows didn't work like any created in the last 100 years, and at last I gave up and got into bed and pulled the covers up over my head.

"It was a terrible night, and we were up long before 8 o'clock in the morning. I peered at my wife through the billows of smoke and told her she was to blame. She was furious.

"'The trouble with you is,' she said, 'you haven't got any soul and old things mean nothing to you.'

"But when we went downstairs for breakfast I think she was finally convinced that old things can be carried too far.

"Because, in that house, even the eggs were antique!"

Lady Bars Today?

ON THE NIGHT that the three saloons were voted out of our little town, long before the Eighteenth Amendment bonfires burned on the lot where the W. C. T. U. drinking fountain stood and the Rev. Mr. McKenzie, the Methodist minister who had led the crusade, thanked Almighty God that our youth would never know the taste of rum, Mr. Simpson, the victorious candidate for mayor, broke the head out of a barrel of apples which he passed around to the adults in the Town Hall and provided a big wooden pail of grocery store candy for the kids. In other times it had been the custom of newly elected or re-elected mayors to lead a procession to one of the three saloons.

But this was the beginning of a New Era.

Unhappily, in the heat of the campaign it had come to light that the few Catholics in town had no religious conviction against alcoholic beverages as such and even held it to be no sin for a man or, yes, even a woman to drink in moderation—even whisky. Holding liquor to be an abomination and the Demon Rum to be an actual devil, the Protestants, and particularly the Methodists, felt that they had no choice but to regard the Catholics with suspicion, and the blessing of the referendum was mitigated somewhat by this and the answering resentment.

* * * *

IT HAD BEEN established among the kids in the school yard that anyone whose father got drunk—the words "tight," "plastered" and "cockeyed" were not then used in this sense—was a social inferior, and now, by exaggerated inference, not only the fathers but even the mothers of the Catholic kids were at least potential drunkards. It made a very unpleasant situation.

It seems strange now that they took their liquor evil of those days so grimly, because actually the social stigma of drunkenness, extending even to the children of the offender, was a strong deterrent.

My first knowledge of the problem of the drunken mother came in London, where the ladies of the lower orders, forbidden to take their children into the bars, after some futile protest hit upon the idea of parking them outside, a dozen or more infants in charge of one little girl, while they spent the afternoon guzzling gin. It seemed awful at the time, but it was no different, really, from the present American practice of leaving the children at home in charge of the servants or in school and out of mischief while the ladies of the upper classes go pub crawling in the afternoon.

No doubt about it, some of the girls do get thoroughly bottled when they go out larking, but there is nothing furtive about it, for they are just as likely to get tight at home in the presence of the bairns. The daddies, too. And many of them are smalltowners, too.

* * * *

BUT, ALTHOUGH this would have been horrible in our little town then, it is routine in our big cities now, and I suppose in our signal stops, too. I can't think of many children of my personal acquaintance who have not seen their fathers and mothers blotto now and again, but none of them ever seems to be humiliated. Amused, yes.

I believe there was an instinct to propitiate the future in my early sympathy for the poor bums in our town jug in the throes of hangover. It was a small brick jug with two cells and no water, and when the sun hit them in the morning the bums would begin to yell "Hoo-oo! Hoo-oo!" We lived near by, and I would put a board up against the outside wall and peer in the barred window at men with cracked, blue lips with white, salty crust on them, begging for something to drink—even water.

I couldn't get a cup between the bars, but my mother also felt sorry for them, and she would tie a bottle of water to the end of a mop handle and, by stretching, I would shove it across the intervening space to the bars of the cell.

I have never gone back to our little town, and I wonder if, after all the struggle and prayer of the W. C. T. U. and the Rev. Mr. McKenzie to put alcohol forever from the sight of our youth, there are now red leather and chromium lady bars for mothers where the three saloons used to be.

The Once Over

H. I. Phillips

Do You Know 'Em?

She sleeps with all the windows closed;
Of colds she has a deadly fear;
A raindrop on her window-sill
Will make her wince and cry "Oh dear!"
But at the rain-soaked football game,
Well drenched she'll sit as waters run
Like mountain streams along each tier,
And gently murmur, "Ain't this fun?"

II.

She says, "I'm sensitive to cold,"
And shudders when the day is gray;
Out walking on a summer day;
At home "This house is very damp;
Send up more heat!" she will complain—
But "This is great!" she chortles at
A football classic in the rain.

III.

A trickle down her dainty neck
In town will make her fear the flu;
One step without her rubbers will Fill her with frights and torments new;
She asks: "Why should I take a chance?"
But, still, she'll sit in snow and ice
On Saturday and sweetly chirp:
"Oh, this is lovely! This is nice!"

IV.

He wears red flannels all the year
And shrinks from cold when he's at home;
If there's a distant threat of storm,
Not from his doorstep will he roam;
But when November comes around
No ice, no snow, no rain or gale
Concern him as he jumps about

V.

He has a deadly fear of flu
And loves to dose himself with pills;
He says, "This house is always cold!
The atmosphere produces chills."
He says, "A man must guard his health,"
But in the blizzard or the flood
He'll watch the Big Three football game,
And babble: "This is swell, eh, bud?"

VI.

Few things disturb him like a draft—
All year he bellows, "Shut that door!"
Caught in an April shower he
Will for a doctor wildly roar;
But sit him in a puddle cold—
Let gales assail him fore and aft
On Saturday, and he'll exclaim,
"A guy who don't like this is daft!"

Latin America Today

American Culture Described As Best Device Available To U. S. In Repulsing Vast Propaganda From Europe.

By Peter Thicket,
Special Correspondence of The Post.
Buenos Aires.

EUROPEAN FASCIST-NAZI forces, after having been estopped for a year by the Pan American Peace Conference of December, 1936, now seems to be gaining headway again in many parts of Latin America. It has been suggested that Washington and the United States have failed to follow up the gains made at the conference and that this was partly due to the apathy and ignorance of the American people, who do not understand the need for and the nature of the so-called cultural approach in the new diplomacy.

European powers have developed scientifically and artistically this new way to gain concessions, markets for their manufactured goods and access to raw materials. It is a new form of "intellectual" imperialism with economic and political objectives. It replaces the old military, economic and territorial forms of control by one more subtle which, nevertheless, in the end serves the same purposes.

Washington showed its awareness of the problem in the cultural projects of conventions presented, and accepted, at Buenos Aires. This effort to compete with the Europeans in their own game was different and far superior. It was frank and aboveboard and it was reciprocal. It was to exchange cultural riches, whereas that of the European is selfish and unilateral. The Latin Americans responded in the best and most gratifying spirit, but, as so often happens, the major victory was not followed up. In contrast, the enemies of United States interests in Latin America have followed up to their own advantage.

Cultural Approach Used By British And French.

IN EARLIER DAYS the cultural approach was important in determining the course of trade and travel. A little over a century ago—the Brazilian historian, Pedro Calmon, testifies—British influence in intellectual and cultural matters was so great that British furniture, art, books, manufactured goods, etc., flooded the Brazilian markets and Brazilians flooded the British schools. Later France took Britain's place as the intellectual and philosophical guide of Brazil and life shifted Franceward.

Thus those who can see no actual gain in the so-called cultural approach can rest assured that there is immediate and material advantage. The older system was better, too, because it had no ulterior preoccupations. The Latin Americans welcomed it, and Washington, with a praiseworthy concern to avoid any hint of imperialism, suggested at Buenos Aires, and won the day with, a program which went back to the former profitable but harmless type of cultural approach. But Washington has not followed through, or if it has it is moving so slowly as to make its efforts potentially wasted. They may come too late.

From the firing line it would seem that two other factors, in addition to popular apathy and ignorance, handicap the State Department in its endeavors to carry out a program which it itself has decided was diplomatically necessary. In spite of our youth as a nation we seem to be traditionbound. Numberless proposals to change the technique of North American approach to Latin America are almost always met by the response, "But we have never done anything like that."

This is all the more paradoxical when one notes that nations such as Japan and the Italians and the Germans (not the nations "Italy" and "Germany," which are very new), with much older histories than our own, have been able to throw overboard every embarrassing tradition and enter into the new game with enthusiasm and intelligence.

Diplomatic Representation Also Declared Inadequate.

IN ADDITION TO popular apathy and ignorance and to the strong hold of tradition which deter us as a people from supporting a program of cultural rapprochement along the lines laid down by the State Department, or from goading the State Department and the businessman into doing their share, is another problem difficult of solution as conditions now are.

Our consular and diplomatic representation in Latin America, though tremendously improved, is unequipped to play the cultural game by tradition, by the character of its personnel and by its historical function. The service has been built up to serve certain ends and was never intended for anything but what it now is, a well-functioning body of men and women who gather data and statistics, who study and report on political and social trends, who perform numberless routine functions connected with people, passengers and pests. But the American consul or ambassador who lands into Latin-American society and into the confidence of its intellectuals, on his own merits, is still the exception, and this fact gives the nations with better diplomatic representation an edge on the United States, with calculable and incalculable advantages that are enormous.

A concrete illustration will help. The Consul General of Japan has just left his post in the City of Sao Paulo, Brazil, on his way to the foreign office in Tokyo via the United States. In the last 11 years he has won for himself and for Japan a host of friends who will always think of Japan in the terms of its consul in the 1926-1937 years.

Perhaps the illustration discourages the objection that linguistic and cultural barriers are against the American representative. The Japanese language is much farther removed from Portuguese than English, the ethnic barrier is far greater and the resistance of the Japanese as a whole is much stronger. Yet the right man in the right place transposed all these obstacles and won for himself and his country a hearing and a following from which his country can only profit.

North America Described Forced To Play New Rules.

THE TRUTH of the matter is that we North Americans must play the game according to the new rules whether we like it or not. They have been made and have been practiced by our commercial and diplomatic competitors. If it is necessary to reform our whole consular service or to add new elements to it this must be done if we would maintain not only our present status but our future interests in Latin America.

The actual interests are big enough to warrant a revamping of all our preconceived ideas about diplomatic behavior and activity. But we need not be concerned with our interests in Latin America, present or future, to study the whole problem with infinite care and thoroughness. What happens in and to Latin America, as a result of the new intellectual imperialism of non-American ideologies and nations, will vitally affect the course of our internal and international evolution.

All the recent diplomacy of the United States has been postulated on the premise that Latin-American good will and certain conditions in Latin America are necessary to our safety and welfare. We have been building, with the cooperation of most of Latin America, an all-American system—neither Communist nor Fascist; pacific and not martial; with relatively free trade between its parts—where freedom and not regimentation reigns. We are promoting military cooperation and have loosened the treaty and military ties which bound certain dangerous strategic areas into our system.

All of this has done away with the material bonds and left the more binding ones of confidence and mutual trust. But that has increased our vulnerability. The Europeans and Asiatics, moved by need or greed, have pushed their cultural guns deep into Latin America; and unless we follow up the gains of the peace conference and the implications of our new "good neighbor policy" by a constant, persistent and supremely intelligent promotion of a cultural program we may rue the day when we removed our Marines from nations near our borders. Without American competition on that frontier the competitors of the United States will swallow up the Latin-American world and mock at the United States and funnier and more tragic things than that have happened in the last ten years.

Unless they are incredibly stupid the European system must pay. It is hardly conceivable that they would spend millions of dollars on programs of cultural rapprochement because of their desire to help the Latin-Americans. This is one instance where the peace-loving American public can prevent Ethiopian and Chinese episodes by using the same arms as those who would "Ethiopianize" Latin America. And there they can be used peacefully to promote peace. These are cultural influences. The comparison to events in Africa and the Far East is not so far-fetched as many might believe. It's a new way of achieving material and military advantage. But it can be used just as well to achieve material and moral gain.

China Letter

By Ronald Rees

A Missionary Viewpoint.

Editor's Note: The following is an extract from a letter just received in Washington from an Englishman who is one of the secretaries of the National Christian Council in Shanghai.

I DO NOT think I have met any Chinese who is not convinced that one act of aggression after another over a period of years has been met with patience and real efforts at conciliation (if only because China was not ready), but the breaking point came at last. There was no other way. There are, of course, some fire-eaters whose patience was exhausted long ago. Chiang Kai-shek has had his troubles with them. But the vast majority supported Chiang. Very reluctantly they have been forced into this position. Being in, they mean to see it through.

There is abroad a quiet determination. People are calm, not emotional or loud-mouthed. I do not recall any noisy demonstrations. The younger folk have been singing patriotic Chinese songs. Martial music comes over the radio. But the sense of what they are up against has been very sobering.

Among refugees the spirit of patience and fortitude is amazing. Otherwise this International Settlement would have been in an uproar. I believe evacuation of foreigners in Shanghai was urged by the British and American authorities in the fear of some Chinese uprising, or of an attempt to rush the Settlement, either to attack the Japanese or to murder us all.

The self-control and discipline of Chinese soldiers and civilians alike has made that fear seem rather foolish. Of course, under heavy defeat any people will lose their self-control, and perhaps it was thought there would be a quick and heavy defeat of the Chinese armies. If so, that again was a miscalculation as far as the fighting here is concerned. The chief danger will be of some breakdown under prolonged strain, or of a turning against all foreigners if we should seem to be taking the side of Japan in our desire to get the fighting away from the Shanghai area so that we can go on with our trade.

* * * *

THE SPIRIT of mutual helpfulness has been impressive. Chinese organizations of all kinds have given unstintingly of money and service. The young Boy Scouts helping at Red Cross hospitals and with refugees have delighted everyone by their fine spirit which shows no flagging. Doctors and nurses have in many cases been giving their services free. Teachers are carrying on schools for half their salary or no salary at all. When those bombs dropped in Shanghai, Mr. Baxter, of the Lester Hospital, reported that ricksha coolies brought in blood-soaked victims and went off without a thought of collecting any fares.

Never before in China's history can there have been anything like the present dislocation of population. Hundreds of thousands of people have been uprooted. There has been an immense trek away from cities of the coast into quiet villages. People have left Shanghai for Ningpo and Hangchow and then on into the country. Soochow went to the villages. Nanking people have gone up the Yangtze Valley; 10,000 of them are said to have gone to Hofei, a city in Anhwei.

Northerners have gone to Sian, Hankow, Changsha; and many of them on farther. Some central government organizations are established in Changsha, e. g. the ministry of industries and the central military academy. Three universities have joined in one institution there—Tsinghua, Peking National University (Peita) and Nankai. I think we may expect to see the tide rolling on to Szechwan, Kweichow, Kwangsi and Yunnan.

* * * *

WHAT EFFECT will these movements have on the people of China and their future?

In the first place, ordinary men and women (not just students and intellectuals) are conscious as never before of a national emergency and its cause. Those who have had to move and those among whom they come are developing certain attitudes toward Japan which it takes little imagination to understand.

Secondly, national unity is being extended and deepened by the common bond of suffering. The Communists of China have sunk their differences with Nanking and have put the national cause first; it is a rapprochement from both sides.

In the third place the intellectual leaders of China had been chiefly in the coastal provinces. Many are now going far inland, and that may mean much both to them and to those among whom they take up their new abode, perhaps for an extended period. The modernizing and Westernizing process is bound to be hastened in central and western China. That is one reason why our Christian witness, through church and school and hospital, should be not only maintained but developed.

* * * *

WHAT HAS just been said opens up vistas of thought. The people staying in coastal provinces are going to need the most tender and faithful support. So, also, those in the northern provinces torn away from the main body and under foreign (and probably ruthless) domination, if the experience of Korea and Manchuria means anything. But the center and west of China are going to be open in new ways, for there the heart and mind of China may be centered.

A recent letter from a colleague in Nanking has intensified the sense of need and opportunity. He points out that many refugees and those they leave behind are going to be homeless or unemployed and will provide first-class material for banditry unless a scheme for work relief or establishing them on the land is thought out on a national scale.

Again, China's industrial equipment is not being moved inland fast enough to prevent destruction. The economic situation will be further aggravated if markets are disorganized and farmers plant less when they should be planting more at a time when imported foodstuffs cannot be brought in. There is a real danger of famine ahead. Even existing stocks of foodstuffs will need careful conserving and distributing.

* * * *

IT LOOKS as if God were giving our Christian community a task of immense importance—to assist in the effort to think and plan for the economic life of the people, to keep hospitals and medical supplies at full strength, to maintain all the Christian schools we can, and above all to bring the message of faith and hope and love to those who will stand in need of it more and more.

This is the task of the Christian Church in China, and it will be the sacred task of the older churches of the West, through those whom they have sent to represent them in this country, to rise to this magnificent challenge in what is, beyond all doubt, a veritable Day of the Lord.

Let us pray for China and for one another day by day with these things in mind.

Learns It's Tough To Go Straight.

"I'M NOT going back," the kid said.

"You've told us that before, Willie," Dr. Nolan said.

"I think I mean it this time," the kid said. "And I'm not fooling. They haven't made a better man of me. I'm not reformed. I haven't been made over."

TOM McCARTHY.

He was a youngster in his early twenties. And he had just been released from prison. He sat in the office of Dr. James Allan Nolan, director of the Washington Criminal Justice Association.

"You tell me you're not going back, Willie," Dr. Nolan said, "but you've told us that before. And when you were picked up again in a couple of months, you just said that 'you blew your top.'"

"I'm through this time, Doc," the kid said. "And I know why I'm through. I don't like the smell of the place. I'm sick of the prison smell!"

The kid's long face hardened and his nostrils whitened and he began to breathe hard.

"I'm sick of prison smells," he said. "I'm sick of long dormitories and the stench of men. I'm sick of lying down at night on a double-decked cot, in a room with 150 others. I'm sick of what I saw when I woke up in the morning."

The kid's gaze didn't flinch as he eyed Dr. Nolan across the table. He was a neat youngster, clean shaven and with carefully parted hair. His words came out one at a time and there was a hardness in the tone.

"I'm not going back to prison this time," he said. "Not because any social worker uplifted me, nor because any minister reformed me. I'm just sick of the prison smell!"

Then he fumbled around for his hat, shook hands with Dr. Nolan and left. He was on his way to Philadelphia. He wanted to get a job.

* * * *

WHEN DR. NOLAN came back to his desk, he didn't say anything for a while. He just sat there, and though he is a young man his face was serious.

"What're his chances, Doc?" I asked him.

"I've only heard one other man say it in just those words," Dr. Nolan said, "and he went straight."

"He was an 'easy money' man. He had his racket. He left his family and then came a stretch in jail. When he came out, he told me, just about as the kid did, that he was 'sick of the smell of prison.'

"But there was one difference in his case. When he came out, he had a friend who got him a job. He made good on that job. Now he has a half a dozen fine references behind him. His present employer has no idea that he's hiring a one time stick-up man."

"Well, that first job shouldn't be too hard to get, Doc," I said. "How will people know the kid has done a stretch?"

Dr. Nolan didn't say anything right off. He just lit a cigarette and looked at me hard.

"Let me give you a little background about the kid," he said, "before you talk about how easy it's going to be for him to get that first job."

* * * *

DR. NOLAN told me something of the kid's background. Willie had been raised in an orphanage. He had no living relatives. His high school education had been limited to a couple of years. But Dr. Nolan assured me that he was a perfectly normal boy.

"He did one stretch," Dr. Nolan said, "came out and got a job. When he lost the job he went on the road. Then one day he 'blew his top' and went up again for armed robbery.

"He's been in prison for about three years now," Dr. Nolan said, "and he's going out to start over again."

I asked Dr. Nolan why the kid was going to Philadelphia to find his job.

"He hasn't any friends there," Dr. Nolan told me, "but he figures he'll have a better chance of finding work. It's a big town."

"And what are his chances, Doc?"

"He has $25," Dr. Nolan told me. "Money saved, after three years in prison. In order to save that $25 he had to give up cigarettes. And tobacco is one of the few joys left when you're in the pen.

"In order to save every cent possible toward his new try at living in organized society, he's even carried along his prison toothbrush. He couldn't afford to put out a quarter for a new one.

"But the lack of friends and money aren't as likely to whip him as the trouble of getting that first job. He can't go in and ask for a job just as you would. There's a little thing called a Social Security number that's going to pin him down.

"When they ask for his number, he'll have to admit that he hasn't one. They'll ask where he's been for the last few years. If he tells them, there probably won't be any job.

* * * *

"WE DON'T MAKE them wear stripes in prison, any more," Dr. Nolan said. "We wait until they get back into society before we brand them."

"Do you think he'll make it, Doc," I asked.

"Forty per cent of them make the grade," Dr. Nolan told me. "He's a bright enough kid, and I'd say a fairly normal one. He belongs in that 40 per cent. And he does have one asset that counts."

"What's that, Doc?"

Dr. Nolan's lips creased in a thin line as he said, "I believe he meant it . . . meant that he was sick of the smell of prison."

Ickes Denounces Walton League as 'Pressure Lobby'

By the Associated Press.

Secretary Ickes denounced the Izaac Walton League "as a pressure lobby for undisclosed interests" yesterday because the league circularized its membership to oppose transfer of Federal conservation agencies to the Interior Department in the President's reorganization bill.

Ickes is a member of the league and an outspoken advocate of the reorganization bill centralizing Federal conservation activities in the Interior Department.

Replying to the league circular, which contended the conservation agencies should be left in the Agriculture Department, the Secretary said:

"On the face of the record the Izaak Walton League of America, through a usurpation of power by a few of its officers, would seem to be fronting for and is being used as a pressure lobby for undisclosed interests."

Harlan MILLER Over the Coffee

Copyright, 1937, by The Washington Post.

As President Roosevelt says, the movies and the radio have come to be powerful enlightening forces in public affairs, to a point where it's scarcely necessary for a free citizen to be able to read.

* * * *

The movies do it with news reels, in which a statesman sits at his imposing desk and reads off for the sound camera a high-falutin' statement in big type held by a subordinate out of range of the camera, at which our hero glances coyly from time to time.

* * * *

Movie audiences are held spellbound in such close-ups by the up-and-down action of the statesman's Adams' Apple and by the acrobatics of the mole on his nose, and nothing comes between the statesman's charm and the eye of the beholder.

Via radio the listener is thrilled by the genuine, unadulterated voice of the statesman, not a recording, without the sobering influence of cold type to minimize the warm lilt in his voice or the splendor of the pneumatic personality behind it. His charm is undiluted, unedited.

* * * *

* * * *

But the candid camera needs a little help from our hero, the statesman, to clarify what he has in mind . . . Alas, a Senator worrying about his golf score looks just like a Senator worrying about Japan.

To show what's really on his mind, a Senator making a speech about the wages and hours bill should hold a clock in one hand, a pay envelope in the other and a dinner bucket in his teeth.

* * * *

Mr. Roosevelt has never got it across with 100 per cent lucidity how stupid his opposition is, because he has never been photographed in the act of putting a dunce cap on a heckler or on one of the stubborn irreconcilables whose little minds do not go along evenly with his.

* * * *

And these indomitable chaps who defend the Constitution day and night—why not photograph them holding the scroll in one hand and a sword or a megaphone in the other—why wait until they die to pose their statues in this attitude?

"—the charm is undiluted"

Life in the Capital would be infinitely more fascinating if every actor on the Washington stage were made up for his photographic role.

* * * *

Mr. Roosevelt menacingly waving a silk hat as a symbol of the economic royalists—no; that won't do: it might look like his own hat.

* * * *

Yes, the camera must be helped as an educational force . . . A series of signals must be worked out to add significance to the Republic's important faces . . . (After all, there isn't much difference in the facial expressions of Senators Burke or McNary denouncing an Administration bill and Senators Barkley or McKellar defending one.)

A horizontal finger at the nose to register dubiety; a wink to denote inflexible principle; thumb-biting to signify contempt . . .

That's one way to pep up the candid camera, make it as educational as radio and the movies. Every member's secretary must become a make-up artist.

Several Senators gossiped about a new Roosevelt-Farley spat on the hill yesterday . . . G. O. P. secret service men "dug up" the rumor and are spreading it . . . Alf Landon is rumored telling the tale to his buddies with some glee . . . Cited reason: disagreement about Mr. Farley's political dreams . . . Other members called the tale absurd.

Those new Army-Navy football tickets distributed this week are among the gaudiest bits of lithographing seen in the Capital in years . . . In gold, silver and three colors, and lush with eagles, ships, swords, and helmets. . . . This puts the Army and Navy one up on Sol Bloom, the glorifier of George Washington.

Gangster's Kin Seized Here, Charged With Bribing Police

CHARLES TORRE.

Charles Torre, alias Charles Lamar, 46-year-old underworld character, was arrested by detectives last night and charged with bribing a police officer. Bond was set at $15,000.

Torre, said to run a gambling establishment in the 1100 block of Thirteenth street northwest, fell victim to a trap set by Carl A. Sierk, plainclothesman attached to the Second Precinct vice squad, and Lieut. Floyd Truscott, of the special investigations squad.

He was arrested on a street corner near his gambling house just after he was alleged to have given Sierk $30 for "protection." The arrest was made by Truscott and Detective Sergts. Earl Hartman and Eldon Hawley, who hid nearby until Sierk gave a prearranged signal to indicate that the transaction was complete.

According to Sierk, Torre approached him several days ago and offered to pay him $60 a month for not interfering with the Thirteenth street establishment which, disguised as a novelty shop, allegedly serves as a headquarters for placing numbers and racing bets. Sierk reported the matter to Truscott and the two arranged the trap.

Torre, who has served a sentence in Pennsylvania for receiving stolen property, is said to have been employed at Jimmy LaFontaine's gambling house in Prince Georges County. Recently, police said, he has gone into business for himself and has operated several gambling establishments here.

Police said Torre is a brother-in-law of "Tony the Stinger" Cugino, notorious racketeer who killed himself in his New York City jail cell after he had been arrested for a series of 12 murders, including that of Allan B. Wilson, Washington newspaper route agent.

Truscott declared that Torre's arrest may have "further ramifications," but refused to reveal their exact nature. Sierk was personally commended by Maj. Ernest W. Brown, superintendent of police.

Chest Attains 60 Per Cent Of Its Goal

The Community Chest reached 60 per cent of its goal yesterday as soliciting units reported 14,548 contributions amounting to $120,985.39, making a total to date of 95,968 contributions for $1,235,831.14.

Yesterday's reports brought the Special Assignments Group up to 375 contributions amounting to $372,639, or 65.2 per cent of its quota; Group Solicitation unit, 26,315 contributions, totaling $225,707.01, or 53.38 of its goal; Government unit, 73,785 contributions for $495,533.28, or 63.94 per cent of its quota; Metropolitan unit, 6,988 contributions amounting to $121,025.72, or 60.01 per cent of its quota; Suburban unit, 2,071 contributions for $17,199.38, or 22.93 per cent of its quota, and Capital unit, 692 pledges, amounting to $3,984.50, or 39.84 per cent of its quota.

Newbold Noyes, former campaign manager and former president of the Community Chest, will preside as chairman at today's report meeting in the Willard Hotel.

Presiding at yesterday's meeting was Coleman Jennings, last year's campaign chairman.

"The Chest is making fine progress," asserted Herbert L. Willett, jr., director, last night, "but it must continue to progress at the same rate if we are to accomplish the task for which the campaign was launched. That means Washington must contribute the full $2,059,000 for which the 69 agencies are asking as a minimum to carry on their programs."

Sacks Urges D.C. Privilege Tax Renewal

Pennsylvania Democrat Suggests Raising Gasoline Levy Also.

Renewal of the business privilege tax with modifications and an increase in the gasoline levy to two cents were urged yesterday by Representative Sacks (Democrat), of Pennsylvania, a member of the House District Committee.

He suggested that the initial exemption from the gross receipts tax might be raised from $2,000 to $5,000 in order to relieve the small merchant and professional man.

The tax structure of the District comes up for discussion tonight when the Board of Trade meets at 8 p. m. in the Willard Hotel.

The District Commissioners are expected to speak on problems of the coming fiscal year, and E. F. Colladay, president of the Board of Trade and former president of the Federation of Citizens Associations, will voice the opinions of Washington business and professional men.

Senators To Attend.

Among those who will hear the discussion will be Senator Elmer Thomas (Democrat), of Oklahoma, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee for the District of Columbia, Senator William H. King (Democrat), of Utah, chairman of the Senate District Committee, and Representative Vincent L. Palmisano (Democrat), of Maryland.

Another speaker will be G. R. Parker, regional director of the Social Security Board, who will explain methods now used in filing returns. A report on the program of Capt. H. C. Whitehurst for street and bridge development will be given by George V. Graham, chairman of the board's committee on streets and avenues. The meeting will be preceded by a dinner in honor of the District Commissioners.

Seal to Offer Bills.

Further discussion of the annual revenue problem will take place at 2 p. m. Tuesday in a joint meeting Committee and their Citizens Ad- of the District Commissioner's Tax visory Committee.

Corporation Counsel Elwood H. Seal will present the group with a number of tentative tax measures to meet the proposed $50,000,000 budget for 1939.

The Commissioners' tax committee is composed of Daniel J. Donovan, budget officer; H. C. Whitehurst, director of highways; Corporation Counsel Seal, Assessor Fred D. Allen, Chatham M. Towers, tax collector, and Richmond B. Keech, P. U. C. vice chairman.

Members of the citizens' advisory committee are Mrs. Lloyd W. Biddle, District Federation of Women's Clubs; Edgar Morris, sr., Board of Trade; Rufus S. Lusk, Washington Taxpayers Assoication; Prof. Charles M. Thomas, Federation of Civic Associations; Mrs. Harry Lee Parkinson, Voteless D. C. League of Woman Voters; Joseph H. Batt, Federation of Business Men's Association, and L. A. Carruthers, president of the Federation of Citizens Association.

Author Claims Spending Path To Prosperity,

Coyle Warns of Peril in Boom Methods Which Were Used in 1921.

Any attempt to halt the present business recession by the methods of 1921 would plunge the Nation, after "three or four years of boom," into a "smash-up worse than that of 1929," David Cushman Coyle, author-economist, last night told the inaugural meeting of the George Washington University Student Union.

"The only way to get into prosperity is to spend money," he said, "and the only way to stay in is to go on spending. We are destroying our capital assets for the sake of balancing our bookkeeping assets."

The first duty of the Government is to direct its economic policy toward the building of a strong Nation and a strong people. He advocated putting a large share of the United States income into the conservation of the country's natural and human resources, which, he held, are being rapidly dissipated through misuse and neglect.

Three Handbags, $190 in Doctor's Equipment Stolen

Theft of $190 worth of doctor's equipment, 3 pocketbook snatchings and one attempted holdup were reported to police yesterday.

Dr. Frank Wilson, 1400 M street northwest, reported the loss of his equipment from his car parked in front of his home.

In the pocketbook snatchings Mrs. Holmes Dawes, 1630 R street northwest, lost $22 and personal papers. Loss of $15 was reported by Catherine R. Steffens, 37 Seaton place northwest. Marie L. Meyer, 2013 New Hampshire avenue northwest, said her hand bag, containing $11, and $70 in postal savings certificates, was snatched.

James A. Garrett, 1810 Fifth street northwest, reported that two young men entered his store, both pointing guns at him, but were scared off by passers-by.

Woman, 64, Is Felled By Hit-and-Run Driver

Mary A. Wiedemann, 64, of 220 C street northwest, was at Casualty Hospital last night, victim of a hit-and-run motorist who struck her at D and Third streets northwest. She suffered bruises and head injuries.

Woman Forgets $1,100 Cache, but Detectives Find It

House hunting yesterday in the 3500 block of Holmead place, Mrs. Mattie Hartley, 2503 Fourteenth street northwest, cached her purse in machinery in a basement and forgot it there. The handbag contained $1,100 in $50 and $100 bills, receipts from sale of her boarding house.

Mrs. Hartley looked over several more houses before missing her purse. There was another tour before Detectives Earl Baker and T. Sweeney could locate the missing $1,100.

District Opens Sanitary Drive In Restaurants

Food Inspection Director Tells Operators How to Meet Standards.

Microbe hunters of the District Health Department inaugurated a drive yesterday destined to improve sanitary conditions in Washington restaurants and beer parlors.

As the first step, 40 restaurant men met in the ABC board room at receive instructions from Dr. R. R. the District Building yesterday to Ashworth, Director, Food Inspection Service, in methods to keep their business on a par with health standards.

"Restaurant men are coming to me asking for instruction on how to keep an eating house up to the standards of the Health Department," Dr. Ashworth said. "My answer is that the employer should train his employes on sanitation. We have added specialists to our staff who will give instructions and help develop courses for food handlers with the co-operation of sincere eating house operators. The careless and sloppy food dispenser will not be given a license."

Development of a new scoring system for restaurants recently by Dr. Ashworth has been responsible for a substantial decrease of the bacteria count on utensils used by consumers in eating houses.

"Many restaurant and beer parlor patrons are ingesting about half a million less germs per unit area of dish used (the unit area is four square inches of surface on a dish) as compared with their bacterial consumption before the new scoring system was introduced November 1," stated Dr. Ashworth.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, District Health Officer, hastily added, "the day of the germless meal has not come to pass, however."

"Don't be so finicky, my dear," replied the guppy. "I've been entered in the Fifth Annual Exhibit of the National Aquarium Society."

Hundreds of pet fish in the District have been placed in the three-day show, which Director Fred Orsinger predicted last night would be the greatest in the history of the society.

The doors will open in the aquarium at the Commerce Department this morning at 9.

Approximately 100 entries of guppies have been made. There are another 100 entries of minute fish from the waters of the world.

Some of the most unusual pets entered include the African eel, the leaf fish, the knife fish, the neon fish, the nest builder and the mouth breeder.

The leaf fish clings to the banks of the Upper Amazon, in South America, or floats, resembling a leaf, upon the water until he traps his prey.

As for the nest builders, they encase their young in bubbles and blow them to the surface, a practice, Orsinger said, probably originated back in the mists of time, when the water receded, and millions of them were forced to exist in the mud.

Among the most conscientious fish are the mouth breeders. About 3 inches long, they are models of piscine domesticity. They swim in the Nile. The father and the mother hold eggs in their mouths until they are hatched. The infants return when danger is near.

Three Siamese fighting fish have been entered by Dr. Paul Bowman, professor of biology at George Washington University. Desk Sergt. John L. Magnus, of Detective Headquarters, has entered guppies.

Banquet for Archbishop.

The League of Laymen's Retreats will tender its ninth annual banquet to the Most Rev. Michael J. Curley, Archbishop of Baltimore, at 7 p. m. January 18 in the main ballroom of the Mayflower, it was announced last night after a meeting of the Washington section of the league. Last night's meeting was conducted by Charles P. Maloney, president of the Washington section.

Carol Rehearsals Begun.

The National Capital Parks Scola Cantorum last night began rehearsals for the concert of Christmas carols to be sung at the national community Christmas tree in Lafayette Park December 24. Rehearsals will be held every Wednesday evening until Christmas Eve in room 905 at 1317 F street northwest, announced C. Marshall Finnan, National Capital Parks superintendent.

Tricky Doings Mark New Film At RKO-Keith's

'Dinner at Ritz' Offers Annabella in Clever Melodrama.

By Nelson B. Bell.

"DINNER AT THE RITZ." New World production for distribution by Twentieth Century-Fox of a screen play by Roland Pertwee and Romney Brent, starring Annabella, with Paul Lukas, David Niven, Romney Brent, Francis L. Sullivan, Stewart Rome, Frederick Leister, William Dagharat, Tyrell Davis, Vivienne Chatterton, Ronald Skinner, Norah Swinburne and Ralph Truman. Directed by Harold D. Schuster. Reviewed Thursday afternoon at RKO-Keith's Theater.

That fabulous diamond necklace, ostensibly the last of the family heirlooms, is at the bottom of the melodramatic development revealed in this picture of intrigue and impeded romance in Paris, on the Riviera and in a handsome array of swank hotels, swagger restaurants and obscure houseboats.

There has been a bond deception, a bank failure and a sudden death or two when Ranie Racine decides to put things right by running down the culprits who brought all this havoc upon the name and house of her father. Her methods are unique, with gambling table backgrounds, and involve the shrewd activities of a gem merchant who utilizes her penchant for losing large sums by making her a sort of "beauty-in-distress" decoy whose desperate straits will induce the sympathetic rich to buy her jewels to prevent her jumping off the deep end or gazing down the barrel of a high-caliber pistol. She confounds the plans momentarily by winning huge sums.

Stars French Beauty.

It is all a little on the side of the unbelievable, but has been contrived with such cleverness and intricate convolutions and involutions of plot as to awaken and hold a considerable audience interest. Much of the play's fascination, of course, is due to the plaintive ingenuousness of its stellar feminine figure, the young French actress known only by the name of Annabella and perhaps best remembered for her earlier performance in "Wings of the Morning."

"Dinner at the Ritz"—it is on that occasion that the thoroughly satisfactory denouement of the picture is celebrated—is the third vehicle produced by Twentieth Century-Fox's European subsidiary and presents Annabella in the most "Americanized" of her roles. There are times when this young and talented beauty betrays momentarily likenesses to both Mary Pickford and Constance Cummings and her speech is surprisingly like Dolores Del Rio's. Her work is marked by a fine repression and quite obvious versatility. In the present subject, for example, she impersonates both a Spanish Marchesa and an East Indian princess, in addition to being the exquisite Ranie. It is the purpose of the plot, rather than any fault, of her own, that these heavy disguises be immediately penetrated by all of her friends. She is gorgeously gowned and in one scene appears to no mean advantage in a bathing suit—part of a scheme to secure the letter that will clear the name of her father and disclose the identities of the six crooks she seeks.

Support Is Capable.

The male roles are in uniformly competent hands. Paul Lukas, David Niven and Romney Brent, the last named co-author of the play, with Roland Pertwee, carry the brunt of the battle of wits, with Francis L. Sullivan lending the most valuable support.

Among the subsidiary attractions on the new bill opening yesterday at RKO-Keith's is Walt Disney's "The Old Mill," the Silly Symphony series, executed in Technicolor and considered here last week as a feature of the preceding program at the same house. It is worth holding over. Another of the major supplementaries is "Rhythm in a Night Court," a camera vaudeville show, introducing such notables as Sylvia Manon and company, adagio dancers; Harry Rose, the "Broadway Jester," who presides as judge and was recently seen in person on a local stage; Sid Marion, dialectician; Al Berne, impersonator, and others of equal rating.

The Pathe News, featuring the opening of Congress in special session, is a further auxiliary of a feature that makes no pretensions beyond being agreeably entertaining.

Columbia

Resuming its tenure of an F street screen after a successful earlier engagement, "The Prisoner of Zenda" yesterday opened at Loew's Columbia Theater as chief feature of the pre-Thanksgiving bill.

In this latest utilization of the famous Anthony Hope romantic novel as a basis of spectacular and thrilling camera entertainment, the stellar role is played by Ronald Colman in the dual assignment of Rudolph Rassendyll and King Rudolf V. Princess Flavia is impersonated by Madeleine Carroll, one of the cinema's most beautiful actresses, with C. Aubrey Smith, David Nivel, Douglas Fairbanks, jr., Mary Astor and Raymond Massey in supporting parts of prime importance.

The production is by far the most elaborate and the most magnificent this old favorite story ever has been accorded on the silver sheet. While its major scenes are staged with imposing sumptuousness, they never are permitted to overshadow the tale of intrigue, perfidy and adventure so familiar to seasoned theatergoers since the late James K. Hackett first introduced it to the living theater back around the turn of the century.

Playing with utmost repression, as is his wont, Ronald Colman creates a fine figure of a man to double in the famous central roles of the play. Miss Carroll is a perfect foil for his subdued methods. Color and sinister import are communicated to their roles by the younger Fairbanks and Mr. Massey, as Rupert of Hentzau and "Black Michael," plotters for the throne, respectively. Mary Astor and David Niven—Mr. Niven also being visible on another local screen this week in "Dinner at the Ritz"—together with C. Aubrey Smith, lend added distinction to a cast that is virtually beyond reproach.

Photographically and in the matter of direction, "Zenda" is impressive.

Nelson B. Bell About The Showshops

Those Early 'Super-Colossals' Compare Favorably With First Locomotives, Telephones or Steamships

Film Society's Initial Program of Screen Antiques Was Not as Funny as It Might Have Been; Wynn's Show Eludes Washington; Mr. Vivian Guest of Honor; Sidney Howard a Possible Visitor.

BELL.

WHILE they presented an unparalleled opportunity for friendly scoffing when flashed upon the screen a quarter of a century after their production in the swaddling-clothes days of the motion picture industry, the antique films chosen by the Film Society of Washington for its first of ten programs, in the Rialto Theater on Wednesday night, still unmistakably traced the origins of the practices that are yet the basic principles of successful picture-making.

In the D. W. Griffith, Thomas H. Ince and Mack Sennett "features" that were projected before an audience that found them immensely amusing were disclosed the first authentic employment of close-ups, diffused action and story narration in shadows that foretold the future possibilities of a new medium of dramatic expression. To be sure, there were no very elaborate sets and the lighting facilities seemed to be provided by a single candle, but at least coherent—even if extremely feeble—stories were told understandably.

It must be borne in mind that not only was the theory of picture creation in its formative state back in the early nineteen-teens, but the mechanical and scientific potentialities of the "art" had not yet been guessed, even by the most far-sighted of the pioneers. There is no harm in recalling in this connection that the first telephone was no model by which to estimate either the efficiency or the later development of a present-day indispensable means of communication. By the same token, the first steam locomotive, the first steamboat and the first automobile—not to mention the Wright Brothers' first glorified kite—gave scant indication of the luxury and speed of modern travel.

Those early movies, as a matter of fact, were not so bad as pioneering efforts go. In their day, of course, they were the last word in unbelievable perfection. It would have been a little more on the side of fair play if later Griffith, Ince and Sennett productions might have been shown on the same bill Wednesday night—"The Birth of a Nation," "Civilization" and "Cross Roads of New York," for example.

On second thought, it might be wiser not to rely too much on a hazy memory. They might have been funny, too—barring, of course, "The Birth of a Nation." I somehow doubt that that one ever will be looked upon as a joke.

• • • •

Incidentally, "The New York Hat," "The Fugitive," "The Clever Dummy" and "A Fool There Was" might have been much funnier than they were Wednesday night had not precautionary measures been taken to insure their proper projection. Modern projection machines, designed to accommodate the peculiar requirements of perfected tempo, and the sound track, too, run at a far higher rate of speed than the old "handgrinders" of the early silent days. Before presenting the film society's program, the lads in the booth found it necessary to brake their projectors down to an approximation of the old days' running velocity. If they hadn't, there really would have been something to laugh at.

Taking his typewriter on his lap in the office of the Orpheum Theater in Minneapolis, Minn., Master Norman W. Pyle, wiggle-picture exploiteer de luxe, one-fingers a few lines to intercede on behalf of "To Be Continued," the new stage comedy to be given its premiere at the National on Monday night, with Luella Gear in the stellar role, Morris Green, one of the producers, it seems, is one of Old Doctor Pyle's closest friends. The good doctor need have no fear. If "To Be Continued" is a good show, we shall say so. That goes in reverse, too.

But what is Mr. Pyle doing way out there in Minneapolis? By his own words, he is out there "doing" Fred Astaire's new picture, "A Damsel in Distress," although how or why, is something else again. On that point deponent sayeth naught, although one suspects that the Astaire opus has been booked into a considerable passel of Loew time and Mr. Pyle merely neglected to give us the Loewdown.

It begins to appear as if that Ed Wynn "Hooray for What" title would have to be erased from the National's booking sheets for a while or two. Instead of being kept on the road, the piece is deemed ready for Broadway on the strength of its Philadelphia showing. There seems to be a musical jinx on this town this season. The Shuberts probably will remedy that if we just give them time. If they don't send in "The Student Prince," it's a cinch they will "Blossom Time!"

Mrs. Abner Bernard Drury has sent out cards for a pouring next Tuesday afternoon at 4, with George Vivian as honor guest. Mr. Vivian, an old practitioner in the theater and now director of Stephen E. Cochran's National Academy of Dramatic Art, will precede the orange pekoe in "Stage Reminiscences," of which he has a hatful.

• • • •

It ought to be quite a night tonight at Loew's Capitol Theater. In view of the excellence and authenticity of "Navy Blue and Gold," the best picture ever made with a United States Naval Academy background, the management has invited the highest ranking officials and officers of the Navy Department to be its guests, from Secretary of the Navy Swanson down. Also present will be the executive council of the Naval Academy Association of the District and Commander Harvey Haislip, U. S. N., retired, who served as technical adviser for M-G-M while the picture was being made.

• • • •

And that isn't all. Continuing its observance of weekly football nights, the Capitol also will be host to the coaching staffs and varsity squads of Georgetown and Maryland universities. Don't stop yet. Representatives of Washington's Football Writers Association, who will cover the Army-Navy game—one of them is played as the climax of the picture—also will be on hand.

It would be a good night not to start anything!

• • • •

It is reliably reported that Sidney Howard, author of "The Ghost of Yankee Doodle," at the National, and "Yellow Jack," being presented by the Washington Civic Theater, at Wardman Park, hopes to be in Washington this week-end and catch a performance of each of his plays. "Yellow Jack" is hailed on all sides as the best play and the finest production the Civic group has offered. We have already committed ourselves on "The Ghost." "Yellow Jack," by the way, will be presented through Sunday night.

• • • •

Officer-Call-the-Padded-Wagon Note.

It is a significant and happy circumstance that nobody at Wardman Wednesday evening found any excuse for bawlin' the "Jack!"

Little

One of George Arliss' distinguished contributions to the cinema's gallery of historical figures was returned to the screen at the Little Theater yesterday for a three-day engagement, when "The Iron Duke" was revived to run through tomorrow.

In this subject, the illustrious British actor assumes the role of Wellington, who defeated Napoleon at Waterloo. Essentially historical drama, produced on a scale commensurate with the importance of the story, "The Iron Duke," nevertheless, embodies much that was designed solely for purposes of superior entertainment. It contains three scenes of unusual note—the far-flung spectacle of the Duchess of Richmond's ball, from which the English officers slipped away, one at a time; the charge of the Scots Greys and Highlanders at Waterloo and Wellington's defense in the House of Lords when attacked by Lord Grey for not having secured indemnities for England.

These are the sort of things Arliss does best. While not, perhaps, the ideal physical embodiment of Wellington, he still encompasses the intellectual stature and military acumen of the character he impersonates. The supporting cast is a long and brilliant one, including Gladys Cooper, Ellaline Terriss, A. E. Mathews, Emlyn Williams, Felix Aylmer, Frederick Leister, Norma Varden and many more better known in Europe than on this side.

Romance at the Naval Academy

In Hollywood

With JIMMY FIDLER

Hollywood, Nov. 18.—I do not pretend to know anything about the real facts concerned in George Brent's rather messy court battle with his wife, Constance Worth. Probably there is a lot to be said for and against both parties that has never found its way into the official legal records. But one thing is certain—George Brent is guilty of a supreme folly if he values his screen career.

STUART ERWIN.

Several months have passed since he filed his suit to annul that Mexican marriage. Wars, the football season and the Supreme Court controversy have come along to divert attention—and yet every woman I know is just as vitriolic in condemning George Brent as she was when his suit first made the headlines. Women seem to consider his action an unchivalrous attack on their kind and I have heard plenty of them vow they will never see another picture which offers Brent in its cast. Even the girls in his studio are unanimous in putting him on the pan.

Someone should have warned George about flouting American traditions. Maybe they did. Maybe he meant it when he told me, more than a year ago, that he "didn't give a hang" how soon he might be washed up on the screen. If he did not mean that, he should have tried to find some other way out of his matrimonial jam, for it begins to look very much as though the way he tried to take was professional suicide.

At RKO today I was introduced to a young lady named Becky Baer. She came to Hollywood several weeks ago from Oakland with the announced intention of "getting into pictures." Friends advised her to register with Central Casting; instead, she took her stand outside the main entrance of RKO, looked her pretty best and waited. She spent eight hours a day there for 12 days, and finally Howard Hawks, one of the studio's ace directors, noticed her. He arranged a test. It was a flop—a very dismal one. But this girl, not at all discouraged, then made her way to the office of Sam Briskin, the big boss, swept by his secretary—and gave him such a sales talk that he offered her a second test. It was a success and she signed a term contract. "I'm going to be a star some day," she told me—and I have a hunch she will be.

Set-visited with Stuart Erwin—and harvested a laugh, as usual. He told me about the swimming pool he is planning. Seems the blueprints were delivered the other evening and while he was going over them, an old-timer who used to own the one store in Squaw Valley, Calif., Stu's home village, dropped in. Stu spread out the blueprints, explained them and asked, with pardonable pride: "Some layout, eh? What do you think of it?" "Well," said the ancient family friend, "for a young squirt who used to take a weekly bath in his ma's galvanized wash tub, it ain't at all bad!"

Speaking of building things reminds me of Kay Linaker. A few days ago, she decided to have a cocktail bar built in her home. And when the two carpenters that she consulted quoted her a price of $75, she decided to take her trusty hammer and do the work herself. Yesterday I met her on the set and asked how the job had fared. "Oh, the job was easy," she said. "I had the lumber yard saw the wood to the exact dimensions and I built the whole thing for less than $15. But—and her expression grew tearful—this morning, when I was staining it, I spilled a whole can of varnish on the rug. It cost $275—and it's completely ruined."

Relief Expense Must Be Pared, Bankhead Says

Speaker Warns That Nation Can Not Live Forever Beyond Means.

Speaker William B. Bankhead last night warned the Nation it cannot live beyond its means, any more than can a corporation or an individual.

"A well managed Government," he said, "cannot do otherwise" than intelligent persons who, in a like situation, "so reorder operations as to fit expenditures to income. His remarks were considered significant, in the light of the recent "balance the budget" speech of Secretary Morgenthau, in New York, and other indications of Administration policy in late weeks.

The Speaker's remarks were made in the course of a speech pleading for Nation-wide co-operation in the unemployment census. He was joined on the program by Representative Sam Reyburn and Senators Barkley, of Kentucky, and Byrnes, of South Carolina, of his own party, and Republican leaders Charles L. McNary, of Oregon, for the Senate, and Bertrand Snell, of New York, for the House.

Utters Final Appeal.

A high point in the Speaker's address was his statement that while as "a generous people" Americans do not "compromise with business prudence," "we have now reached that point" where "we must solemnly weigh the serious problem of our continued national economic integrity."

Text of his remarks follows:

"It is my privilege to utter the final national radio appeal to the American people, to recognize the importance of the Census of Unemployment—the great undertaking which is in progress this week.

"On this program, preceding me, have just appeared the leaders of the Democratic and Republican parties in the House of Representatives. Despite their party differences they are united on the issue that our nation is now confronted with an opportunity to perform a great service for the good of all. In a matter of such great economic and social importance, there is no partisanship. Republicans and Democrats alike profit when our nation prospers, and they suffer alike from depression. There is no issue to divide our people when the common good is at stake.

Can't Carry Load.

"As the Speaker of the House of Representatives—that body in which originates all the appropriations for the maintenance of Government and its activities—I wish to say frankly that this nation cannot continue indefinitely to carry the present load of relief and public works. In matters of finance, the nation is no different than a private corporation or an individual. The private corporation which continues to spend money beyond its revenues suffers a depletion of its operating capital and destroys its power to perform a useful industrial service. The individual who likewise spends beyond his income wastes his substance.

"The intelligent industrial manager and the wise individual, confronted with such a situation, so reorder operations as to fit expenditures to income. Such changes in policy or practice as are necessary are preceded by thorough analyses which will reveal the factors which contribute to the operating deficit and which will point the way to constructive profit making policies.

"A well-managed government, situated similarly cannot do otherwise.

Danger Point Reached.

"An analysis of the factors which have thrown our Government revenues out of balance with our income points definitely to our excessive continued expenditure for relief and publicly created work. Humanitarianism—our proper interest in the victims of economic depression—will always impel a generous people to compromise with strict business prudence, but there comes a time when we must solemnly weigh the various problem of our continued national economic integrity.

"We have now reached that point. Our ingenuity as a Nation is called upon to devise ways to convert these millions of workers now dependent upon Government largess to self-respecting, self-supporting workers in private industry. To make such a change in national practice calls for facts which the Congress does not now possess—facts which will tell us, especially, what the unemployed workers are capable of doing in industry, based on experience and training. With this knowledge we can give consideration intelligently to plans for the stimulation of these industries which would absorb these workers and make of them productive units in our national economy.

"The Congress seriously needs the information which should be revealed by this unemployment census. I appeal to every unemployed or partly unemployed person to carefully fill out his report card and thus do his part to help the Nation on its way back to economic stability, and through economic stability to achieve the greater happiness of all our people."

Fate of Mother Goose Mural Up to Critics and Psychologist

WPA Painting at Children's Sanitarium, Called 'Grotesque' by Dr. Ruhland, Draws Defense of Gallery Officials.

The fate of Mother Goose and the inhabitants of her fabled kingdom, as depicted in a mural by Bernice Cross, talented young WPA artist, on the wall of the Children's Building of the Tuberculosis Sanitarium at Glenn Dale, Md., will rest with a jury of "competent art critics" and a child psychologist, Commissioner George E. Allen announced late yesterday.

Allen's stand followed a controversy aroused Wednesday when Dr. George Ruhland, District health officer, ordered the painting painted out after he had decided that it was "grotesque," and followed the "unfortunate modern trend" in art.

Meanwhile, Duncan Phillips and C. Law Watkins, of the Phillips Memorial Gallery of Art, publicly defended the mural.

"When an overzealous official steps out of his own groove to decry work in a professional field foreign to his own," said they, in a joint statement, "using such adjectives as 'grotesque' and 'ridiculous,' such adjectives usually come home to roost.

"Miss Cross prepared the large sketch for the Mother Goose mural in the studios of the Phillips Memorial Gallery over a year ago. The staff admired the sketch sufficiently to exhibit it promptly in the museum with the selected work of other artists from all over the country."

Dr. Ruhland revealed yesterday that while he did not consider himself an authority, he was well acquainted with art. He added that he had been twice asked by the director of the Syracuse Institute of Art to lecture.

Control of Cotton, Tobacco Favored

Harrisburg, Pa., Nov. 18 (AP).—The National Grange does not want American agriculture subjected to crop production control, the organization's seventy-first annual convention decided tonight, but specifically named cotton and tobacco as possible exceptions.

Most delegates seemed to favor a "go-all-the-way" policy against production control, but Southern delegates insisted the door be left open for cotton and tobacco, and won out.

The convention earlier had put its foot down firmly on enactment of the Black-Connery wages and hours bill.

Democracies Only Can Keep Europe From War, Says Mayer

Appointed by President Roosevelt as official American delegate, Dr. Mayer addressed the Fourth International Congress on the History of Sciences, held in Prague, Czechoslovakia, September 22-29. The former Tufts College professor of economics and sociology also spoke on American economic and social conditions to groups in Austria, Rumania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia.

Touring these nations, Dr. Mayer found that President Roosevelt's Chicago speech had made a profound impression. He reported a general conviction throughout the small countries of eastern Europe that "everything will be all right if the United States takes a firm stand in foreign policy."

Such a stand, Dr. Mayer pointed out, need not involve America in war but would call for close economic and diplomatic collaboration with Great Britain and France. A powerful democratic bloc, he believes, could draw the small European nations into its orbit and leave the Fascist dictatorships in isolation.

In Venice November 4, the Italian Armistice Day, he noted a more light-hearted attitude toward politics than in Germany. He said he saw no evidence of impending economic collapse in Italy nor did he observe in any European country the pressure of population on the soil which has been advanced as an argument for colonial expansion.

Mrs. Shrewsbury's Rites Tomorrow

Funeral services for Mrs. Martha Shrewsbury, 57, wife of the Rev. J. C. M. Shrewsbury, will be held tomorrow at 10:30 a. m. at the Trinity Episcopal Church of Upper Marlboro, Md.

Mrs. Shrewsbury died Wednesday at her home in Upper Marlboro. She had been ailing for several years. Born in Yorkshire, England, Mrs. Shrewsbury came to this country in 1888. For a number of years she lived in Connecticut. She came to Upper Marlboro 12 years ago.

Besides her husband, Mrs. Shrewsbury is survived by two sons, William Shrewsbury and Edmund Shrewsbury, both of Upper Marlboro; a daughter, Mrs. H. C. Schramm, Williamsburg, Pa.; three sisters, Mrs. Clarence Driscoll, Mrs. Alfred Conklin and Miss Ada Pinchbeck, all of White Plains, N. Y., and four brothers, Isaac Pinchbeck and John Pinchbeck, both of Saskatoon, Canada; William Pinchbeck, Guilford, Conn., and Robert Pinchbeck, White Plains, N. Y.

Interment will be in the Trinity Episcopal Church Cemetery, Upper Marlboro, Md.

Speakers to Discuss Building for College

Alumni of Western Maryland College and representatives of the Methodist Protestant Church will meet at 6:30 p. m. tonight in the New Colonial Hotel, Fifteenth and M streets northwest, to discuss the $250,000 building program recently projected for the college.

Speakers will include Dr. Fred G. Holloway, president of the college; Dr. William Wiley Chase, local alumni chairman for the building appeal; Roger J. Whiteford, special gifts chairman for Washington, and Dr. E. C. Makosky, church chairman.

"I had no idea... a newspaper did so much for its carrier-boys"

THAT'S what the average father says when his son describes the many unusual opportunities open to him as a new carrier-salesman for our newspaper. We often hear the same remark from parents and civic leaders who attend our carrier ceremonials, and express surprise at the wide scope of our carrier-training program.

From the day a boy becomes one of our carriers, he receives the benefit of the most valuable course of instruction ever offered to newspaper boys. We teach him business methods, salesmanship, and all phases of route service. Give him the friendly aid of a capable supervisor. Invite him to regular carrier-meetings and special outings. Encourage him to excel in his school studies as well as in his route duties. Offer him extra rewards for meritorious service. Assist him in every possible way to make his route pay and grow, to develop his ability and character, and to fit himself for real success in adult life.

If your own son is of carrier age, see if we have a route opening for him. There's no better spare-time training for an ambitious boy; no better foundation for future success.

Arlington Jury Finds Daniels Guilty of Arson

Trash-Collection Contractor Appeals Sentence of 5 Years in Prison.

An Arlington County jury last night found guilty of arson the county's trash collection contractor, Roger Daniels, and sentenced him to serve five years in the State penitentiary after deliberating for 18 minutes.

Judge Walter T. McCarthy withheld until this morning decision on a motion by Defense Attorney Arthur C. Stickley 2d to set aside the verdict as being contrary to law and evidence.

Daniels' bond of $3,000 was renewed and he was released. He was charged in connection with the burning of his home at 414 South Edgewood street the morning of last September 6.

Daniels took the stand in his own defense as the trial in Arlington County courthouse drew to a close late yesterday afternoon, and denied prosecution testimony that he had offered William Stearn, his foreman, and Edgar Heishman, one of his employes, $100 to set fire to his home. Stearn and Heishman testified the offer was made during a conference at the Daniels home the night of September 4.

Daniels said he had never considered making such a proposal. Furthermore, he said, he owed $2,130 on his home and $900 on the heating plant, and that the $2,600 insurance on the property was payable to the Home Owners Loan Corporation.

Maximum sentence on the charge in Virginia is 20 years. The law allows half-time off for good behavior.

$15,000 Awarded For Boy's Injuries

A District Court jury last night granted James C. Dawn, 3416 Ninth street northeast, $15,000 damages for injuries suffered by his 9-year-old son, Robert Dawn, when struck by an automobile in front of his home two years ago.

The verdict was against Bernard T. Johnson, of Mount Rainier, Md., owner of the car which struck the boy. A colored employe of Johnson was driving. The boy suffered a fractured knee and a brain concussion.

Dawn, who brought suit on behalf of his son, was represented by Edwin Dutton and Hallock P. Long.

Japanese Y.M.C.A. Aide Speaks Here

Soichi Saito, general secretary of the National Committee, Young Men's Christian Associations of Japan, was a luncheon guest yesterday of the local Y. M. C. A. in its building at 1736 G street northwest.

Dr. Carson P. Frailey, chairman of the World Service Committee of the "Y," presided.

Saito, here to talk over tentative plans for the General Committee of the World Students Christian Federation to meet in Japan next year, expressed the view that peace soon will be restored in the Orient.

'Silent Guest' Campaign Adds $277 for Lunches

Contributions of $277 from the "silent guest" campaign in Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. stores were received yesterday by the Citizens' Permanent Committee, Inc., successor to the Citizens' Emergency Committee, to be added to the fund to provide lunches for hungry school children.

Mrs. John Boyle, jr., chairman of the committee, took exception last night to a statement by School Superintendent Frank W. Ballou that the number of needy children is decreasing. She said that calls to her headquarters from teachers showed there were more children in need than before.

D. C. Sends Delegation To School Conference

Representatives from American University, Georgetown, George Washington, Catholic University and the Junior College of the Immaculata Seminary, it was announced yesterday, will attend the Middle Atlantic Conference of International Relations Clubs which meets today and tomorrow at St. Lawrence University, Canton, N. Y.

The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace is co-operating in the conference which will be attended by university representatives from Delaware, Maryland, New Jersey, New York and Pennsylvania besides those from Washington.

Puerto Rican Exhibit.

Embroidery and drawnwork, produced by native women and girls in Puerto Rican workshops, will be shown from 10 a. m. to 5:30 p. m. today in Parish Hall, 821 Sixteenth street northwest. The display has been arranged by Deaconess Margaret Bechtol, of Puerto Rico, who is at present visiting in Washington. A graduate of St. Faith's School, New York City, Deaconess Bechtol has been engaged in missionary work on the island for five years.

'Eavesdropping' On Ickes Turns Out False Alarm

No one has tried to put Secretary Ickes in a glass house. And even if they did, the Secretary said flatly, he wouldn't care.

The truth is, no one has wanted to eavesdrop on him despite reports that wires to his office had been "tapped." The Secretary, himself, ordered the installation of dictaphones and apparently had forgotten it when confronted yesterday with reports that he was being spied on.

E. J. Spitzer, Washington representative of Dictaphone Co., said he connected the recording instruments with Interior Department telephone lines more than two years ago. Similar devices are in other Federal structures. These are to record conversations of incoming and outgoing calls. In the case of Interior, the devices were to serve Ickes and his principal assistants.

The Secretary said earlier:

"If my telephone wires are or have been tapped, it is of slight concern to me. Anyone may listen to any conversation that I hold on public business at any time."

Dirksen to Study Transit Case Data

Voluminous data on the Capital Transit Co. will be studied by Representative Dirksen (Republican), of Illinois, before he determines his next step in the House sub-committee inquiry, he said yesterday following a visit to the Public Utilities Commission.

Dirksen conferred with Richmond B. Keech, vice chairman of the commission, and asked for digests of the fare case, the valuation hearing and other data.

"When I get all this information," he said, "I'm going to take off my coat and go to work."

Career Men Urged To Conduct Nation

Rochester, N. Y., Nov. 18 (AP).—"Career men" to direct government were advocated tonight before the National Municipal League by Dr. Clarence A. Dykstra, president of the University of Wisconsin, as a means of combating the spread of world-wide "popular distemper."

Dr. Harold W. Dodds, president of Princeton University, said American industry should invest its jobs with "social satisfaction" if citizens are to be kept from "turning to mass movements foreign to American traditions."

2 From D. C. Made Officials in Legion

Indianapolis, Nov. 18 (AP).—The American Legion's national executive committee today re-elected these national officers:

A new legislative committee was appointed as follows: Paul G. Armstrong, Illinois, chairman; Al J. Haemmerle, Missouri, and Joseph J. Malloy, of Washington, D. C.

Hunters Bag 3 Bears.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 18.—Three bears were killed yesterday in Bedford County, Pa., John Dittmar, Bedford County game protector, reported last night. The first, a 250-pounder, was bagged by Joseph R. McElfish, of Bedford Valley, while Earl Mellott, Needmore, Fulton County, shot the second, and Dyrle Woy, Hustontown, Fulton County, killed the third.

Pageant Is Given By Presbyterians

A pageant of "Mother Church and Her Messengers" was presented last night before 200 members of the Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church in observance of the centennial of the Presbyterian Board of Foreign Missions.

Written and directed by Mrs. Charles L. Carhart, the pageant depicted historic development of missions in America, Africa and Asia.

The role of Mother Church was taken by Mrs. Lewis Russell; the Spirit of Evangelism by Miss Ruth Russell; the Spirit of Education by Mrs. Robert Snoke, and the Spirit of Healing by Mrs. Charles Waters. Mrs. J. Hillman Hollister, wife of the pastor, portrayed the Recorder, while the part of Mme. Chiang Kai-Shek, Wellesley educated Presbyterian, was acted by Mrs. F. K. Montgomery.

The Rev. C. C. Hung appeared in one of the Oriental tableaux, and colored children from the Fifteenth Street Presbyterian Church aided in portraying missionary activity in Africa.

Mystified Loyalists Dig In for Franco

Hendaye, Franco-Spanish Frontier, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—The loyalist command, bewildered by the mystery of Generalissimo Franco's preparations for his big Aragon offensive, today put thousands of laborers to work on a 24-hour-a-day schedule fortifying positions along a 175-mile front.

The loyalist command admitted it possessed no reliable information as to Franco's plans for his first big blow in his drive toward the Mediterranean seacoast or toward Madrid.

Earle Would End War By 'Peace Pilgrimages'

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Gov. George H. Earle tonight recommended "peace pilgrimages" abroad as a way to "eliminate every possibility of war."

"Every State and country should do like Pennsylvania," the Governor said, as he sailed for Sweden with a score of Pennsylvania officials to commemorate the sailing of the first Swedish ships for America and the establishment of a Swedish colony in Pennsylvania 300 years ago.

Man Seized for Posing As Child Bride's Father

Bluefield, W. Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—Melton Pennington was arrested here today on a charge of posing as the father of a 14-year-old bride and giving parental consent to her marriage ten days ago in Virginia. Police said Pennington was wanted in Smyth County, Va., on a warrant sworn out by J. L. Davidson of Saltville, father of Mrs. Virginia Lawson. She and William Clarence Lawson, employe in a coal mine near here, were married at Marion, Va.

Argentina to Permit Wheat, Flour Exports

Buenos Aires, Nov. 18 (AP).—The Argentine government decreed tonight that wheat and flour might be exported, since this year's harvest well exceeded the nation's internal needs.

The decree repealed that of October 29, prohibiting such exports, when it was feared there might be a shortage.

Turner to Speak.

Dr. Ralph E. Turner, chairman, education committee, United Federal Workers of America, is scheduled to address the Capital City Forum tonight at 8:15 o'clock. His subject is "Democracy and Education."

Beware Coughs from common colds That Hang On

No matter how many medicines you have tried for your cough, chest cold, or bronchial irritation, you can get relief now with Creomulsion. Serious trouble may be brewing and you cannot afford to take a chance with any remedy less potent than Creomulsion, which goes right to the seat of the trouble and aids nature to soothe and heal the inflamed mucous membranes and to loosen and expel the germ-laden phlegm.

Even if other remedies have failed, don't be discouraged, try Creomulsion. Your druggist is authorized to refund your money if you are not thoroughly satisfied with the benefits obtained from the very first bottle. Creomulsion is one word—not two, and it has no hyphen in it. Ask for it plainly, see that the name on the bottle is Creomulsion, and you'll get the genuine product and the relief you want. (Adv.)

Fairfax Youth Gets 30 Days in Hughes Crash

Admits Driving Truck That Hit Lad Whose Mother Slew Mate.

Alfred Simmons, 19, of Engleside, Fairfax County, yesterday was sentenced to 30 days in jail and his driver's license was suspended for one year on a reckless-driving charge in the Fairfax County Trial Justice Court yesterday. He pleaded guilty of being the driver of a hit-and-run truck which struck and injured John Hughes, 12, and Lester Freeman, 10, both of Hunters Station, Monday night, who were riding bicycles on the Washington-Richmond highway at Snake Hill.

Simmons told the court he saw the boys, but could not avoid hitting them. He stopped a short distance down the highway and was too scared to return to the scene of the accident. He surrendered to the Alexandria police later that night.

On Tuesday, following the accident, Carl M. Hughes, father of John, accused the boy's mother, Mrs. Kathleen Hughes, of being to blame for their son's injuries because of her absence from home.

When she denied she was to blame, Hughes attacked her with a stick. Mrs. Hughes then got her husband's revolver "to scare him," and in the ensuing scuffle the gun went off, fatally injuring Hughes.

Two Plants Still Closed in Sit-Down Of Auto Workers

Pontiac, Mich., Nov. 18 (AP).—A few hundred men whose sit-down strike in the Fisher Body plant here closed two automotive factories employing 14,721, held their ground tonight and neither General Motors Corporation nor the United Automobile Workers of America professed to know of negotiations.

Company officials said neither the Fisher plant nor the Pontiac Motor Co. plant would reopen before Monday.

E. F. Fisher, general manager of the Fisher Body division of General Motors, described the strike as a "flagrant and lawless violation" of the agreement between General Motors Corporation and the U. A. W. A. Richard T. Frankensteen, assistant president of the U. A. W. A., said, "General Motors could have prevented all of this trouble by offering the union a sufficiently decent contract."

PWA to Drop 325 To Aid Economies

The Public Works Administration will drop 325 employes December 1, it was announced yesterday, in keeping with the President's retrenchment order. They include workers in the legal, finance and accounting branches, stenographers and messengers.

Some heard of their discharge on Monday, when the checks were passed out. On the following day, officials withheld the order until investigations could be made of what phases could be dispensed with. The employes will be given the benefit of accrued leave, if any.

Mussolini's new semiofficial agency, Diplomatic Information, said the heavy reinforcements were necessitated by "international emergencies."

Philatelists to Inspect Engraving Plant Today

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing will be open at 7:30 o'clock tonight, when stamp collectors and their friends will be given an opportunity to inspect the plant. Director A. W. Hall, in honor of National Philatelic Week, has provided this feature of the week's program.

The week's observances will close tomorrow evening with the fourth annual banquet of the Collectors Club, Branch 5, S. P. A., sponsor of the affair. It will be held at 7:30 o'clock at the Hay-Adams Houes.

Cromwell Considered For N. J. Senatorship

Newark, N. J., Nov. 18 (AP).—Governor-elect Moore said today James H. R. Cromwell, husband of Doris Duke, was one of at least five persons being considered as his successor in the United States Senate. Moore will make the appointment shortly after he assumes office next January 18. Cromwell, in New York, said neither Moore nor Mayor Frank Hague, of Jersey City, Democratic State leader, had approached him. He'd be glad to have the office, he added.

Higher Fare Given Business Approval

Indorsing the rise in street car fares, the Federation of Businessmen's Associations at a meeting in the Hotel Hamilton last night asserted that the recent rate order of the Public Utilities Commission "has more advantages than disadvantages."

The association's stand was expressed in a report of the public utilities committee, of which Louis I. Obergh is chairman. Only one delegate present, Louis F. Frink, of the Southeast Businessmen's Association, dissented.

Maintaining that "the only point at issue is the sale of six tokens for 50 cents instead of three tokens for 25 cents," the report declared that "after the first week the riding public will adjust itself to the method of buying tokens, in the same manner in which the public adjusted itself in purchasing a pass for $1.25."

Earlier in the meeting, Robert L. Irvin, examiner of the Federal Communications Commission, addressed the delegates on "Radio and Communication; What They Mean to the Businessman." A brief history of the Cleveland Park Citizens Association was given by Dr. E. J. Snyder, its president.

Reed Fights Limits On Gold Bond Rate

By the Associated Press.

Solicitor General Stanley Reed urged the Supreme Court yesterday to place no limitation on the power of the Government to refund gold bonds at lower interest rates.

His argument was countered by two attorneys—Robert A. Taft, Cincinnati, son of President Taft, and H. Vernon Eney, Baltimore—who asserted the Treasury must continue to pay interest on its gold bonds, although they have been called for redemption in advance of the maturity date.

The arguments were on three cases in which litigants sought to collect interest from the Treasury.

U. S. Magazines Seized In Quebec Morals Drive

Quebec, Nov. 18 (Canadian Press).—Police seized about 700 copies of five magazines today in simultaneous raids on the offices of a distributing agency and several Quebec news stands. The magazines, the authorities said, were "Pic," "Foto," "Photograph," "Look" and "Coronet."

The raids were the result of an order last night by Quebec's administrative committee, issued after Alderman Philemon Gerneau charged the magazines were "bad for the morals of our younger generation."

5-Day-Week Bill For U. S. Workers Is Given to House

A new 5-day week proposal for Federal employes was introduced in the House yesterday by Representative McCormack (Democrat), of Massachusetts.

McCormack's bill would allow time and a half for overtime to all Federal workers earning less than $3,200 a year. The bill exempts the United States armed services.

No action is expected on the legislation at the special session, although a fight will be made in its behalf at the regular term, it is understood.

The Civil Service Commission recently estimated it would cost between $50,000,000 and $100,000,000 to place all Government employes on a five-day week.

It happened to me

—maybe, I was lucky.

It happened this way: I found myself in a run-down condition . . . I was listless . . . despondent . . . my appetite was lagging . . . I was losing weight.

I wasn't desperate, as I knew I had no organic trouble . . . but I was puzzled as to why I was losing ground.

I was lucky because a friend suggested that I try S.S.S. Tonic . . . she said it had greatly benefited her in building back her strength and now she felt like her old self again.

An interesting fact about S.S.S. Tonic is that 47.2% of those who take it, do so upon the recommendation of others who have themselves benefited by taking this great tonic.

There is a special reason why S.S.S. Tonic is beneficial in helping people get back their health . . . because it contains the precious mineral elements so vitally necessary for restoring deficient red-blood-cells. Moreover, S.S.S. Tonic whets the appetite and improves digestion, making for better use of food—a very important step back to health.

You, too, will want to take S.S.S. Tonic to regain and to maintain your red-blood-cells . . . to restore lost weight . . . to regain energy . . . to strengthen nerves . . . and to give your skin that natural health glow.

Take the S.S.S. Tonic treatment and shortly you should be delighted with the way you feel . . . and have your friends compliment you on the way you look.

MARY HAWORTH'S MAIL

"Am I Foolish? Asks Wife Who Suspects Her Husband of Regretting His Lost Bachelordom.

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a 36-year-old woman with two children aged 10 and 12. Their father died nearly two years ago. My life with him was miserable from drink. Last spring I married again. My husband is an attractive young man 33 years old. We fell very much in love with each other and I still love him dearly, but I am just now getting to know his ways. There are times when he does not speak the whole evening; then again, he nags so much, finding fault with everything, scolding the children for going to the movies, etc. Nothing is right.

Occasionally he goes out alone, not saying where he is going and I never interfere or ask questions. A short time ago he told me he had stayed too long a bachelor, doing as he pleased, going where he wished. I do all I can to make him happy and comfortable, but there is never a word of encouragement. I am not the nagging kind. I just keep quiet.

* * * *

I am going to have a baby in March and while he is always considerate and kind, still he seems to be indifferent and I can't help thinking he regrets his marriage and the consequent responsibilities. But he was just as eager to marry as I, and I know he loved me. Do you think I am making a mountain out of a molehill? I asked him if he is happy and he said "yes," but that was all. He does not want to talk things over.

* * * *

I would rather go out of his life quietly than keep on this way. I have heard his sister say he has always nagged about things, so maybe that is just going to be his way through life. I have been housekeeping five months and have saved a little money for the future. He never asks me to go anywhere with him. Please give me some advice. Tell me if you think I am just having foolish ideas. Sincerely,

S. C.

Preoccupied With Self.

DEAR S. C.: Your vague alarms and distress may be largely the result of short-sighted preoccupation with the demands of your own ego. If you could subject your motives to the most careful and honest scrutiny, you might find you had married (had even committed yourself in this instance to loving and being loved) more for what you hoped to receive than for what you proposed—and were mentally and spiritually prepared—to give. Of course, the same might be equally true of your husband; probably is. But until this situation has been corrected by greater self-understanding and concomitant remedial action on the part of at least one—and preferably both—you will not only continue to stand apart psychically, each nursing his ego wounds and secretly assessing the manner in which he individually is being short-changed in the partnership, but you will drift farther and farther apart as time goes on, until the rift may become too wide for mending.

* * * *

You must realize it is virtually impossible for an erstwhile scot-free bachelor to adjust spontaneously to the disconcerting demands of matehood and fatherhood, when the two crop up in the space of one short year. You must remember the nature and weight of such responsibilities are alien to him, whereas you have known their feel for more than a decade. It is natural that he might have passing moments of childish regret over having married at all, but if you have the wisdom which becomes your years and experience you will concern yourself principally with aiding and encouraging him to grow into mature acceptance of his new estate; not with brooding over his suspected resentment. He may be childish in looking backward, but you would be equally immature in leaving him merely because his attitude is not altogether satisfactory.

* * * *

If he is always kind and considerate, laconically admits to being happy and ruefully confesses having been a bachelor too long, it seems to me you have excellent material to work with. Though he may not be in a tumult of delight over the baby's coming, though he may even rebel against it's precipitous dawning upon the scene, don't let that worry you unduly. It's too much to expect that because persons love and marry, they must necessarily bring identical emotional attitudes to certain experiences which vitally affect the lives of both. The most one can expect is that they stand by each other, striving for greater mutual kinship and helpfulness.

* * * *

You may think your husband isn't standing by just now—in nagging, in refusing to talk things over, in going off by himself, in never inviting you out, in heckling the children. But to his way of thinking (which you have not yet fathomed, and which I wonder if you have made any sincere, indefatigable effort to fathom) he may be standing by remarkably well. The situation in which he finds himself may be not at all what he reckoned on when he impetuously married you for love alone. He may feel himself badly cheated, in losing the woman he had hoped to secure as a tender and constant comrade in a labyrinth of household duties, child tending and preparations for the coming of another life. When he comes home at night, he probably finds you looking to him for consolation and encouragement, for diversion and change; whereas, man-like and loverlike, he had undoubtedly expected to receive these very things from you in overwhelming abundance.

* * * *

A man who comes home to sit all evening without a word is usually waiting, whether or not he realizes it, to be conjured out of his mood. It's a wise wife who will do her best to achieve that end, refusing to be hurt or angered even if rebuffed. She will focus her most sympathetic, understanding, responsive attention upon him, instead of waiting for him to focus such consideration upon her. I don't mean she will prod and heckle him with conversational offerings, but she will show by her look and whole manner that she appreciates and respects whatever mood is his, and will do her utmost to so understand her husband as to know how to deal most effectively with all his moods. Too many wives, alas, assume an exaggerated air of patient endurance of such conduct on their husband's part; or else they are openly aggrieved. I'll admit it's trying, but resentment, exasperation, or dogged counter-silence will not effect the cure. The cure is to create a mellow atmosphere of feeling in which grudges cannot thrive; in which irritability dissolves like ice in an August sun.

* * *

It may be that on your husband's evenings out he is playing about with bachelor-day associates. Hence, on his evenings in he may be sulky with self-reproach, uncomfortably inhibited by the guilty conviction he is not playing fair with you. Perhaps you stand on too much ceremony in waiting for him to invite you out. Maybe you've let your looks go; saved money at the expense of your appearance, taking it for granted he would go on loving you for qualities of being. But don't forget that a wife's pictorial exquisiteness is always highly important to her husband; particularly to a long-time bachelor husband; and that nicety of grooming and subtlety of costuming is never so valuable to a wife as during periods of pregnancy.

* * * *

My advice to you is to take the lead in establishing a new tempo in your social relations with your husband. Be gay, tender, interested, flattering, appreciative; check and double check on your appearance; work out a regime of child management that will allow your husband a maximum amount of undivided attention when he is home (and I don't mean neglect the children for him, either; rather, give your days to them, and your evenings wholly to him; most blood fathers sulk if they don't get that); inaugurate some sort of social life which automatically includes him as your husband, and from that branch out into going places and doing things with him alone.

* * * *

It's just possible, you know, that during the years of your miserable first marriage you fell into the habit of household apathy, to which habit you have again reverted as the bloom is wearing off your second marriage. Watch yourself. Don't do it. Get rid of any sullen, self-protective attitudes you may have developed as a result of the earlier relationship and bring your most winning and consistent good manners to this one. It isn't enough just to keep quiet; not to nag. You've got to express your personality in positive, attractive ways.

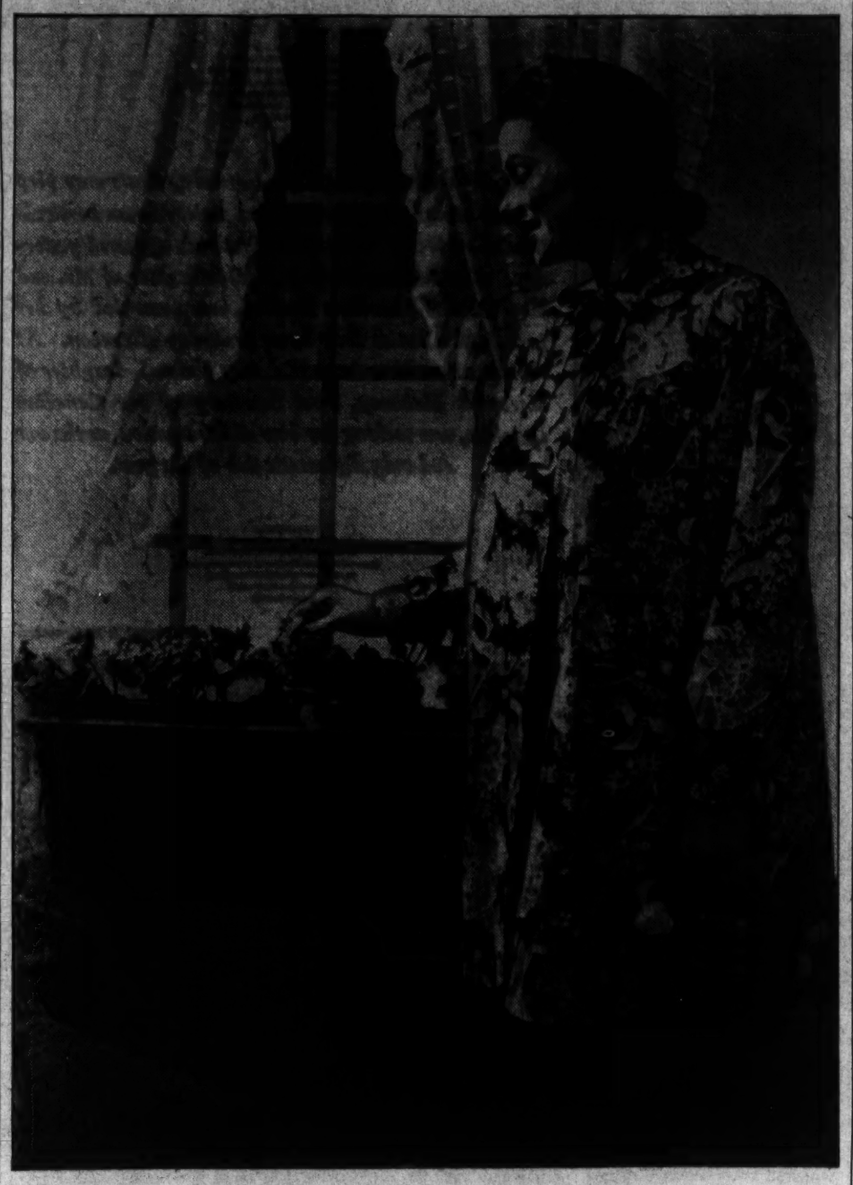
'Theme Song' Smock in Gay Colors



IF YOU are a business girl who also has an apartment to look after the gay theme song smock above would be a clever acquisition to your wardrobe. For use in the morning while preparing breakfast, or in the evening over your business dress while cooking dinner, it not only saves your clothes but is also decorative. The smock shown here is of sanforized-shrunk cotton in "Sunbonnet Sue" theme; it is cut full and comfortable and is available in different color combinations.

Idaho Potatoes Suitable for All Cooking Uses

Guy Graham, Boise Expert, Explains Development in Industry.

By Jean Green.

DO YOU GO to the store marketing and buy one kind of potato for baking and another for all general purposes? Then you are not up on the latest developments in the potato world. For, according to Guy Graham, Boise, Idaho, who is attending the conference of the National Association of Commissioners, Secretaries and Directors of Agriculture, this week at the Raleigh Hotel, the Idaho potato which is the favorite baking potato, has three uses.

"The Idaho russet, as we call the Idaho potato, is not only excellent for baking, but also for mashing and for French frying," he said. "Its mealy light texture provides an ideal potato for baking, but it also gives mashed potatoes a fluffy light texture. The color stays white when they are mashed. The shape gives them the special advantage for French frying. The long slender shape gives a streamlined effect and makes it possible to cut the potato with a minimum of curved edges."

Russet Grows Widely.

Graham is a commissioner from Idaho, the State that supplies the country with baking potatoes. He has watched the industry grow and the commercial value of this type of potato increase.

"The Idaho russet will grow in any climate where the climate is cool, but the soil in Idaho is particularly well suited to its growth. It is the volcanic ash in the soil that contributes to their superb taste," he said. During the past year requests have come from Australia and South Africa for information on their culture. The market for the potato will soon become world wide."

One of the advances in potato growing in the last few years has been in relation to size. "The Idaho russet potato grows to a size of 3 pounds, but that is too large for the average household," said Graham. "The average potato sold today is less than 1 pound." We have now standardized cultivation so that it is possible to keep potatoes uniform in size. They are marketed under grades specified by the United States standards 1 and 2."

Skin Gave Name.

The name "Idaho Russet," comes from the color of the potato skin after it has been baked, according to Graham. This is of great market value. Restaurants depend on the appearance of their food to popularize it.

In explaining the phychology of marketing, Graham pointed out that color was a determining influence not only in vegetables, but also in fruits. In Idaho, many Grimes Golden apple orchards are being replaced with other types of apple trees. The market today calls for dark red apples regardless of flavor.

Graham pointed out that restaurants prefer a potato between 8 and 12 ounces for baking purposes. The larger potatoes are used for French frying.

A WOMAN'S NEW YORK

By Alice Hughes

New York, Nov. 18.

AS A SIMON-PURE amateur psychologist, I grow increasingly certain that the tempo of this frantic town—its ceaseless din and our enforced collisions with thousands of our kind every day—is certain to drive us all more or less daffy. Not that most of us couldn't pass a fairly tough lunacy commission. But it is an undoubted fact that there is a mental and nervous disease which may be called creeping Gothamitis. And it attacks many of us in odd and frightening ways.

ALICE HUGHES.

Innocent but startling exhibitionism results. Hiking past the Ritz-Carlton the other afternoon, I heard airy, fairy music and feared that the town had me, at last. Then I saw the source—a well-dressed, clean and even dapper middle-aged gentleman who was tootling on an ocarina. I looked for the conventional tin cup and pencils. But, no! He was not blind, but there he stood tootling, a rapt expression on his face! I quickly gave up. Unquestionably he was just a man who liked to play the ocarina, and did when the old craving hit him.

The commonest symptom of our mild insanity is talking to ourselves on the street. I pass a score daily who are muttering aloud. All too often they are aged and tattered crones who have finally cracked. But my most astonishing sidewalk monologue came from a good-looking little man in a leather coat I passed on Third avenue last week. As I came abreast, he said, "Now I'll tell you a story!" But he wasn't addressing me, but himself or some ghostly auditor. "Every furnished room I've rented in New York," he went on, "has had bugs." I shuddered and hurried past, fearing even more startling bits of autobiography.

* * * *

GIRL ABOUT TOWN—It must be wonderful to live in New York, you meet so many interesting people. Yesterday, driving up Fifth avenue in my Tin Rolls, I was passing a huge car when a voice hollered "Hey!" I saw it was Fay Gillis Wells, wife of Linton, writer and radio talker. "Alice, meet the Ranee!" said Fay. With her in the car was the Ranee of Sarawak, consort of the famed White Rajah Brooke, and at present unhappy because her daughter, Baba, wants to marry a wrestling gentleman, or grunter. "Howdy-do, Ranee," I chirped, and passed the mighty motor like War Admiral on a down grade. And that's the way you meet all these interesting people in New York—on the fly.

TODAY'S HEALTH TALK

By Logan Clendening, M. D.

Physical Examinations.

The prevention of breast cancer in women very largely comes down to an annual physical examination in those women who are just over the child bearing period—approximately the age of 40.

It has been shown that the greatest risk a woman runs, if a small lump in her breast proves to be a cancer, is about 25 per cent, provided she is one of those who has the lump examined promptly or has it discovered in an annual physical examination.

Probably the most widespread idea about prevention of cancer concerns the belief that women have that an injury of the breast will result in cancer. There is not really very much evidence for this, and nearly all women are subjected to bumps in elevators or street cars.

I imagine there is some truth in the idea that after a woman has one of these bumps on her breast, she may examine it and find that there is a lump present, and that this accounts for the idea that the injuries cause cancer. The fact is that the lump was there before, but was not noticed. It may be a good thing for any woman to have a bump bad enough to cause her to make a careful examination. Remember that in the early stages cancer of the breast is very seldom painful and does not call attention to itself in that way.

It must be remembered that very few lumps or masses in the breast are real cancer; most of them are chronic inflammation, and even with a decided lump that can be easily felt, it is estimated that in 85 per cent of these no operation or X-ray or radium irradiation will be necessary.

In all suspected cancers, as we stated in an earlier article this week, the best procedure is to take a small piece out and look at it under the microscope. This is called "a biopsy." There has been some fear expressed in the past that this procedure will irritate the tissues enough to produce a cancer, but these fears have very largely been allayed.

Cancer of the womb can also be prevented or recognized in a very early stage at an annual physical examination. It is the almost unanimous opinion of 900 obstetricians, fellows of the American College of Surgeons, that mothers' best protection against cancer of the cervix depends on the repair of all injuries or irritations following the birth of a child, and periodic examinations afterward.

Dietitians Enjoy Chicken, Spoon Bread and Yams at Convention.

By Ida Jean Kain.

"EAT AS I SAY, but not as I do" might well have been the unofficial slogan at the American Dietetic convention recently held in Richmond, Va. Every year the dietitians get together to find out what is new in dietetics—and to attend luncheons, dinners and banquets.

Strong believers in prunes, spinach, whole wheat bread and liver—for others—we had delicious Southern fried chicken, candied yams, spoon bread, and the most delectable desserts you ever tasted.

As you see, life is not just one long diet for the dietitian and it should not be for you, either. Talking to the dietitians on "The Art of Gracious Living," Marjorie Hillis declared that the modern woman looks 15 years younger than the spinster of the same age a decade or so ago because she studies fashions, diets, goes to a gymnasium and gets fun out of doing all these things.

Marjorie Hillis, as you know, is the orchid lady who budgets everything down to the last string bean. According to her philosophy, fun is the fuel for enthusiasm, and she has very little patience with people who think fun is not important. Put this philosophy to work and you can diet and like it.

If you feel sorry for yourself on a reducing diet, Miss Hillis would not like you. She would not hesitate to express the opinion that martyrs are dreadful bores, and I have noticed that reducers are sometimes martyrs.

After all, you haven't any reason to feel sorry for yourself. You had the fun of eating all the food that made the weight. Now, instead of brooding about food you cannot have, try to see how much food you can get for the fewest calories. If you will keep your sense of humor you can have fun counting calories. This calorie counting is not such a task. It may take a bit of juggling, but you can have a five-course dinner for 600 calories.

The dietitians are a pretty strong argument for sensible eating rather than dieting. Instinctively good food habits keep them at fairly normal weight, and those are the kind of habits you must cultivate. You don't need to be a martyr to the cause of spinach. When you go on a calorie spree, counterbalance it by low calorie days. Don't be like the reducer who diets in public and eats in private and blames it all on her glands—for she is the prize bore.

How to keep fit and like it.

The Right Brassiere Aid to Venus Form

Mme. Adrienne Advises Form Uplift Type.

If you want to have a form like the Venus de Milo, the answer is a properly fitted brassiere, according to Mme. Adrienne, who is at a local store today and tomorrow to analyse figure problems. Mme. Odrienne, who was a French dancer before going into brassiere designing, says that a properly molded bustline is necessary this winter in order to wear the form-fitting clothes in vogue. The secret of this authority's designing is a gently molded garment which uplifts the bust into firm, youthful outlines; whether you are 16 or 60, and regardless of your recent contours.

The Adrienne brassieres are fashioned of firm satin with lace top, short or long, according to individual figure needs. Everyone, regardless of how slim and sylph-like the figure, needs a bra of some kind, contends Mme. Adrienne.

Diplomats and Officials Honor Miss Mahoney

Mrs. Hull, Mrs. Swanson, Admiral and Mrs. Leahy Attend Tea for Canadian Secretary's Daughter.

Top ranking members of official and diplomatic society turned out yesterday to meet a young lady from Canada—Miss Anne (Peggy) Mahoney. The occasion was a tea given in her honor by Lady Marler, wife of the Canadian Minister. Miss Mahoney is the daughter of the First Secretary of the Canadian Legation, and is the only debutante from diplomatic circles this season.

The Canadian Legation, which is on Massachusetts avenue just off Connecticut, is really much larger than it looks from the outside. You could easily give several parties there without any of the guests stepping on each other's toes. The ceilings are high, and each room is paneled in heavy oak in the British style.

Yesterday fires were burning on the hearths in the drawing room and dining room, and great bowls of chrysanthemums were everywhere.

"That's really the only difference between a Canadian and an American debut," said Mrs. Mahoney yesterday. "Here everybody sends such masses of presents and flowers that we are really overwhelmed by it all."

Lady Marler, in a fuchsia colored gown with matching sash, headed the receiving line, and next to her stood the debutante. She wore a floor-length crepe frock in an aquamarine shade with long-sleeved jacket and a corsage of gardenias.

Mrs. Mahoney, who stood nearby welcoming the guests, chose for the occasion, a long gown in a gold-colored lame, with which she wore a little black Juliet cap outlined in gold.

All Social Circles Represented at Party

Most of the guests congregated in the dining room, where champagne was served and two large tables were set with the usual delicacies—thin sandwiches of lettuce and tomato, little frosted cakes in different colors and great bowls of ice cream.

Among the first arrivals was Mrs. Cordell Hull, wife of the Secretary of State, and one of the most charming and unaffected people in Washington. The cabinet was further represented by Mrs. Claude A. Swanson, wife of the Secretary of Navy, and Mrs. Daniel C. Roper, wife of the Secretary of Commerce, who wore a silver fox scarf with her green and black costume.

All circles of the Capital were represented yesterday—diplomatic, residential, Army and Navy. The Commandant of the Marine Corps was there with Mrs. Holcombe, whose black frock was embroidered in gold, and whose black hat had an amusing twist at the top. From Army circles came, among others, Mrs. Peyton March, wife of Gen. March, and from residential society were Mrs. Joseph Leiter, whose frock was topped by a silver fox cape and a small hat with a blue ostrich feather in the front; Mrs. Dean Acheson in black with rhinestone clips; Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, Mrs. Lee Warren and the Misses Ann and Eleanor Meem, who will make their debut at a tea next Wednesday. Dressed alike, they wore attractive frocks in an aquamarine shade.

Mrs. Herbert Feis, and Mrs. John Farr Simmons were among those who represented the State Department. Mrs. Victor Mallet, wife of the Counselor of the British Embassy, looked lovely in black with a matching hat, and a short string of pearls. The Counselor of the Polish Embassy, Witold Wankowicz, was accompanied by Mme. Wankowicz, who wore a silver lame scarf at the neck of her frock.

Mrs. H. F. Stone Among the Guests

Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of the Supreme Court Justice, topped off her black frock with a brief fur wrap, as did Mrs. Mark Bristol, wife of Rear Admiral Bristol. Others we saw—to name but a few—were Mrs. Sol Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom, Maj. Heywood and Philip Broadmead of the British Embassy; Lady Lewis; Capt. Cugia, Naval Attache of the Italian Embassy; Mme Espil, wife of the Argentine Ambassador, who wore a mink coat over her simply made black frock; Frau Herbert Blankenhorn and Mme. Lucet, wife of the Third Secretary of French Embassy.

All the members of the staff of the Canadian legation were on hand to see that the guests had a good time. The newly arrived Counselor, Dr. Walter Riddell, was renewing acquaintances with many friends, as he was formerly stationed here. He arrived recently from Geneva, his former post, and is expecting Mrs. Riddell shortly—she is in Ottawa at present.

Mrs. Ritchie, mother of Charles Ritchie, Third Secretary of the legation, was also present. She is in Washington to visit her son for about a week.

Mrs. Ronald Macdonnell, wife of the Third Secretary, wore a becoming red frock and peaked black hat. Miss Willa Magee, who makes her home with Sir Herbert and Lady Marler, spent most of the afternoon in the dining room. She wore a black frock with a sash and a corsage of orchids.

Mrs. G. T. Emmet Will Be Guest At White House

Here for Son's Wedding; Two Daughters Also to Visit Roosevelts.

President Roosevelt will have as guests at the White House over the week-end Mrs. Grenville Temple Emmet, wife of the late United States Minister to Austria, and her two daughters, the Misses Pauline and Patricia Emmet. They are coming to Washington to attend the wedding of Miss Anne Livington Eustis, daughter of Mrs. William Corcoran Eustis and the late Mr. Eustis, to Grenville Temple Emmet, jr., Mrs. Emmet's son.

The ceremony, which will be attended only by relatives and close friends, will take place at 4 o'clock tomorrow afternoon at the home of Mrs. Eustis in Georegtown. Miss Eustis will have as her only attendants the Misses Renee and John Beauregard, adopted daughters of her sister, Mrs. David Finley, and Mr. Finley. William Emmet, of New York, cousin of the future bridegroom, will serve as best man.

Mrs. Walter F. George, wife of Senator George, will entertain today at the Mayflower in compliment to Mrs. William J. Vereen, of Moultrie, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Vereen are spending a few days in Washington on their way home from New York City, where they visited their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lanier, jr., the latter formerly Miss Rosalind Vereen, a graduate of Mount Vernon Seminary.

Mrs. George, Mrs. Vereen and Mrs. O. Max Gardner, who has joined her husband at the Mayflower for the season, lunched together yesterday in the Senate restaurant.

Classmates Meet At Tea in Honor Of Miss Musser

When Mrs. Edward M. Pickford entertained yesterday afternoon at a tea in honor of Miss Margene Musser, who is visiting her. The affair was more or less in the way of a school reunion.

Mrs. Pickford, the hostess; Miss Musser, her guest of honor, and Mrs. William C. Schofield, who poured, all were classmates at Holton Arms. Mrs. John Cleland also assisted.

Miss Musser will be in Washington until Monday evening, and then will visit friends for a short time in Ohio. After that she will join her parents, Col. and Mrs. Musser, in Santa Barbara, Calif.

First Buds to Blossom in Capital This Season

SPRING may be far away . . . wintry blasts may play hop-scotch at corners . . . but society's own horticultural show is on! Two of the first buds appeared yesterday. Miss Barbara Bradley (left), daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hamilton Bradley, was presented by her parents at a tea at their home yesterday afternoon. At the same time Miss Anne Mahoney (below), daughter of Merchant Mahoney, First Secretary of the Canadian Legation, was making her bow at the legation, as the one and only diplomatic deb of the year.

2 to 7 'Ruling' Supports Art

Miss Roberts' Exhibition Follows That of Mrs. Stone.

Well, there's a two to seven decision in favor of "art" from the Supreme Court so far and before the season is one day colder, the cause may rock the entire bench.

First, Mrs. Justice Harlan Fiske Stone put on her show of water colors at the Corcoran. Now Miss Elizabeth Roberts, daughter of Justice Owen J. Roberts, contributes two paintings to the annual Christmas Exhibition at the Phillips Memorial House which opened with cocktails at a reception yesterday afternoon from 3 to 6.

Miss Roberts in Receiving Line

Miss Roberts, in a dark purple dress and black hat, was present in the receiving line. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Roberts, who wore a black ensemble and silver fox.

During the latter part of the afternoon, Mrs. Duncan Phillips, also in black, distinctively trimmed with saucer-sized gold buttons, sat on a green sofa at the end of one of the rooms, chatting with her sister, Mrs. George Wadleigh, who happens to be visiting now with the Phillipses and came with them to the show.

Guests taking the grand tour of the galleries stopped off most often to admire Eben F. Comins's picture of a sombrero-filled Gautemala scene. Olin Dows, son of Mrs. Tracy Dows, also is exhibiting . . . as is Mrs. Forbes Watson, who was there yesterday in a black hat and dark fur coat. Mrs. Randolph Winslow, wife of Capt. Winslow, U. S. Army, also dropped in during the gallery's cocktail hour, wearing a black coat and black beret. As Marcella Comes, she has her own show now in Georgetown at the Little Gallery.

Stunning Betsy Seymour, daughter of the president of Yale University, and now one of the executives of the Phillips Studio House, wore a powder blue wool frock with pleated insets. She has been with the gallery almost a year . . . and says this is her first job.

Polish Counselor And Wife Attend

Also present were the Counselor of the Polish Embassy and Mme. Wankowicz. Evidently they're "that way" about all the arts for in addition to the Studio House exhibition yesterday, they seldom miss a symphony concert on Sunday afternoons. Mme. Wankowicz looked extremely striking in a black ensemble, her hat trimmed with a black veil and an ascot of glittering silver cloth at her throat.

In the receiving line in addition to Miss Roberts and Mrs. Phillips were Mrs. C. Law Watkins, wife of the Director of Studio House, who wore green velvet; Mrs. Robert Franklin Gates, who wore a dress of a soft deep shade of blue; and Miss Mary Bradley who was in black with a sparkling rhinestone clip in her black hat. Others receiving were Mrs. James Bonbright in black with gold trim; Miss Jane Culbertson and Miss Peggy Hall.

Mrs. Corrin Strong, in a light blue hat and dark fur coat, was present, as were Mrs. Brook Lee and Mrs. Jennings Hackett.

Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock Returns to Home Here

Mrs. Gilbert Hitchcock, widow of Senator Hitchcock, returned to her residence on Kalorama road yesterday after a month's visit in Memphis, Tenn., and Omaha, Nebr.

In Omaha Mrs. Hitchcock was the guest of her sister, Mrs. Denman Kountze.

About the Town

With Dudley Harmon

"I COULDN'T GET INTO the house for quite a while," said a member of the Bradley family yesterday. "There were about 17 other Bradleys on the doorstep."

That gives you an idea of how much a family party was the tea given yesterday by Mrs. Charles Bradley to introduce her daughter, Barbara, to Capital society. This family, which has given its name to Bradley Farms, Bradley Hills, and Bradley Lane, is a definite and important part of "cavedweller" Washington, and has numerous ramifications.

To name but a few of them who were present yesterday—there was Mrs. Joseph Bradley and her daughter, Mary, who is a cousin of the debutante; Mrs. Charles Bradley, jr., daughter-in-law of the hostess; Dr. and Mrs. Thomas Bradley, and Sevellon Brown, nephew of Mrs. Charles Bradley. Then there were Maj. and Mrs. David Barry, the former is the son of the late David Barry, for many years seargeant at arms of the Senate, and is the uncle of Sevellon Brown, but it's getting too complicated, even if you've followed us this far.

There was not a single diplomat or official at yesterday's party, which, in Washington, is news. Instead, the guests were mostly people who have lived in the Capital for several generations, and who have known the debutante since she was a little girl.

The latter, by the way, looked just as a debutante should in a gown of golden satin cut severely with a decollete neckline. She carried a bouquet of russet chrysanthemums. Mrs. Bradley wore pale blue and a neckline and earrings of pearls.

* * * *

MISS SALLY BRADLEY, who looks like her older sister, was very much present, seeing that everybody got punch or coffee, as the case might be. Her crimson velvet gown was made with short, puffed sleeves and a square neckline. Alice Barry, who makes her debut this afternoon—she is the daughter of the aforementioned David Barrys—was also assisting during the afternoon. Other debutantes who helped at the party were Miss Mary Wilson, Miss Alex Rowan, Miss Eileen Harris and Miss Louis Burke, who will be presented by her parents next Wednesday, the afternoon before Thanksgiving.

Pouring tea during the afternoon were Mrs. Barry, whose black afternoon frock was trimmed at the neck with blue; Mrs. Charles Bradley, jr., attractive young Mrs. Sevellon Brown, who helps her husband with his work as editor of the Pathfinder, a magazine which his father, Sevellon Brown, sr., of Providence acquired a year or so ago, and Mrs. John Flannery.

* * * *

AND AMONG THOSE present we also glimpsed Mrs. R. H. Dunlap, active in work for the National Symphony Orchestra as well as being a novelist; Mrs. Reeve Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph Kauffmann, Mrs. Andrew Hero, the former Gertrude Faust; Mrs. Douglas Laing, whose sister, Laurie Harris, was married about a week ago; Mrs. Frederick Solger, Miss Anne Carter Greene and Miss Alys Downing, both former presidents of the Junior League; Miss Betsy Burke, Dr. and Mrs. Louis Greene, Dr. Loren Johnson, Laura and Alice Tuckerman, Nathan Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Poe, Mrs. Carol Morgan, Mrs. Walter Chappell, Mrs. William Chapin Huntington, Mrs. Austin Kautz and Miss Katharine Poe.

Miss Frances Pickett Bride Of Julian Stevenson Martin

Wedding One of Prettiest This Season; Reception at the Home of Mr. and Mrs. Pickett Follows Church Ceremony.

One of the prettiest weddings of the season took place last evening at the Transfiguration Episcopal Church when Miss Frances Day Pickett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ludo Carradine Pickett, became the bride of Julian Stevenson Martin, son of Dr. and Mrs. Frank J. Martin.

With the Rev. J. J. Queally officiating at the 8 o'clock ceremony, the couple stood before an altar banked with ferns, palms and chrysanthemums. Before the wedding party moved down the aisle, Miss Juanita Claxon sang two solos.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was beautifully gowned in white moire, with a full skirt and long sleeves tight at the wrist and gathered into fullness above the elbow. Her hip-length tulle veil, held in place by a halo of white satin flowers, fell over her face. She carried a prayer book and a corsage of gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Riley Is Matron of Honor

Mrs. J. J. Riley, the matron of honor, wore a frock of pink moire styled similarly to that of the bride and her bouquet was of token roses. Other attendants included four bridesmaids—Miss Dorothy Pickett and Miss Margaret Pickett, sisters of the bride; Miss Rebecca Martin, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Jewell Williams, of East Orange, N. J. Their gowns were of St. James' rose moire, cut on lines like the bride's dress, and they carried white chrysanthemums.

Dr. Martin, father of the bridegroom, was best man, and ushers were the bride's brother, Frederick Pickett; Jack Easter, Sidney Rumsey, William Alexander, Carter Thomas and Richard Tydins.

Reception at Pickett Home

Immediately following the ceremony, there was a reception at the home of the bride's parents, 2025 Park road. Mrs. Pickett, who received the guests, was gowned in black lace, and the bridegroom's mother, who assisted, also wore black lace.

Out-of-town guests who attended the wedding and the reception included Mr. and Mrs. Jack Danner, of Chicago; Mr. and Mrs. John White, of Staunton, Va., and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Mitchell, of Baltimore.

After the reception, the couple left for New York, from which port they will sail for a trip to the West Indies. The bride's traveling costume was a tailored beige wool dress, with coat of brown caracul and brown accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin, upon their return December 6, will live in Washington.

Ahearns to Be At Home Here

On return from their wedding trip to Florida Mr. and Mrs. James Howard Ahearn will make their home in Washington. The bride formerly was Miss Margaret Elizabeth Higgins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Bohrer Higgins. Mr. Ahearn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Carroll Ahearn.

The wedding, which took place at the Shrine of the Sacred Heart October 25, was performed by the Rev. Lawrence J. Wempe, who celebrated nuptial mass after the ceremony.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore white moire, and her tulle veil was held by a cluster of lilies of the valley. She carried a white prayerbook, from which fell a shower of lilies of the valley.

Miss Mary Helen Higgins, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and wore a gown of royal blue moire, trimmed in fuchsia velvet, with a short face veil, held with a cluster of flowers. Her colonial bouquet matched the colors in her dress.

Her other attendants were Mrs. Vincent X. Flaherty, sister of the bride, and Miss Joan O'Connor, who wore rose moire trimmed in dubonnet. The velvet flowers in their hair matched their costumes. They also carried colonial bouquets.

John C. Ahearn, brother of the bridegroom, was best man and the ushers were Davis Ahearn, another brother of the bridegroom, and Randolph Brady.

Gov. Hoey Tells North Carolinians Their Budget Is Balanced at Society's Governor's Reception

Leaders Attend Annual Affair in Shoreham Ballroom.

By Jessie Ash Arndt,
The Post Club Editor.

North Carolinians heard good news—that of a balanced budget—from Gov. Clyde L. Hoey, who, with Mrs. Hoey, was guest of honor last night at the annual governor's night reception of the North Carolina State Society in the ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. The State and her subdivisions are reducing the public debt at the rate of $10,000,000 a year and economy in government is still regarded as a virtue there, he told them.

"The State this year had the heaviest budget of expenditures in its history and yet it did not increase taxes," said Gov. Hoey. "There have been more reductions than increases but our budget is balanced and there is no deficit notwithstanding the greatly increased public service.

"The health service is being intelligently administered," he said. "A full social security program has been adopted in compliance with the Federal standards, including old-age assistance, dependent children and the blind, as well as those engaged in industry and business. Already we have one of the best parole systems of any State and we have just established a model probation system which is fast developing. Educational and religious instruction is given in our prisons under capable and trained leadership and prison industries are being established for the manufacture of prison supplies and for giving prisoners practical training. The purpose is to aid in making the prison self-sustaining and at the same time reclaiming the prisoners and preparing them for same honest avocation when released from prison. We have fair and just labor laws. The whole State is hopefully going forward.

"The total income of the people of the State this year will exceed $900,000,000—rather equitably divided between agriculture, manufacturing, transportation, construction, and professions and business. The population continues to increase so that we now rank twelfth in the Union. We stand fifth in agricultural income and third in income from cash crops—only Texas and California surpassing North Carolina. We produce more cotton per acre than any State in the Union.

Gov. Hoey was introduced by Giles Yoemans Newton, president of the North Carolina Society, in the absence of Senator Robert E. Reynolds, who was scheduled to make the introduction but was ill. The introduction and address were broadcast over a Southern radio hook-up.

Preceding the reception, there was a dinner given by officers and past presidents and secretaries of the society in honor of the Governor and Mrs. Hoey. The table was decorated with chrysanthemums and fall foliage, and national and State flags.

In addition to the guests of honor and president of the society, those at the dinner included Representative Frank W. Hancock, Miss Augusta Landis, Lieut. Comdr. O. C. Foote, M. C., U. S. N.; Mr. and Mrs. Aubrey D. McFadyen, Mr. and Mrs. John W. Burrus, Charles P. Gay, Gen. and Mrs. Albert L. Cox, Mr. and Mrs. Boyd-ston Satterfield, Mr. and Mrs. S. Max Gardner and Mrs. Norman Britton.

The Governor was a luncheon guest of the State's congressional delegation. Although both were scheduled to be present, neither Senator Josiah W. Bailey nor Senator Reynolds could attend. Senator Bailey was speaking against the antilynching bill and Senator Reynolds was in a Baltimore hospital.

Other guests at the luncheon included Thurmond Chatham, of Winston-Salem, and C. A. Cannon, of Concord, textile manufacturer, and Robert M. Hanes, of Winston-Salem, vice president of the American Bankers' Association.

Women to Back Merit System

President's Ideas Approved by Directors of National League of Voters.

The President's merit system recommendations received official approval of the National League of Women Voters by action of its board of directors announced today as the outstanding feature of its week's deliberations in Washington. The league has long waged a campaign "to pillory the patronage system."

The board also "rejoiced that the President urges the Congress to banish child labor in the production of goods moving in or competing in interstate commerce."

Stressing specific clauses of the President's message urging Congress "to extend the merit system upward, outward and downward to cover practically all non-policy-determining posts," and to "set up" a statutory modernized machinery for the permanent enforcement of merit principles in appointment, promotion and personnel management throughout the Government service," the 15-member league board expressed as its concerted and considered opinion:

"It is to be hoped that in carrying out these recommendations, prososals for an advisory board of citizens and for a highly qualified personnel administrator, selected from a list prepared by a special examining board other than the appointing power, be included."

The league board as a whole ended its declaration there, explaining that the governing body of the National League of Women Voters prefers to concentrate on a few matters of paramount importance to good government, rather than pass many ringing resolutions.

Discussion of Dahlias To Be Heard by Club

The Takoma Horticultural Club will have its final meeting of the year Monday night at 8 o'clock at the Takoma Branch Library. John L. Bishop, president of the National Capital Dahlia Society, will be guest speaker and will discuss "Winter Storage of Dahlia Tubers."

A business meeting will precede the program and the nominating committee, including J. Preston Swecker, chairman; Mrs. J. N. Quinn and Col. W. H. England, will present names to be voted on for 1938 officers.

Catholic Students Are to Give Dance

The Catholic Student's Mission Crusade will hold a dance tomorrow night at Sacred Heart Academy Hall, for the installation of the newly elected officers.

There will be addresses by the director of the Washington Conference, the Rev. Louis C. Vaeth, and the outgoing president, Miss Evelyn Keene.

The officers to be introduced are: President, Francis Naughton; vice president, Miss Katherine O'Donoghue; treasurer, Miss Virginia Beane; corresponding secretary, Miss Mary Agnes Bier; recording secretary, Miss Margaret MacDonald; publicity secretary, William Murray; parliamentarian, Miss Betty Krogmann; social secretary, Miss Bernadette Garges; custodian of property, Miss Grace Goodwin; personnel officer, Miss Charlotte Augherton; sergeant at arms, Jack Rulien; assistant corresponding secretary, Miss Lucille Brady; chairman interconference committee, Miss Anna Grambo.

The annual fall reunion and stunt party of the alumnae association of Holy Cross Academy will be held tonight at the Academy. The president, Miss Regina Hartnett, has named Miss Marie Diamond as general chairman of the committee in charge assisted by Miss Marite Houlihan, Miss Mary Estelle Wright and Miss Agnes Drew.

Jewish Juniors Planning Dance

The philanthropic work of the Council of Jewish Juniors will be aided by proceeds from the annual pre-Thanksgiving dance which is planned for tomorrow night at the Wardman Park Hotel.

The juniors contribute each season to the Needlework Guild, are active in Braille work, aid in social work and every summer help support the fund for sending underprivileged children to Camp Chipawummsic, in Virginia.

Alumnae of Holy Cross To Give Party, Dance

Miss Meriam Hartnett will be general chairman for the annual scholarship card party and dance of the alumnae association of Holy Cross Academy, on Wednesday, December 1, at Wardman Park Hotel. Assisting her will be Miss Mary Virginia Burke, Miss Agnes Dougherty and Miss Margaret Bachelder.

The following members of the board will receive the guests: Miss Regina Hartnett, president; Mrs. John Quinn, Mrs. L. A. Widmayer, Miss Elizabeth Leech, Miss Gwendolyn Dickinson, Miss Lucy Hammett, Mrs. Louise Hoover Egan, Mrs. Lillian Harper, Mrs. Melita Link, Miss Helen Casey and Miss Sara Moriarity.

Model Housing Project to Open

House-Warming Is Slated on Friday Afternoon at Sternberg Court.

An apartment house where families with children are welcomed as tenants will be the scene of a housewarming next Friday afternoon, when Sternberg Court is opened for inspection with formal ceremonies, in Southwest Washington.

The American Association of University Women, the Women's City Club, the Monday Evening Club and Barney Neighborhood House are co-operating with the Southwest Citizens Association and the Clara D. Neligh Committee for better housing in official recognition of this new project. Harry Wender, a young Washington attorney and president of the Southwest Citizens Association, with his wife, is one of the residents of the court. The program will be presented from the balcony of their apartment, 1414 Third street. The housing project has no more enthusiastic supporter than Mr. Wender for he attributes his career to the influence of Neighborhood House on his life from the time he was one of the children in its day nursery.

The apartments are rented at the lowest possible price including heat and light and, according to the public-spirited citizens who are members of the Washington Sanitary Housing Company, which built them, they mark the beginning of transforming a neglected area into a pleasant residential section for people of moderate means.

Miss Ellen S. Vinton, who is a member of the board of Barney Neighborhood House and, for many years, has been actively interested in the movement for better housing, will be among those at next Friday's ceremonies.

"We want families with children to have the advantages these apartments offer," she said. "We can't expect much of children in school when they come from dismal, overcrowded homes—and there should be no such within the shadow of our Capitol. It is not a good start for American citizens."

The housewarming program will be presided over by Dr. Leroy A. Halbert, chairman of the committee; Mrs. Flora McGill Keefer will sing; there will be a tribute to Surgeon-General Sternberg by Appleton P. Clark, jr., president of the Washington Sanitary Housing Company; greetings from Mr. Wender and an address by Canon Anson Phelps Stokes, chairman of the Washington Housing Association.

"Madame Chairman" . . .

THE AUXILIARY to the auxiliary—now wait, that's exactly right; it's the Twigs, which is (or are) the junior group affiliated with the senior auxiliary to the board of lady managers of the Alexandria Hospital—will give a dance tonight as a hospital benefit at the Old Dominion Boat Club. Mrs. Robert Wheat is president, Mrs. Stanley King, Mrs. Robert Heydenreich and Miss Page Cauthorne are members of the committee on arrangements for the party.

THE NATIONAL EXECUTIVE BOARD of the American Gold Star Mothers, at its recent meeting, passed a resolution urging a constitutional amendment providing that only in event of invasion of the United States or its territories shall Congress have power to declare war until it is confirmed by a majority vote of all votes cast in a national referendum. Another resolution put the organization on record as definitely opposed to conscription of our human or national resources for any freign war and favoring the limitation of armed activities of the United States to "defense of our own soil from invasion by a foreign power."

The resolutions will be sent to the President and both houses of Congress. Mrs. H. B. Blake is president.

MR. AND MRS. CRAWFORD NOBLE, of the Noble Hotels, in Arkansas, are to be in Washington Monday to pay their official visit to the local chapter of the Hotel Greeters, of which Mr. Noble is national president, and the auxiliary, of which Mrs. Noble is the head. A joint meeting of the two organizations Monday night at the Mayflower Hotel will precede a reception, at which Ralph Polio will be host. The Nobles will show motion pictures taken at the National Greeter Home in Denver.

Ball to Raise Chapter Funds

D. A. R. Plans Annual Affair for Education Welfare Work.

Plans have been completed for the eighteenth Continental Ball of the Abigail Hartman Rice Chapter, D. A. R., which will be given at the Hay-Adams House tomorrow night. The ball, held annually to raise funds for the welfare and educational work carried on by the chapter, particularly among underprivileged mountain children, promises to be highly successful this year, according to Mrs. Edgar E. Good, chairman of the committee.

Additional patrons and patronesses for the affair just announced include Mrs. Harry Colfax Grove, past State regents; Mrs. D. L. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. William D. Leetch, Mrs. Ross T. McIntire, Miss Ann David, Capt. Charles E. Smithson, Miss Elinor B. Moudy, Capt. and Mrs. William R. Bullis, Lieut. and Mrs. William R. Lane, Miss Francis Mixsell, Mr. John J. Columbus, Miss Mary Columbus, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert H. Shinnick, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Farrar, Lieut. and Mrs. F. K. Inman, Miss Dorothy Gatchell, Dr. and Mrs. John L. De Mayo and Mr. and Mrs. John F. Wolfe.

Plan Luncheon Tomorrow.

The women's branch of the Catholic University Alumnae Association will give a fall luncheon at the Mayflower Hotel tomorrow. Mrs. Mildred C. Bennert will have charge of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Clara Purcell, Mrs. J. P. Fitzpatrick, Miss Vivian Barr, Miss Winifred McNeil, Dr. Bernice Wall, Mrs. Lucy Berrarducci and Miss Marcella Maloy.

Thetas Entertain.

The Washington City Association of Theta Upsilon Sorority held a dinner dance at the Lotus last night, with Mrs. Dix Price, the president, in charge. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. L. B. Camera Record of Your Community Chest Dollars in Action

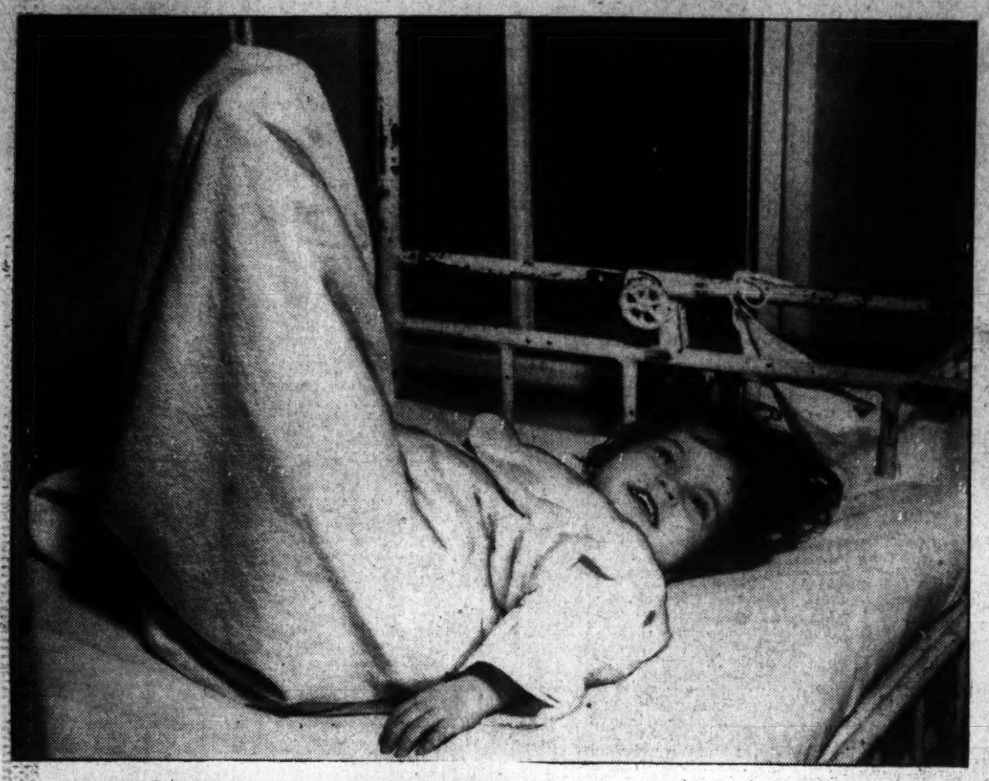
The Post is the only daily morning paper in W ashington with A. P. WIREPHOTO Service.



1. THIRTY-THREE CENTS for health and hospitals. This lad, like one out of every 12 persons in Washington, couldn't have the medical care he needs were it not for the Chest. He caught his foot between the sideboard and spring of a bed and snapped the bone. At present he is among patients at Children's Hospital.

2. NINE CENTS for institutions for children. More than 600 children in orphanages and institutions are aided by Chest contributors, who play the part of emergency parent. Miss Elizabeth Thomas, director of the Washington Home for Foundlings, inspects the washing job of her young charges. There are nine similar institutions in the District.

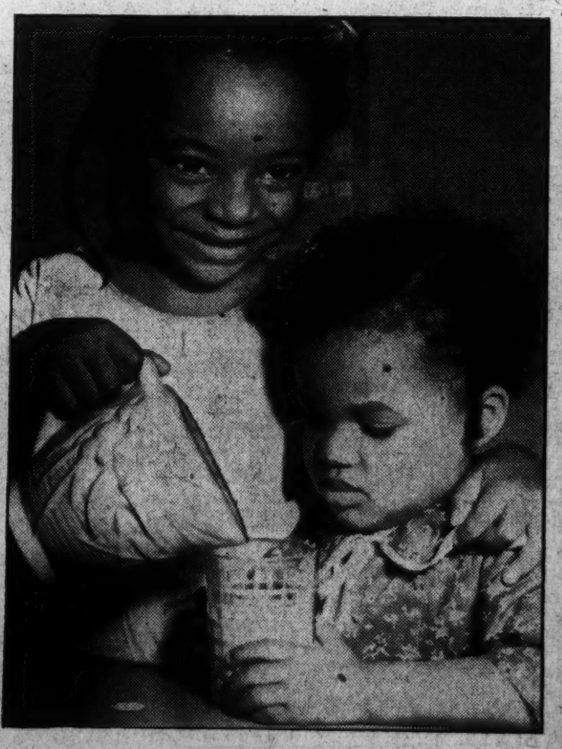
3. THIRTEEN CENTS for headwork that guides the heart work. At the Social Service exchange "chiselers" haven't a chance to benefit through Chest funds. Elizabeth Smith and Mrs. Hazel Gafney are sorting through the records of all families that receive assistance through that agency. The clearing house prevents duplication of this work.

Post Staff Photos—McCoy.

4. CHARACTER BUILDING. Boy Scouts, Girl Scouts and other youth organizations, although not charities, are run below cost so that youths from all income groups can afford them. Those who use such services and can afford to pay full costs are expected to do so through Community Chest contributions.

5. TWO CENTS for institutions for the aged. Although old age pensions care for most of Washington's aged, Chest givers are maintaining homes for almost 150 who, for various reasons, are ineligible for pensions. This couple, at the Hebrew Home for the Aged, came to Washington as newlyweds 52 years ago.

6. TWENTY-FOUR CENTS for family welfare and protective work. Capt. Hazel Banks of the Salvation Army brings hope and help to a family who have had more than their share of trouble. With material relief, friendly guidance or both, the Chest supported agencies that helped over 5,600 families on the road to independence last year.



7. NINETEEN CENTS for settlement and character-building agencies. Mothers often have to work to keep their families fed and clothed, but their little ones aren't neglected. Day nurseries in the five white and three colored settlements give the pre-school child good care and good food. For details, just inquire of these Northwest Settlement youngsters.

8. PROTECTIVE WORK. As has been his custom for 15 years, Sergt. William Doney, of the Washington Terminal Police, brings a bewildered young traveler to the Travelers Aid Desk at Union Station. Miss Evelyn Conway, Travelers Aid worker, will find a way of helping him as she has many a child in similar circumstances.

MARYLAND RATED 6-5 CHOICE OVER GEORGETOWN

The Washington Post Sports

* X WASHINGTON: FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 19, 1937 19

This Morning

Marshall Sees Team as Civic Unit.

By Shirley Povich.

Mr. George P. Marshall, the soapsuds showman who pyramided a cake of naphtha into 52 laundries and a football team, took another pull on his well-worn dream-pipe yesterday and said, in the Marshall manner:

"Mark me, there will be a new record for football crowds in Washington on the day my Redskins meet the Green Bay Packers at Griffith Stadium."

POVICH.

Then, suddenly aware that he was talking, perhaps, for publication, Mr. Marshall hastily added: "On November 28, at 2 o'clock, 30,000 fans will be sitting in the $1.10, $1.65 and $2.20 seats which are now on sale at all downtown hotels and my Redskins office."

And if that crowd does not constitute a record attendance for Washington football, Mr. Marshall will be genuinely disappointed. In fact, he will be deeply hurt. He envisions the Green Bay crowd as his last convincing argument to fling into the teeth of the doubters who said professional football would not take root here. He would like to send a set of record figures back to Boston where the fans avoided his ball team as if the Redskins were lepers with the black plague running interference.

It's very personal with him, this business of producing the record crowd for Washington football. Mr. Marshall, who is thoroughly convinced that his Redskins are a great civic enterprise and that the City of Washington has a genuine equity in his football club, cannot quite understand how his removal of the Redskins franchise from Boston to Washington has not won him some kind of a distinguished service medal.

Of course, Mr. Marshall, who owns 51 per cent of the stock in the Redskins, has a slight financial interest in the crowd-drawing powers of his football team, but his listeners are convinced that is not paramount. Mr. Marshall, who promoted himself Washington's biggest laundry business, a social status and a movie-star wife, does not want to be stigmatized by a flop as a football entrepreneur.

• • • •

He Puts Pros Over.

Mr. Marshall, in his frenzy to smash all attendance records, might conceivably construe a 20,000 or 25,000 crowd as something of a flop, but the fact remains that his football venture here has been everything but a floperoo.

In his first three ball games at Griffith Stadium, Marshall drew more customers than his Redskins were able to turn out during a full season at Boston, and on the road their drawing power has been downright amazing. And it has been the fine, discerning hand of Marshall which produced a profit for the Redskins, even if a single customer fails to show up for his team's three remaining games.

Marshall, no green hand at either the competitive or the financial phases of pro football, rightly judged the capabilities of Slingin' Sammy Baugh, both as a performer and a gate magnet. In Baugh, who was passed up by a half dozen other teams in the league, Marshall came up with the league's greatest drawing card and its finest forward passer. If his Redskins could command publicity for no other reason, the presence of Baugh assured Marshall's team ample and profitable press notices.

The Redskins' ultimate destination in the Eastern division of the national league actually depends not so much on the success of the Washington team but on the success of the Green Bay Packers. The Packers hold the fate of both the Redskins and the Giants, the only teams now remaining in the Eastern title race.

• • • •

Packers Can Help.

The Packers could do Marshall and the Redskins a distinct service by beating the Giants on Sunday at New York. Assuming that Washington does, coincidentally, beat the Rams at Cleveland, then the Redskins would show a half game margin at the top of the Eastern division standings.

The following week would see the Giants meeting the Brooklyn Dodgers, and the New York club is a virtual certainty to win that game. In Washington, on the same day, the Redskins will be battling the Packers and on the result of that game will hinge many of the Redskins' chances of winning the title. If, perchance, the Redskins beat the Packers, they would move into New York for the final game on December 5, needing only a tie to nose out the Giants for the Eastern title.

Conversely, if the Packers beat the Redskins as well as the Giants, then, in that final game at New York, the Giants would need only to tie the Redskins to win the Eastern title. The Redskins would need a victory over the Giants, would need only a victory over the Giants to gain the championship.

Hoyas, Terps See Gridiron Flicker

On the eve of their traditional gridiron meeting, the Varsity squads of Georgetown and Maryland Universities will spend a busman's holiday by watching one of the most outstanding football motion pictures ever made, "Navy Blue and Gold" at Loew's Capitol Theater tonight. Both Varsity squads as well as the coaching staffs of each institution will be guests of honor of the theater.

Mid-South Co-Leaders 2 Under Par

Pettigrew, E.J. Harrison, Tommy Armour Trail With 71's.

By the Associated Press.

Pinehurst, N. C., Nov. 18.—Vic Ghezzi, of Deal, N. J., Ben Loving, of Rumson, N. J., and Bob Stupple, of Chicago, fired sub-par 70s through crisp, sunshiny weather today for a three-way tie for top place as a field of 90-odd reached the halfway position in the 36-hole Mid-South Open golf tournament.

They and a trio of 71 shooters were the only ones to outdo par, 72.

The three bracketed in the runner-up position were Tommy Armour, of Chicago; E. J. Harrison, of Little Rock, Ark., and Leon Pettigrew, of Flushing, Long Island.

Henry Clay Poe, 21-year-old former Duke University star, making his tournament debut as a pro, rifled a par 72 to tie five links veterans, Bobby Cruickshank, of Richmond, Va.; Tony Manero, former National Open champ; Dick Metz, of Chicago; Harry Cooper, of Chicopee, Mass., and Terl Johnson, of Philadelphia.

Cruickshank had a great day despite three bad holes. He had two balls buried out of sight in bunkers, which required him to take sixes. He added another six, but with these three big numbers on his card he finished out for a par.

Mildred Babe Didrikson, woman's Olympic star, tried the long course from the back tees, but decided not to turn in a card. She said she quit scoring after the fourteenth.

The concluding 18 holes will be played tomorrow.

Steele Wins Rope Party

Cliff Olsen Bows Before 1,600 Addicts.

Before 1,600 persons, one of the largest Turn(er)-outs of the season, Ray Steele, California adonis, publicly hung Clif Olsen, Minnesota Swede, last night, to win the feature match of Uncle Joe Turner's weekly wrestle show at Arnica Hall.

Employing the twisted ring ropes as a make-shift noose, Steele won the necking party from his villianous foe in an even 25 minutes. And this is the way the crazy thing went—

Following 20 minutes of the usual biff-bang, riotous mayhem, Steele managed to get the hangman's noose about Olsen's stubble-haired noggin and refused to release him when Referee Benny Bortnick motioned. So Bortnick, consciencious worker that he is, proceded to first remove Steele's aggresive body then Olsen's.

But when Olsen was freed from his confines, he found the prone position much to his liking, so dazed and short-breathed was he, and forgot to arise from his horizontal position. Thus progressed the build-up to the finale which ensued when Steele merely pounced upon Olsen's prostrate form and pinned him.

In the semi-windup, Mike Maqurki, former Manhattan U. athlete, pinned Reb. Russell, Texas cyclone in 21 minutes with a series of body slams, and a crotch hold.

Abe Kashey, Syrian, was disqualified in his match with Jim Coffield after 13 minutes of disorderly conduct in which the ever popular Kashey tore referee Cyclone Burn's shirt from his manly chest and beat him and Coffield unmercifully. Pat Meehan, Irishman, made his local debut by disposing of Joe Maynard, New York, in 20 minutes with a flying scissors.

Cardozo Beats Armstrong, 6-0; Eyes Grid Title

Practically clinching the colored high school city gridiron championship, Cardozo Business High defeated Armstrong yesterday at Griffith Stadium, 6 to 0. Defeat of Dunbar by Armstrong next Monday, which is being freely predicted, will place Cardozo in the championship role.

The lone touchdown, which proved the margin of victory yesterday, was made in the second quarter on a 10-yard pass, Mitchell to Miles, and a 15-yard gallop by the latter across the goal-line after skillfuly eluding Armstrong backs. Mitchell failed for the extra point.

Hoyas Paint Bronze Terrapin, Then Irate Terps Paint Hoyas

Georgetown met Maryland last night in the first of their pregame scrimmages—and came off second best. It all happened in front of Ritchie Coliseum, College Park, where a somewhat bewildered terrpain in bronze rests (or rested) imbedded in cement.

Said terrapin was resting comfortably on his pedestal about 10 o'clock last night when a party of about 50 Georgetown gentlemen called and insisted on his coming with them. (This at the expense of a few yards of well-laid cement.) The terp was joining in the fun, if a bit reluctantly, when to his rescue came a half hundred Maryland boys.

The Old Liners arrived in time to see their metal namesake subjected to the indignity of a coat of Georgetown colors, blue and gray. So, a half dozen visitors summarily were hauled off to Calvert Hall, a dormitory, where they were generously coated with their own varnish. Then Geary Eppley, director of athletics, arrived on the scene, halted further humiliation of the noctural visitors and had them returned to the Hilltop in Maryland students' cars.

Hope Chess! . . . . . By DeMoreland

And Then on the Other Hand...

By Shirley Povich.

Over in the adjacent column, you'll notice, Lew Atchison is having a horrible time of it trying to make out a case for Georgetown against Maryland tomorrow. Stubborn fellow that Atchison. He still persists in picking Georgetown to win. Oh, well . . .

The Georgetowns are nice boys, kind to their folks, respectful to their coach and fired with a commendable school spirit, but they're overmatched. It'll be a sad homecoming for Georgetown alumni. Why didn't they pick out the Shenandoah game for their homecoming ceremonies?

Sure, we can anticipate Atchison's arguments. He'll slyly remind us that Georgetown upset Maryland last year; that Georgetown tied Penn, a team that beat Maryland; that Georgetown licked New York U. and is just reaching its peak as the Maryland game nears; that Joe Mellendick will be the best back on the field tomorrow afternoon.

That will be his story and Maryland will stick him with it when the final whistle blows at Griffith Stadium. Sure, Georgetown tied Penn, which beat Maryland, but there were three little incidents in that Maryland-Penn game that do not augur so well for Georgetown. Those three incidents took the form of three Maryland touchdowns against Penn, a team which held Georgetown scoreless.

Comparing the Scores.

Upstart Atchison will probably mention also that Western Maryland, a team that was beaten, 64-0, by West Virginia, and lost to Maryland, only 6-0, and that Georgetown tied West Virginia. But he should know by this time that this business of comparing scores is still the quickest way to a straight-jacket.

Georgetown will make it interesting for the fans with its fancy stuff—those lateral passes and tricky formations—but Maryland figures to make it very disinteresting for the Georgetown coaches. Dobson-coached teams never worry about that trick stuff. Down at Virginia, Frank Murray brought all his Marquette tricks to the Virginia team and Maryland crammed those forward passes and laterals back down Virginia's throat.

We saw a lot of those Georgetown laterals against Maryland last year. If the sidelines had been the goal lines, Georgetown would have scored a dozen touchdowns. The Hoyas were running 40 yards and gaining one. As it was, their lone touchdown evolved from a blocked punt.

Incidentally, where was this Mellendick when Georgetown needed somebody to carry the ball back there in the early days of the schedule when they were getting licked by such as Lafayette?

Three Good Men and True.

In case Georgetown or Atchison haven't heard, there are three chaps in the Maryland backfield named Meade, Weidinger and Morndorff. They did pretty well against Syracuse, Florida, Virginia, V. M. I. and Penn. When Meade hits that Georgetown line, it's going to be a job for the secondary defense. And when Weidinger fades back to throw one of his passes, Georgetown's panic could be crated and shipped. And Mondorff—well, he needs a separate paragraph all by himself.

All that this Mondorff is liable to do is stand back there and kick a 40-yard field goal at any time during the ball game and send the Georgetowns home weeping. He sent Virginia to the crying room in the last three minutes and he let V. M. I. have it with a minute to play.

Ah, there—Atchison.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Georgetown's supporters can sleep more comfortably tonight, safe in the knowledge that Shirley Povich has picked Maryland to whip the Hoyas tomorrow in their annual classic at the stadium.

He picked 'em to win last year, too, remember? But whatever prompted him to bestow his blessings on the Terps again this year is beyond me. He is still a little dizzy, perhaps, from falling off that limb. But he's off again (and when I say off—I mean it) with his 1937 selection currently appearing in the adjoining column at no extra cost.

The first argument that pops in mind concerns Bill Guckeyson. He was a pretty good ball carrier, and if memory serves correctly, Povich more than once said he was a halfback among halfbacks, an all-American in any man's league. Well, he played for Maryland last year, and if the Terps couldn't win with him in their backfield how in the world are they going to win without him?

G. U. Adds Punch to Defense.

Then, that 1936 game was almost strictly a battle of Maryand's offense against Georgetown's defense—and the defense won. This time Georgetown comes up to the game with the same defense—possibly a better one, but this time it also has a scoring punch. And Maryland's offense, on the other hand, hasn't profited any by Guckeyson's departure. The Terps have their passers, kickers and ball carriers, but the offense doesn't measure up to last year's.

When Jack Hagerty turns on the juice and puts Joe Mellendick, Elmer Moulin, "Bull" Dormahray and Tommy Keating in the ball game at the same time, it's going to be good-by Maryland. Mellendick is certain to get away at least once, maybe twice, but once will be enough. They may stop him a few times, but when they go grabbing for his ankles they're likely to discover that Keating has the ball instead, or Moulin is completing a pass to one of the ends.

The point I'm making is that Maryland will not be able to concentrate on its own attack this year as it did last, it's got to think about stopping some good backs as well as scoring a few points.

Speaking of Records . . .

And speaking of records, Georgetown's doesn't look so bad when you sift the facts. It lost to a couple of teams which are undefeated at this late stage in the season, Holy Cross and Lafayette. It tied Penn, a team that defeated Maryland, after shoving it all over the field and actually scoring a touchdown that wasn't allowed. It lost to Manhattan, as a few other topnotch clubs have, and then tied West Virginia, which gave Pitt a helluva run for its money and is undefeated otherwise. Then it outplayed and defeated New York University, 6-0. When I think of winning over Maryland tomorrow, that record doesn't look so bad.

Lastly, how about the psychological angle to this game? Maryland comes up to in the role of favorite, with the best record (although some of those victories would bear closer scrutiny) and with everything to lose tomorrow. Georgetown is going into action with a happy-go-lucky attitude. It's going to shoot the works, as it hasn't thus far, and it's going to win.

Alas, poor Povich. But he's more to be pitied than censored.

Guy-Curran Paces Store Bowlers

The Guy-Curran bowling team took undisputed possession of first place in the Department Store League last night at Recreation alleys by taking a 2-1 decision from the third-place Lansburgh's team, despite Al McDonald's 351 set. Kann's defending champions, led by Al Watson's 375 and Irwin Simon's 367, took the odd game from Woodward & Lothrop, knocking the latter to second place.

The Hecht Co., paced by Dave Penney's 381, swept their set from Jelleff's, while Hahn's Shoes took the odd game from Lamb Seal & Stencil Co., despite Clayton Brown's 353.

Rival Coaches Plan Strategy for Game

Calm Prevails in Both Camps as Players Reach Peak; Close Game Forecast as Ticket Supply Dwindles; 20,000 to See Classic.

By Lewis F. Atchison.

Maryland continued to rule a 6-5 favorite over Georgetown as the District's two top-ranking elevens completed major preparations for the fourth annual renewal of their football classic tomorrow at Griffith Stadium.

In some quarters Maryland supporters were giving Georgetown six points at even money, but all reliable indications point to even money wagering before the kick-off. Maryland's potent scoring punch and Georgetown's stubborn defense, like last year, were the basis of all arguments.

A happy-go-lucky atmosphere prevailed in the rival camps, although a ripple of undercurrent nervousness was apparent at the Hilltop. The squads worked out about an hour, looking over the opposition's plays and running through their own before calling it a day. Both are at their peak, and the coaches are trying to guard against staleness.

Blackboards in the two dressing rooms were heavily chalked with new plays and defensive plans for the battle, but neither Hack Hagerty, of Georgetown, nor Frank Dobson, of Maryland, was willing to tip their hands. The gist of their conversation was to let the boys' actions on the field tomorrow speak for themselves.

Georgetown's line-up may be revised for the game, with Maury Nee starting for Al Snyder at end, and Herb Stadler replacing Johnny Frank at guard in the line. Charley Wychunas also is a possible starter in the backfield, although Hagerty is yet undecided about the matter. He may start the game eleven that faced New York University last week.

Maryland's hopes will be pinned on its suicide squad of 15 men who have played all of its major games this season with help. Of these, Frank Albarane, a tackle, has played 60 minutes of every game. Some have had as much as five minutes rest over this stretch, but it has been truly an "iron-man" eleven.

The lone position where Dobson may switch players without danger of weakening his club is end, where he has Bill Bryant, Johnny McCarthy, Blair Smith and Nick Budkoff to shift around. In the backfield Pershing Mondorff, field-goal kicker par excellence, and Johnny Boyda are the only safe substitutions he can make.

Early Score Aids Wilson To Win, 6-0

Bob Miller, Wilson center, surged through the Landon line with several teammates as Randy Perkins attempted to punt from his own 7-yard line. Three linemen blocked the ball and Miller grabbed it from the air, racing over the line for the lone score.

A fumble by Bill Leach, Wilson fullback, nearly resulted in a Landon touchdown midway in the third period, but two off-side penalties aided Wilson in its goal-line stand. Landon recovered the loose ball on the Wilson 8-yard line, where Leach had lost it, and immediately gained to the 3 when Wilson was penalized for off-sides.

However, two identical losses for the Bethesda boys on the next two plays threw them back to the 13-yard line. Unable to gain on the ground, Landon passed on fourth down, but Perkins' heave was grounded and Wilson took possession.

In the last period, a shovel pass from Dave Maloney, Wilson halfback, went to John J. Stevens, who took it on an end around play and raced 47 yards before being knocked out of bounds on the Landon 3-yard line. It resulted in the last scoring threat.

Blues' Swan Song To Be Hatless Affair

Eleven football Mohicans, all bare-headed, will play Gallaudet University's last grid game tomorrow in New York. But their heads won't be bare because of sentiment.

Although the Blue's game with Hofstra College in Gotham tomorrow is to ring a requiem on football at the Kendall Green university, it is not exactly an occasion to play football sans headgear—but necessity is. So due to the fact that some culprit walked off with Coach Turk Tobin's helmets, his team will be forced to entrain for the big city this morning minus the valuable equipment.

Georgetown Off N. Y. U. Schedule

New York, Nov. 18 (U.P.).—Ohio State and Rutgers will return to New York University's football schedule in 1938 after an absence of one year, Graduate Manager Al Nixon announced today.

Only newcomer to the Violets' program is Maine. Carnegie Tech and Georgetown will not play N. Y. U. next year but will return to the schedule in 1939. The Violets' eight game schedule:

October 1, Maine at New York.
October 15, North Carolina at New York.
October 22, Lafayette at Easton, Pa.
November 5, Lehigh at New York.
November 11, Colgate at New York.
November 19—Open.
November 26, Fordham at New York.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—POLYATA, $4.80, $3.60, $3.00; WARLAINE (field), $7.50, $4.00; SOLARIUM, $4.50.

POLYATA, rated while close to leaders, rallied to hand riding and drew out in closing sixteenth. WARLAINE broke in motion, disposed of SOIONE and BLUE PRELUDE to take command, but could not resist winner. SOLARIUM came strongly in final quarter. JOHARE rallied mildly. SOIONE stopped from hustling tactics. FANCY THAT went evenly.

DAILY DOUBLE, BROWN MOTH AND POLYATA, PAID $27.40.

FOURTH RACE—Six furlongs. Purse, $1,200 added. For all ages. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:06. Off 3:15. Winner, A. C. Compton's b. g. (3), by Pharamond II—Bossie. Trained by H. G. Bedwell. Net value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 1:12 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—CLINGENDAAL, $4.40, $3.40, $2.90; MUCHO GUSTO, $4.90, $3.00; SUNNED, $4.00.

CLINGENDAAL had to be rushed to get to front, shook off RAINLAND to draw out and was under pressure at end. MUCHO GUSTO raced forwardly throughout and finished gamely. SUNNED was closer than usual to pace and rallied only mildly.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-eighth miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:39. Off 3:45½. Winner, Dattner Stable's ch. g. (3), by Sortie—Masola. Trained by P. McCabe. Value to winner, $700; second, $180; third, $90; fourth, $30. Time, 1:58 3-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EDDIE H., $41.40, $14.80, $10.70; POMPETE (field), $6.20, $4.20; FIGHT BACK, $11.20.

EDDIE H. in thick of contention from start, took command when FIGHT BACK weakened and came again after being headed by POMPETE, but appeared to have been beaten. POMPETE saved ground entering stretch to better position and closed willingly. FIGHT BACK set early pace and tired gradually in final stages. JACKIE D. came from far back to gain sharply, but hung.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:12½. Off 4:14. Winner, L. H. Miner's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—CANPRA, $4.50, $2.90, $2.50; SOME BOY, $5.40, $4.00; BOUNDING COUNT, $4.40.

CANPRA, not hurried during early running, moved around horses to take command when asked and was weakening in final sixteenth. SOME BOY, a trailer in early racing, came with a belated rush on outside and was wearing down winner. BOUNDING COUNT went forwardly throughout.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-half miles. Purse, $1,000; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from stalls. Won driving; place same. Went to post 4:43. Off 4:46. Winner, A. H. Utterback's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—SECRET VOTE, $9.90, $5.00, $3.70; ROSS, $12.40, $9.30; PENCADER, $7.50.

SECRET VOTE, within striking distance from start, took command when placed to drive and just lasted ahead of ROSS' bold closing bid. ROSS dropped back after a quarter and came with good speed in final test. SLEUTH was allowed to settle into best stride and swerved into horses in stretch run for which he was disqualified.

Bowie, Nov. 18.—Clingendaal, owned by A. C. Compton, wealthy California sportsman, brought his earnings for this year to $24,220 by taking the Tench Handicap, all-ages feature race, at this plant today. Refusing to quit despite an impost of 125 pounds, the gelded son of Pharamond II shook off challenge after challenge to cling to first honors by a margin of a length over the Arabo Stable's Mucho Gusto. Sunned, owned by Mrs. B. F. Christmas, was third. Less than three lengths separated the five in the drive to the wire.

Clingendaal was installed the favorite by the crowd of 9,000 and his backers had no anxious moments during the running but they did have to chew cigars and twist handkerchiefs while the field was at the post. Clingendaal and Rainland had a breaking-up-the-start contest.

When the starting bell finally came, Jockey A. Shelhamer had to do a little hustling to get Clingendaal to the front but once there he did everything asked. Rainland and Mucho Gusto alternated in making bids but the young gelding had something for each. In the stretch, he drew clear and Shelhamer never stopped pumping.

Brown Moth, owned by J. J. Farrell, jr., won the first race of his career in the opening event under good handling by Jockey R. Eccard. The Brown Bud colt had to work his way to contention and took command in the final 20 yards. Sandusky finished second, a neck in front of a photo for third, which went to Camaraderie. Twelve non-winning juveniles faced Starter Milton.

Elwawa, paying a $16.90 mutuel, won the second race, in which 2 of the 12 horses fell. Tzigane, following the pace of Merrily On, stumbled and fell as the field swung for the stretch. Several of the riders managed to steer out of the way, but Sandy Belle tripped over the struggling gelding. Apprentice Jockey Pat McDermott, who rode Tzigane, suffered a broken collar bone, while Jackie Westrope, who rode Sandy Belle, escaped injury. Merrily On was a heavily played favorite and stopped as if shot in the stretch, to finish third behind Flying Victory.

The favorite, at a $40 mutuel, William Zeigler jr.'s Polyata won going away in the third race under the expert handling of Jockey Nick Wall. Warlaine, a long shot member of the field, was second, ahead of Solarium. Polyata was always within striking distance and won as the rider pleased.

The Dattner Stable's Eddie H., a winner at long odds earlier in the meeting, came back today to win a photo verdict over F. W. Walsh's Pompete, a field horse. Fight Back was third in the field of 11. The camera was almost alone in its choice of the winner. The chart callers to a man gave the victory to Pompete but, as usual, the outside horse was the medium of the payoff. The mutuel was $41.40. The majority of those who played the field placed their confidence in Katchican, one that failed to get up a gallop.

The favorite players were in stride in the sixth race when L. H. Miner's Canpra led a group of cheap ones home over the mile and a half course. Some Boy came from last place to make a bold rush at Canpra but the move was a half length short. Third money went to Bounding Count. Canpra paid $4.50.

Post Notes on Fishin'

By Bill Ackerman.

On Wednesday, a local fish dealer posted $10 collateral for his appearance in court to answer to the charge of possession and sale of undersized striped bass, which cannot be sold in the District under 9 inches.

He was apprehended by Sergt. Guy Rone, of the Metropolitan Police, who is also an enforcement officer of the Federal black bass law. More than 50 pounds of the undersized bass were seized in this one market.

ACKERMAN.

Good luck, and more power to you, Sergeant; a few more such raids, and maybe some of the other dealers who are also not above receiving and selling undersized game fish will get wise to the fact that it might prove costly to them.

There has been not the slightest letup in the rockfishing at Point Lookout with the exception of yesterday, when the wind blew so hard at times out of the northwest that it was impossible to find the fish, let alone catch them.

The shoals have moved well up into the mouth of the Potomac and the catches this week have all been made close to the Virginia shore, opposite Lookout and up as far as the Coan River. It is very possible that they will break up into smaller shoals shortly and go back to their regular grounds, although there is no sign of it at present.

* * * *

There are some exceptionally large fish right off the Coan, even though the present average is somewhere between 3 and 5 pounds. For those anglers who happen to be fishing light tackle when these big ones do hit, it is just too bad—they clean house.

But, at that, it is hard to decide whether to fish for the average with light tackle and enjoy it or to use heavier gear with the hope that you will be lucky and hit a fair percentage of the big fellows.

The cold weather of Thursday caused quite a few cancellations for boats that up to now have been almost impossible to obtain unless one engaged them far ahead.

Capt. L. M. Spriggs, at Piney Point, has Saturday open and several days next week. His catches have run from 17 to 80 every day this week with the exception of yesterday, when a lone 3-pounder was the sum total, but only due to the fact that when you got out from under the Point, the wind was raising them up and then knocking the tops off.

There is every indication that there will be a little wind tomorrow morning, but by noon it should be flattened out and perfect for good sport the rest of the afternoon.

Dave Longnecker, secretary of the Washington Chapter of the Izaak Walton League, is getting his fly and fly-tying tools ready for exhibition at the North American Wild Life and Sport Show that will be held at the Fifth Regiment Armory, in Baltimore, from February 11 to 19.

There are, no doubt, many others who make their fishing out during the cold months by tying flies, who would like to make a display of their handiwork. If so, give us a ring and we we'll tell you all about it.

Navy Drills On Attack And Defense

Hardwick Runs Charges Through Lengthy Grid Drill.

Annapolis, Md., Nov. 18.—Hoping above everything to have the players in good physical condition for the Army game, but fearing the moral effect if Princeton should put over a surprise victory on Saturday, Hardwick gave his Navy charges a long practice this afternoon, but abstained from regular scrimmage or anything likely to cause injuries.

Details of both attack and defense made up the routine, the opposition being furnished by a section of B squad drilled in Princeton plays. On Monday, B squad will emerge in Army jerseys with the names of soldier players across their chests.

It will fall to the lot of George Muse, a veteran of B squad, now a member of the graduating class, to take the part of Woody Wilson, Army's ace passer and carrier. Two of the principal B squad backs, who were expected to take a large part in furnishing the adversaries at this stage, Dick Shafer and Lou Mayo, have been promoted to the varsity squad.

As Lem Cooke, who has been doing most of the punting, as well as ball carrying, will not play against Princeton, the toe work will fall upon Al Bergner, left tackle, who has been doing some good work in this line, as well a place-kicking.

Bergner, the Naval Academy's strongest man by official test, recalls Slade Cutter, the big tackle who kicked a placement goal which won the game for the Navy from the Army in 1934.

Bergner has a former school and team mate on the Army team in the person of Harry Stella, a guard. They played together on the team of Kankakee, Ills., High School.

Earl Sande Set For Florida Races

Miami, Nov. 18 (AP).—Earl Sande, who enjoyed a successful winter in Forida last season, will have an even stronger hand for the coming meetings at Hialeah and Tropical parks.

In the Chief and Stagehand, he has two promising candidates for the $20,000 Flamingo stakes for 3-year-olds, while Sceneshifte is certain to be one of the favorites for the $50,000 Widener if he rounds onto the form that carried him into second place back of War Admiral in the Belmont stakes last June.

With Bill Bennings.

Dear Al: Selections at Bowie.

I don't believe there is any man with as ready a set of excuses as a horse trainer. In addition to conditioning horses, he has to be right there with the answer when the owner loses a bet. In a round robin in the secretary's office this morning, horsemen were discussing the subject and one fellow came up with a gem that needs passing along. It seems that a certain owner had wagered twice on his horse and lost. After the first race he sought the trainer, who reported that the horse was bumped leaving the gate. Again the owner lost his money and again he went to the trainer. This time the trainer said the boy guided him in on the rail in the deepest going and the horse lost his footing. Finally the owner demanded a fool-proof spot. He allowed the trainer to drop the horse down. He picked out a four-horse race. The track was right, the weight was right and the trainer guaranteed that the horse was right. The trainer told the owner to forget the past. "We're all going to get well today," said the trainer. The owner nodded. From the clubhouse, the owner watched his horse follow the pace-setter under a grip. Approaching the stretch, the jockey turned him loose. The horse moved mildly and then gradually dropped back to finish last. The owner rushed right out on the track when the horses were being unsaddled. "Well, what was the matter with my horse today?" he demanded. "Nothing," came back the trainer, "your horse was perfect and would have won by a city block if that jockey didn't get the asthma in the stretch and couldn't finish."

Tech Favored Over Central Today in Battle for Runner-up Honors

In This Corner

Wojie Is the Menace to St. Marys.

By Jack Cuddy.

Copyright, 1937, for The Washington Post.

New York, Nov. 18.—If Slip Madigan could send that pretty little blonde in at center in the Galloping Gaels' line Saturday, Fordham would not toll the bells of St. Mary's at the Polo Grounds.

Here's the idea: The Rams have a grand line, so impregnable that it is called the "Seven Blocks of Granite." Opposing teams have registered only 9 points against Sleepy Jim Crowley's lads this season. And not a single point was scored through the wall. The sturdiest block in that wall is its pivot stone, Alexander Franklin Wojciechowicz. He's the best lineman, the team's ace performer, and quite probably the grandest center in the land. Even as a junior last year, "Wojie" made the consensus of All-America teams. He's better now.

* * * *

Hence, Fordham's All-America unpronounceable will be the big threat against Madigan's visiting Californians Saturday. He's so formidable that Coach Crowley, one of Notre Dame's famous "Four Horsemen," says: "Wojie is the best center I ever saw."

* * * *

Wojie can be stopped. But there's only one person who can do it. I learned that up at Fordham's plant, watching the Rams practice. Night was enveloping Rose Hill, but no lights blazed on the athletic field. It was so dark you scarcely could make out white numbers on the maroon-jerseyed regulars or green-jerseyed scrubs—as they went through formations. They maneuvered in virtual silence, with only the sounds of thudding bodies or crunching cleats or Crowley's soft-spoken commands drifting out of the gloom.

* * * *

Crowley—wearing one of those hooded maroon wind-breakers over his football togs—had his men grooming later than usual. He is taking no chances on this St. Mary's tilt. Finally, he said, "All right, boys! You can go in now—and remember, a lecture at 8 o'clock." It was nearly 6 p. m. then.

* * * *

I grabbed Wojciechowicz and walked with him into the athletic building—toward the locker rooms and showers. We halted in a corridor to chat. Under the lights, the Polish pile-driver looked like an enlarged facsimile of middleweight champion Freddie Steele — the sandy-blond hair, sharply chiseled features, and tapering torso. He stands nearly 6 feet and is built on heavier lines than Steele. Wojie scales 193 pounds—all bone and muscle. He's so solid, you can feel it with your eyes. He has Steele's physical and mental snap—the same eagerness and animation. Despite his solidness, he's quick as a cat. He can sprint downfield under a punt faster than Capt. Druze or Harry Jacunski, the Fordham ends.

* * * *

Coach Crowley says, "He's the perfect center, offensively and defensively. And he has no weaknesses." Crowley errs on that last statement.

I said to Wojie, "Well—I suppose you'll be playing professional football after graduating in June? Who with?"

* * * *

* * * *

Who wouldn't let him play—I wanted to know. His mother?

"No—my girl won't let me. She's Kay Mallen, a little blonde nurse who lives over on Long Island.

Four Games Are Slated In District

By Jack Munhall.

The scholastic football season, drawing rapidly to a successful close, is climaxed this afternoon with two of the city's most colorful and traditional classics. In one Central and Tech, ever-bitter interhigh foes, clash at Central Stadium in a game that will decide second place in the series, and in the other, Devitt and Bullis, powerful prep enemies, tangle at American University. Both contests are scheduled to start at 3:15.

Of more than passing interest are three other games. Anacostia's surprising eleven, the first in the school's history, faces its toughest game of an undefeated campaign in St. John's scrappy Cadets at Eastern Stadium. Loyola, of Baltimore, invades Garrett Park for the annual struggle with Georgetown Prep, and Landon plays Friends School on the latter's Wisconsin Avenue field.

Central and Tech are expected to draw one of the largest crowds of the season in the thirty-fifth renewal of their brilliant series. Central, loser of the last three games, will be an underdog again but on the strength of improvement shown in recent contests, figures to put up a real fight.

Pearce Confident.

Hardy Pearce, Mount Pleasant coach, who is not given to boasting, said yesterday that he confidently expects his Central team to upset the dope. His reasons are that Central is possessed of a higher morale than at any other stage of the season and that it is improved considerably.

Tech will depend on its great triple-threat quarterback, Jack Belote, to lead it to another victory. Helping Belote will be several of the outstanding players of the series. Henry Rassier, smashing fullback, proved one of the best ball-carriers; Charley Callas, all-high guard in 1936, is a strong candidate to repeat; Donald Schlegel, husky tackle, also is an all-high prospect along with Jack Connolly, rangy end.

Central will present a new face. It belongs to Jimmy Clark, a fine end, who transferred from a California school, and became eligible for the Wilson game last week. He showed up very well, especially on the defense and is expected to be a menace to Tech's wide end sweeps which feature Belote and Rassier. Bill Ickes, slender fullback, who gave a sensational running exhibition against Wilson, is heavily counted on as is Bob Goldsworthy, long-booting quarterback, who is expected to match Belote, rated the finest schoolboy punter.

Devitt Favored.

Devitt, loser last year to Bullis, will rule a decided favorite to beat the Maryland eleven because it has encountered much sterner oppositon all year and has compiled an impressive record. It will depend chiefly on former local high school players, there being no fewer than eight in the starting lineup. They are Spero Kolius, Roosevelt; Ernest Raulin, Tech; Morton Walker, Central; Louis Robinson, Tech; Jimmy Bott, Tech; Odell Clay, Tech. LeRoy Fones, star fullback, is a product of George Washington High where he was named all-State fullback last year.

Bullis has several good backs, Sherry Werner, Chet Lee and Sincavitch and one of the best lines in several years. Outstanding in the forward wall are Tackles Dick King and Bill Morris. They have been

James Roosevelt told 220 rooters of the St. Mary's College football team yesterday that he alone probably would "make as much noise as all of you put together" when he attends the Harvard-Yale game Saturday.

The Oakland, Calif., group, comprising the rooting section, members of the players' families, and school officials, called at the White House on their way to New York, where St. Mary's on Saturday will try to make it four out of seven in its intersectional series with Fordham.

In the six games played so far the California eleven has won three and Fordham two. One was a tie, according to the Associated Press.

Greeting the rooters as they crowded into a reception room, Secretary James Roosevelt said the President was disappointed in being unable to see them, but had just had a tooth out and it was hard for him to talk.

James, who graduated at Harvard in 1930, said he was going to Cambridge for the Yale game and expected to do plenty of shouting.

Colorful Program to Precede C. U.'s Thanksgiving Game

Celebrities Expected to Attend Homecoming Tilt With South Carolina; Play at 10:30 A. M.

Celebrities are expected to sit in on the football festival in picturesque Brookland bowl Thursday morning (Thanksgiving Day) at 10:30 o'clock when Catholic University's eleven plays host to the University of South Carolina's Gamecocks.

Head football coach and athletic director Dutch Bergman today will tender a formal invitation to James A. Farley, Postmaster General, to occupy the box of honor. Also he is inviting Senators James Francis Byrnes and Ellison Durant Smith and Congressmen Thomas S. McMillan, Hampton P. Fulmer, John C. Taylor, G. Heyward Mahon, jr., James P. Richards and Allard H. Gasque to officially headline the South Carolia delegation.

In keeping with the occasion special features of entertainment are being chartered. The lively 54-piece Catholic University Band will render pregame selections, while the Washington Department of Sons of American Legion Drum and Bugle Corps is to parade between halves. Dorsey Griffith, enterprising track coach, also is arranging a half-mile relay, involving class teams, to fill out the card.

Unless an overnight improvement in his swollen leg is effected, John Kasunich, C. U.'s right end, will not be available for the Gamecock clash. Whatever the outcome, indications are that Louis Shine, speedy sophomore, will be started at right end, and both Rocco Pirro and Arthur Sabo are being so drilled that they can shift to the wings in event of emergency.

Cage Loop Opens.

National Savings & Trust and Procurement, Treasury Department, will play the first game in a double-header in the Southeast Community Center Basketball League at Hine Junior High at 8 o'clock tonight.

Quinn Faces Ben Kessler In Return Go

New York and Baltimore Lightweight Favorites Meet Monday.

It isn't often that two out-of-town preliminary fighters create a furore, but when they do—there's bound to be a rematch.

And that is precisely why Matchmaker Goldie Ahearn is bringing Johnny Quinn, lanky New York lightweight, and his equally as lean opponent, Benny Kessler, of Baltimore, back for a four-rounder on his all-star show Monday night at Turner's Arena.

Quinn won the decision from Bennah last Monday in a hair-rasing bout that just about stole the show. The boxers pumped fists at one another with such speed and accuracy that fans were on their feet throughout the bout.

And Quinn, pulling a Mike (Diz) Eslin by speaking into the microphone after his hand had been raised in victory, suffered the loss of an upper tooth.

Another finds Ray Ingram, a local featherweight, meeting Baby Manuel — a bout that threatens to steal the show. Ingram wants Gevinson, and may get him if he thrashes Manuel. But Manuel is anxious to atone for his defeat at the hands of Sicilia. And Dupre would like nothing better than a swat at Gevinson.

Also on the Monday card is Eddie Alzek, unbeaten New Yorker, who will seek his 31st victory at the expense of Pete Galiano, rugged Baltimore lightweight.

Larry Kelley Picks Yale, Irish

By Larry Kelley.

Before getting down to the business of the meeting, viz and towit: picking football winners, I should like to make one addition to that backfield of "champs" I picked a few days ago.

The addition? Me. It may be pointed out that I am no back, but I seem to remember a game in which I played in Princeton's backfield. The score, I believe, was something like Princeton 38, Yale, 7. I was certainly in the Princeton backfield that day. It even looked as though I was running interference for them.

With 35 seconds left in the first half, the Tigers started what I thought was an end-around play toward the other end. The old do-or-die spirit cropped up and I tore around after it. Was it an end-around? It was not! Was I sucked out of position? I was!

Jack White had the laugh on me that time. I got back to where I belonged just in time to pat him on the back as he crossed the goal. That made the score 10-0 in favor of the Tigers and was the beginning of a very bitter end. The bitter end was me!

Now to stick my neck out for the third time.

Starting in the East, I wonder what's going to happen when Harvard meets Frank—I mean Yale. The Crimson has out-statisticked every team it has played, while losing two games. Yale, of course, is undefeated.

The Blue's all-everything is Clinton E. Frank, while Harvard has Struck, MacDonald, Boston, Harding and maybe little Bob Stuart, a real thorn in Yale's side last year. It looks very, very close. Sure, I'm picking Yale and I'll be there pulling for them, but mark it down for sentiment rather than any firm belief.

A very tasty imbroglio impends between Colgate and Syracuse. Colgate hasn't won a major game this season and ought to be out for blood. Still, Syracuse has the better record, and has finally achieved a real winning spirit under the guidance of Ossie Solem. Also, the Orange hasn't won this game in more years than the oldest settler cares to remember. I think they'll do it this time.

A war of major proportions will be staged in the City of Brotherly Love when Villanova puts her undefeated record on the line for Pop Warner's four-times tied and once defeated Temple Owls to shoot at.

Clipper Smith's crew has yielded but one touchdown all season. The Owls also lay claim to being a stubborn defensive outfit with only 26 points against them. But Villanova has plenty of scoring punch. Temple has not. I'll take Villanova.

And now for a jaunt Southward. Duke, upset last week, pays a visit to the Tartar's cousin, North Carolina State. State lost to North Carolina early in the year and also went down before rapidly improving Manhattan. It seems to me that Duke, smarting under last week's defeat, will pile on the power to good effect this Saturday and wait to get licked until next week, when they run into Pitt.

Traveling into the Middle West, we find two interesting games in Ohio State—Michigan and Notre Dame—Northwestern. Ohio State is said to have over 200 plays and seven formations. That's a lot of —football! Michigan has been coming back after several disappointing seasons, but the comeback trail is long—ask John Barrymore or Dazzy Vance—and it often ends too soon. I'll state that this one goes to State.

You can't disregard Notre Dame. There's a team that looks better every day. Sure they lost to Pitt, but who doesn't (excuse me, Fordham)? The Irish have gone through a killing schedule but they have plenty of spirit and manpower. It's about time for Northwestern to have a good afternoon, but I'll go along with the South Benders.

It's necessary to haul out the crystal ball when you try to name the winner of the Coast's big game between California and Stanford. On paper the choice must go to the Golden Bears. California beat Oregon State. Oregon State tied Stanford. California beat Oregon. Oregon beat Stanford.

That makes it look like California, doesn't it? But wait a minute. Stanford beat Washington and Washington tied California. This is getting very confusing.

Who said that figures never lie? I'll bet he never tried to follow football. Also, the betting gentlemen have established California as a 5-2 favorite. That should make it easy. It does. I pick Stanford!

Boy, bring over that gross of aspirin!

Fredericksburg Faces Battle

Fredericksburg, Va., Nov. 18.—Fredericksburg High School's football team plays the most important game of its 1937 schedule here tomorrow afternoon, when it engages George Washington High, of Alexandria, for the mythical Northern Virginia championship.

The Fredericksburgers are defending State Class B champions and are scheduled to meet South Norfolk High, of Norfolk, here Thanksgiving morning in a game to determine the eastern Virginia grid crown.

The fact that their opponents of Friday—Alexandria—is a Class A school is not worrying the Yellow Jackets, coached by Johnny Fenlon, former George Washington University grid great.

While Alexandria will have a slight edge in this game, Coach Fenlon is depending on his triple-threat backfield to bring his team out on top. Chief among the Fredericksburg array of talent is Randy Heflin, hard-passing fullback, who won first place on the All-Northern Virginia High eleven last season and is destined for the position again this season.

6 Generals End Careers in Game With Maryland

By the Associated Press.

Lexington, Va., Nov. 18.—Six seniors, including Capt. Will Rogers, of Petersburg, Va., will complete their football careers at Washington and Lee University when the Generals meet the University of Maryland at Baltimore on Thanksgiving Day.

Others who will be lost to the Generals through graduation are Bob Spessard, rangy end from Roanoke, Va.; Haskell Dickinson, letterman and reserve tackle, of Little Rock, Ark.; Frank Jones, of Richmond, an end who has been hampered all season by a knee injury; Bob White, halfback, from Mexico, Mo., and Al Szymanski, of Yonkers, N. Y. Szymanski suffered a broken leg in midseason and has not been in uniform since.

Woody English Sued By Wife for 'Run Out'

Chicago, Nov. 18 (AP).—Elwood "Woody" English, Brooklyn Dodgers infielder, was sued for divorce today by Helen Alice English, who charged he deserted her in October, 1936.

The bill said they were married in 1930 in Crown Point, Ind., while English was with the Chicago Cubs. Mrs. English, former model, asked alimony.

Smokers' test shows VINTAGE TOBACCO is at least 25% easier on your breath than all other 5¢ cigars tested

THERE'S not much satisfaction in "half-kisses." So why take chances of offending with a tobacco-laden breath? Smoke a White Owl and keep yourself open for a hearty reception.

New scientific discoveries have shown that White Owl's Vintage tobacco is exceptionally low in the substances that cause unpleasant tobacco breath. Tests with a delicate osmoscope prove that this tobacco leaves less odor . . . disappears faster.

White Owl is a better cigar because it always has a Vintage-tobacco filler. Nature—not factory processing—made this tobacco exceptionally mild, mellow.

We maintain a vast crop-inspection system—the only known organization of its kind—to locate Vintage tobacco. Even in Vintage years, we classify all filler tobacco into seven grades—and buy only tobacco of the quality of the top three for use in White Owls.

Change over to the milder, friendlier White Owls today. You'll get a more friendly welcome from the ladies, too.

The Metallic Nose Knows

Scientists use a sensitive osmoscope to measure odor . . . to record its intensity and lasting power. Ten different brands of 5¢ cigars were tested by this machine. White Owl was at least 25% easier on the breath than all the others. After 30 minutes, all trace of tobacco odor disappeared from the breath of White Owl smokers.

Idle Fordham Replaces Pittsburgh as Nation's Top Ranking Eleven

Crimson Tide 3d, L. S. U., Duke Trail

By Dr. E. E. Litkenhous.

12 Tennessee	83.6	25 Northwestern	79.9
13 California	83.5

Despite the muddy grids that greeted most of the Eastern fans, relatively few upsets resulted from the Nation's football warfare.

Fordham rested last Saturday and gained first place in the scramble for the national football championship. The St. Mary's Gaels come to New York from the West Coast, attempting to mar the Rams' record and remove them from their peak position.

Pittsburgh, relaxing slightly after the battle with the Irish, dropped to second place by insufficiently beating the Nebraska Cornhuskers 13-7. Pittsburgh will be the target for the sixth-place Duke gridders on November 27, when the Panthers travel to Durham for their last scheduled game of the season.

Must Beat Vandy.

Alabama's third-place Rose Bowl aspirants must beat Vanderbilt on Thanksgiving Day to win the Southeastern Conference championship. Vanderbilt and Louisiana State are perched in second place for conference honors and would share them with Alabama were the Commodores to stage an upset.

The difference-by-score national football ratings accurately present playing-power standings of football teams, based solely upon past performances. It does not pretend to crystal-gaze for the unpredictable factors which alter the outcome of individual games, such as injuries, wet grounds, officiating differences, team spirit and overconfidence. It does offer checked mathematical standings which have been 87.59 per cent accurate on a victory or loss basis for the last six years.

He Was Right.

To determine weekly reversals, by adjudging beforehand which teams are heading for an upset, greatly increases the individual enjoyment of the prognostications. For example, one of my colleagues, who enjoys giving me a ribbing from time to time, came up and exclaimed, "So you think Dartmouth will take Yale by 7 points, do you? This paper says that the whole Dartmouth team has been stricken ill. Will you ever get trimmed on that one?" And he was right. Yale came from behind to tie the Big Green crew upon that occasion.

Of 247 games reported until deadline 219 have been correctly predicted for a week's average of 88.6 per cent. In 1,801 games rated this season, 1,564 were hits for a percentage of 86.84, making the all-time accuracy 87.59 per cent.

Clemnson Vs. Furman.

Clemson, Nov. 18.—A Southern Conference football championship has finally come within grasp of a South Carolina school and Clemson's Tigers are working grimly in their efforts to fully rise to the occasion against Furman's dangerous Purple Hurricane in Greenville Thanksgiving.

Son of Gael Coach Is Stricken

Eddie Eugene, 5-year-old son of Edward "Slip" Madigan, St. Mary's University football coach, who is ill with bronchitis. Mrs. Edward Madigan, wife of the mentor, has left her husband in Chicago to rush to her son's bedside in Moraga, Calif. She was accompanying her husband and the Gael eleven to New York for the Fordham-St. Mary's game tomorrow.

The Man on the Street Favors Terps, 11 to 9, in Grid Classic

By Merrell W. Whittlesey.

I'll take vanilla, the winner'll get the goal posts, but the man on the street likes Maryland.

A consensus of persons in varied stations in life, including Ted Lewis, the high hat comedian, soldiers, sailors, Marines, bus drivers, ushers, firemen, students, drug clerks and F street strollers, the Terps were favored, by 11 to 9, over Georgetown in the city's annual grid classic on Saturday.

It was close, but nevertheless the Maryland rooters were more convincing in the manner in which they picked the Dobson coached lads to trim the Hoyas. The Hilltop backers were more-or-less skeptical of their chances and seemed to lean toward the sentimental side.

Lewis Likes Hoyas.

Ted Lewis, accosted as he was about to make his last appearance on the Earle stage in his present visit, led the Georgetown minority. "Sure, I like Georgetown. Why? That's easy, because they have the best team," and the master of the clarinet made a hasty exit.

It was the service boys that gave Maryland the edge. In fact, they all liked the College Park boys and had their reasons.

Private Frank Quinn, of the Marine Corps, liked them because they looked best on paper. Three sailors, off the United States Receiving Ship, from New York, George A. Mariniak, Charles Rice and Harry Colvin, picked the Terps for various but firm reasons.

Private E. C. Shipley and H. E. Stout, of Fort Humphreys, picked them because it was a question of the home State team being best.

The rescue squad gave the Hoyas a 2-and-1 edge. Sergt. Grisso thought Georgetown a much stronger team, Private McGovern just liked 'em, but Private W. D. Boarts, a Maryland alumnus, was just as sure his buddies were wrong.

Levi Yoder, manager of a Fourteenth street restaurant, said "Any team that beat Syracuse can beat Georgetown or almost anybody else." And he is from North Carolina, too.

It was strictly a Georgetown twosome in Patrick Newbury and K. A. Bradefer. The former had seen them both play and knew Georgetown would win, while Bradefer picked the Hoyas to win in an upset.

More Hilltop Rooters.

A pair of bus drivers for the Washington, Virginia and Maryland Coach Co., C. W. Foote and L. J. Densmore, thought Georgetown simply had the best team.

B. Metler, head usher in the Columbia Theater, said Maryland is "just my opinion," while Rutherford Sadtler, drug clerk at Twelfth and F, "always liked Maryland to win."

William Berlinski, manager of the F street Western Union office, had a lot of Maryland friends and liked the Terps to win, while Walter Seidel, cab driver for Consolidated Cabs, was for some reason or other, a Georgetown man.

There wasn't much choice when J. G. Denny, a Georgetown law student, was unsuspectingly cornered. He couldn't go back on the school, but he wouldn't see them play, he was going to Philadelphia for the Villanova-Temple game and liked Villanova.

We're practically engaged, you know. We'll announce it in June. We've been going together for nearly two years. Just a little kid—weighs about 105 pouds and stands 5 foot 1. She doesn't approve of football."

"But Wojie—can't you talk her out of it?"

"Nope—I've tried that. Had to do a lot of talking to play this season. She says football is definitely out next year—or else—She's a smart kid, and maybe she's right. I guess it would be better to settle down—get a job teaching and coaching—I'm not crazy about the limelight myself—but I do like to play football."

* * * *

So—little Kay Mallen can stop the All-America center dead in his tracks. And if Slip Madigan could draft her for Saturday's game and send in the 105-pound blonde at center, instead of 200-pound Jerry Dowd, St. Mary's would have a much better chance.

Anacostia's first eleven which has enjoyed unprecedented success in that it is still undefeated and untied will establish itself as one of the best outfits in the city should it defeat St. John's. The Indians have a great back in Flash Gordon, who recently scored four touchdowns in one game.

St. John's looks to Bill O'Connor, Joe Gallagher and Elwood McDonald to lead it to a coveted triumph. The Johnnies, smarting under a 20-6 licking handed them by Gonzaga, are out to spoil Anacostia's record and are favored to do just that.

Vandy Has Answer to 'Bowl' Mess

Clash on Thanksgiving With 'Bama May Solve Problems.

By Alan Gould.
Associated Press Sports Editor.

New York, Nov. 18.—Not the least intriguing of the potential solutions to college football's post-season "bowl" problems, affecting both New Orleans and Pasadena, is the possibility that Vanderbilt will come up with the winning answer Thanksgiving Day.

More immediate tasks confront three schools currently most prominent in the discussion—California, Pittsburgh and Fordham—but it's worth noting the Vanderbilt Commodores have just about as much at stake as has unbeaten-untied Alabama in their crucial holiday battle at Nashville next week.

Victory for Vanderbilt over the Crimson Tide, a prospect by no means remoteo n the basis of their comparative performances, would produce these interesting facts or fancies:

(a) Assure the Commodores at least a tie for the Southeastern Conference title, with either Louisiana State or Alabama or both, on the basis of games won and lost. (Note: Vanderbilt beat L. S. U., 7 to 6.)

(b) Qualify Vanderbilt to receive invitations to both the Sugar and Rose bowls.

(c) Give the Pacific Coast's Rose Bowl nominee, whether California or Stanford, an alternative choice, if Pittsburgh or Fordham falters in the stretch; or an "out," if there's any real basis to reports that the West Coast now prefers "Vintage Ivy to "Poison Ivy."

(D) Make possible a return Sugar Bowl match between Louisiana State and Santa Clara, if Vanderbilt actualy wins the call to Pasadena.

Alabama Gunning.

Alabama, of course, not only stands ready to offer a brisk rebuttal to any arguments in Vanderbilt's favor, but hopes to put emphasis upon the Tide's own post-season prospects with touchdowns.

Vanderbilt's record so far has been mared only by defeat at the hands of Georgia Tech, which, incidentally, would have been in the Bowl picture itself if it had beaten Alabama last week. Triumph over the Tide next week certainly would have the effect of offsetting the one blot on the Commodore slate, in addition to which it has been demonstrated an all-winning record is not a prerequisite to Rose Bowl selection, even though it may be preferred.

Among the precedents is Columbia, which won the 1934 bid from Stanford, as well as the ball game, in spite of an early season defeat by Princeton. Last year Pittsburgh got the call after being tied by Fordham and beaten by Duquesne. Pitt, in fact, was a surprise choice.

Notwithstanding latest Coast reports indicating a reluctance to invite Pittsburgh again, it is difficult to see how the Rose Bowl champions can be overlooked if they dispose of Penn State this week and Duke next week. The Panthers are the Nation's No. 1 team now. They can be dislodged only by one of the season's major form reversals.

Fordham Rates High.

Fordham, likewise unbeaten and with a record of holding Pitt scoreless for three successive years, will rate close to the top in any "Bowl" calculations if the Rams beat St. Mary's and New York University.

California is on record as preferring to meet a team "which has about the same viewpoint, academically and athletically," but it remains to be seen whether the Golden Bears, if victorious over Stanford this Saturday, make their policy stick. Inferentially it is a slap at high-pressure football methods, such as both Pitt and Fordham have exploited, although the Panthers publicly have proclaimed a "de-emphasis" policy from now on.

There appears no doubt the West Coast would prefer to invite Yale or Dartmouth, unbeaten Eastern "Ivy League" leaders, to the Rose Bowl, but they are definitely out of the picture under the terms of a specific agreement barring post-season games, no matter where staged or under whose auspices. The Big Ten has long had a similar policy, thus automatically reducing the potential field of "Bowl" prospects.

Cadets Resume Work for V. P. I.

Lexington, Va., Nov. 18 (AP).—After two days' vacation the Virginia Military Institute Cadets went back to fundamentals today in a long workout. Blocking and tackling were stressed by Coach Pooley Hubert as the first steps in preparing the squad for the Thanksgiving Day tussle with Virginia Tech.

Andy Trzeciak, Paul Shu, Billy Roberson and Bud Kovar ran in the first team backfield during a brisk signal drill. The entire squad showed speed and enthusiasm in the first hard practice session since the Citadel game.

Kain Orchestra Will Broadcast At Metronome

By Chanticleer

Paul Kain and his ork go on the air now, playing twice a week for WJSV direct from the Wardman Park's Metronome Room. Kinda nice, the maestro says, to be back on the airways. Last mike appearances were last winter while playing on the West Coast. The spot is understood to be Wednesdays and Fridays at 11:35 p. m., preceding Tommy Dorsey one night and Lombardo the other.

There are rumors that a new night club is being readied for a date in December.

• • • •

Now it's table tennis at the Shoreham's Blue Room. Two champs will put on an exhibition—Ed Glade ard Stanley Fields. Glade has held national table tennis (ping pong, to you) honors and Fields dominates the Eastern States. They are to appear twice nightly, beginning Monday. Rosita and Fontana will be held over for another week. Fashion item: Rosita's lovely rose and blue and green gown is the talk of the Blue Room feminine guests.

• • • •

A new revue is set for the Lotus, come Monday, and time is coming to an end to see that "rhythm bell" act, already held over an extra week. Georgie Trainer still is sending the patrons out into the cold night talking about his combination tap-hat number. Tala and Jaime in a "Two Cigarettes in the Dark" dance routine and Bill Strickland and his ork this week, as well . . .

Songstress at the Anchor Room

• • • •

Beverly Stull, back at the Mayfair, sunning herself in Washington's favor. Seems that the number of gentlemen on hand goes up nightly. Ray Nelson is there, too, and that sort of evens up the count, for Ray always packs the ladies in. Jack Campbell, the perennial, too . . . New spot—the W. B. & A.'s Blue Room, with mixed drinks and reasonably priced fare of all sorts. They're catering to private parties.

• • • •

Sonny Kendis and orchestra continue at the Pall Mall Room at the Hotel Raleigh . . . Very bad pun emanating from the Madrillong: "We're talking turkey!" It seems Peter Borras is preparing for 400 turkey dinner guests for Thanksgiving. Johnny Shaw and his boys fell into the swing of the thing and are orchestrating the veteran "Turkey Trot."

• • • •

Friday night is—Big Apple Night, you know. Down at Boulevard Farms, just below Alexandria. Cash prizes for the best Big Applers. And a floor show for those who don't dance this newest of steps. Floor show also Sunday nights . . . Building note: Chef Henri Romer's success with the Saturday noon luncheon special has resulted in a special permission from the building office to add another story . . . Parker Brothers and Lynn head the new show at Bamboo Gardens. With support by the DeBold Twins, Mme. Rolande, Mischan and Nolette and others. Very Frenchy, as it were.

Pilots' Leader Opposes Rules At D. C. Airport

Behnck Says 200 Will Petition for Moving Base to Bolling Field.

Opposition to the present regulations controlling flight operatoins at Washington Airport was voiced yesterday by David L. Behncke, president of the Airle Pilots Association.

Many of the pilots are opposed to use of the airport because it is unsafe, he continued. The flyers still hope to discontinue use of the terminal, he said.

"We are going to present a petition, signed by about 200 pilots, to the Bureau of Air Commerce protesting the recent modification of the regulations restricting use of the Washington Airport," Behncke said.

The petition also will ask that flight operations be transferred to Bolling Field until "a safe airport is built here." Proposals to build a Federal air terminal at Camp Springs, Md., have had the active support of the Airline Pilots Association.

Goldstein to Press Conspiracy Case

Appointment of Irvin Goldstein, a former assistant United States attorney, to prosecute a charge of conspiracy against Joseph Silverman, jr., Nathan Silverman, former Brigadier General Alexander E. Williams, and Thomas J. Ryan, was announced yesterday by United States Attorney Leslie C. Garnett.

Goldstein, now in private practice, handled the case while he was conected with the district attorney's office. The four are chraged with conspiring to defraud the Government throukh keeping a witness away from an inquiry then being conducted by the House Military Affairs Committee.

The trial date was set tentatively for November 26.

AAA Issues New Tobacco Program

By the Associated Press.

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced yesterday a tobacco diversion program designed to prevent accumulation of excess stocks of flue-cured and dark air-cured types of tobacco, and to increase the use of products manufactured from them.

The diverted tobacco will be manufactured into nicotine, fertilizers, sprays and dusts for combating plant and animal parasites.

Joint Citizen Body Opens Vote Drive

An intensive drive to secure suffrage and national representation for the District of Columbia opened yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the executive committee of the Citizens Joint Committee on National Representation.

Ill at home, Commissioner George E. Allen, chairman of the sub-committee on Congressional hearings, in a message to the meeting, said:

"It is my thought that we should prepare very carefully for a hearing to be held early during the next regular session of Congress. In the meantime, I urge that there should be extensive local agitation."

Landlord Buyers Lose Cotton Loans

By the Associated Press.

Agricultural Adjustment Administration officials announced yesterday that producers who buy cotton of their tenants will not be entitled to Commodity Credit Corporation loans or price adjustment payments on the product.

The announcement followed complaints of the Southern tenant farmers' union that many landowners were buying their tenants' share of cotton with the intention of applying for Government subsidies on the purchased product.

The nurse, Miss Florence Phipps, of 4005 Ninth street northwest, was quoted by police as saying Cantor tried to assault her Wednesday when she answered a call at his residence.

Reserve Adds $18,600,000 To Cash Funds

By the Associated Press.

The Federal Reserve Board disclosed last night that it had contributed in the last week to another boost in the supply of lendable money in the Nation's banks by giving them cash for $18,600,000 worth of their Government securities.

The board started a week ago to build up this supply so banks will be able to fill all business loan requests during the Christmas season, when the public normally takes a huge volume of its deposits out of the banks to pay for holiday gifts.

Ten million dollars' worth of Treasury bills were included in the credit-easing purchases, in the week ended November 17. In the previous week the board bought $10,400,000 worth of Treasury bills.

During the week the banks added $43,000,000 to their reserves, of which $30,000,000 was in excess of reserve requirements and, therefore, was available for loans. Total excess reserves now stand at $1,100,000,000.

The bank supply of money also increased, in part, because of a $30,000,000 drop in the amount of cash circulating in the hands of the public and a $15,000,000 decrease in the amount of cash held in the Treasury.

Curb Prices Yield In Late Selling

New York, Nov. 18 (AP).—Curb stocks sagged fractions to a point or more as selling developed in the final hour today. High-priced specialties and utilities as groups closed lower, while plus and minus signs were about evenly divided in oils and mining issues.

Aluminum Co., finished at 81, down 4; Sherwin-Williams 82¼, off 1¾; Great Atlantic & Pacific 59, off 1, and American Cyanamid "B" 25, off ¾. Pittsburgh Plate Glass ended a point higher at 84.

Down around a point among utilities were American Gas & Electric at 26¼ and Northern States Power "A" at 13. Lake Shore Mines was up a shade at 51⅛, but Newmont Mining dropped 2⅞ at 60. International Petroleum gained a fraction at 30½, while Creole Petroleum dipped 1 at 25.

Atlantic Freights Raised 10 Per Cent

London, Nov. 12 (AP).—A 10 per cent increase in ocean freight rates from the United Kingdom to eastern Canada and United States ports, effective January 1, was announced today by the Transatlantic Conference.

Rates to north Pacific ports will be increased for most cargoes, the officials announced. The new rates will be adopted by the 15 lines embraced by the conference.

December Maturities.

New York, Nov. 18.—Corporate bond maturities during December will total $25,305,000, according to the Standard Statistics Co.

Wheat Slumps; Corn Drops to Season's Low

Better Weather in Argentina Promises Larger Wheat Yields There.

By the Associated Press.

Chicago, Nov. 18.—Almost complete failure of predictions of new frosts in Argentina did much to plunge Chicago wheat values down about 4 cents a bushel maximum today.

Virtual stoppage of North American wheat export trade for the time being resulted also from the sudden switch of Argentine weather conditions—a change that promised larger wheat yields in Argentina, and that acted as a bearish factor here. Counting further on the side of lower prices today for wheat was a season fresh bottom record of corn values.

At the close, Chicago wheat futures were 3 to 3¾ cents under yesterday's finish, December 91¾@91⅞, May 92@92⅛, July 85⅝@85¾, corn 1⅛@1¾ down, December 53⅜@53½, May 56½@56⅝, oats at ⅜@⅝ decline, rye 1⅝@2¼ off, and provisions showing 35 to 40 cents drop.

Argentina Building 2,000-Mile Highway

Buenos Aires, Nov. 18.—A 2,000-mile highway, extending down the entire Atlantic Coast of Argentina from Buenos Aires to Tierra del Fuego, will be completed by the end of 1938, according to Senor Allende Posse, chairman of the National Roads Board. A considerable part of the road is in the final stages of construction and tenders for the remainder will be called for within the next three months.

It is estimated that completion of the project will entail expenditures totaling 28,000,000 pesos ($7,350,000. Portions of the highway will be paved while the less-traveled sections will be unimproved.

Bituminous Production.

The National Coal Association estimates bituminous coal production in the United States for the week ended November 13 as approximately 8,630,000 net tons. Production for the corresponding week: 1936; 10,106,000 tons; 1935, 7,934,000 tons.

The Market

By Carlton A. Shively
A Special Correspondent.

Stocks Drift Lower With Less Volume; Wheat Slumps; Reserve Buys Bonds.

New York, Nov. 18.—Wall Street marked time to the measure beat by Washington and in a sales volume that again failed to reach 1,000,000 shares stock prices opened and closed lower in the majority of instances. Trading was not enlivened at any time by a rally of consequence nor, for that matter, by a selling rush. At the worst the leading stocks gave up 1 to 3 points. On the casualty list were Telephone, Chrysler, Bethlehem, General Motors, New York Central, Manville, duPont, Westinghouse and General Electric. Steel was rather stubborn in its ex-dividend trench. December wheat closed 3¼ cents down at 91¾ cents a bushel.

The largest losses in stocks were suffered in the steel, motor, metal, accessory, railroad and farm implement groups. The spread of the weakness told plainly enough that the market was suffering from disillusion over the state of business and not simply from adverse developments in any particular industry. The industrial news was nevertheless not without its good points. For one thing, more and more is being heard about the weakening of the C. I. O. front as regards the plans of the leaders of the movement to bring all business to heel. Some of the surface objectives of the C. I. O., as for instance short hours, are now coming to pass with double measure because of the shutdown in industrial plants.

Industrial trouble, if it breaks out again in near future, is more likely to come in resistance to efforts of employers to cut the labor cloth to suit the sales pattern. The market for labor, for years a buyer's market, will be increasingly that way over next several weeks or few months at least and a more workable arrangement than the rule or ruin policies of the C. I. O. leader and of the Black-Connery bill may be arrived at. Just now the efforts to bring the wages and hours bill out into the open in Congress are an offset to the movement for tax revision.

Labor and Industry.

A better understanding between labor and industry would do much to stop the business recession. It would, in the long run, sustain or increase the purchasing power of labor as operations increased, and, by holding down the cost of living, would add to real wages. If industry is to be forced to conform to the ideas of wages and hours entertained by the economic managers at Washington, if agriculture is to be regulated in the same manner, then the bonuses that will have to be paid to farmers, the doles to unemployed labor and the other attendant expenditures will have to be met by a higher debt burden. That will mean a reduction in the standard of living.

Along with stocks commodity prices continue to fall. This week's wholesale commodity price index of the Bureau of Labor Statistics fell to 83.2, against 83.8 a week earlier. The index is now only a point or so above a year ago. Since wholesale prices have been falling for some time, a drop in retail prices is highly probable. Money markets were unchanged and presumably the Federal Reserve banks continued to give a nudge to United States bonds, which, nevertheless, were barely steady. In the foreign exchange markets francs were steady in terms of sterling and other currencies. There is every indication that we are still losing gold to France.

Hope for an early change in sentiment for the better was kept alive in the financial district by the signs of a real appreciation on the part of at least a few Congressmen of the seriousness of the business situation and of the help which a revision of the tax laws could give. Repeal or drastic revision of the undistributed profits tax nevertheless will not in itself insure a business revival. It is a step in the right direction, and the fact that Congress could take such a step, after its years of blind voting anything and everything the Administration called for, probably would do much to bolster the confidence of the businessman.

Political Outlook.

Had they more confidence in the political outlook businessmen would be far less jumpy over their plans and the public also would be less hesitant as a consumer. The reason for the current uncertainties, just the same, lies deep, and no lasting change can be made without retracing much of the ground covered in the past four years. It will require a generation to retrace some of it—as, for example, the reduction of the debt to manageable levels—but the sooner a beginning is made the better, and the currency is a good starting point.

Even with a favorable political set-up there is no assurance that this country could avoid the inevitable turn in the business cycle. Trade all over the world has improved since 1932 and the recovery in this country has been far more erratic than in most other countries. We are having the quickest and sharpest turn, but in the others the expectation of a setback, at least next year, is widespread. British opinion is congealing on the idea that next year will be marked by proper business conditions.

Odd Lots.

Not who but why? Is the question most often asked in the search for the purchaser of the Kolbe block of Alleghany shares . . . Another decline in brokers' loans for last week, if reported this afternoon by the Federal Reserve Board, would indicate that important investment buying has not yet taken place . . . So thoroughly does the reserve bank do its finessing that the Government securities dealers, who can smell a mouse a long way off, are mystified as to the extent of the open market purchases which will be reported this week. The reserve banks hold bills which mature almost every week, and the replacement of these through dealers sometimes looks like fresh buying. The reserve bank also can buy directly from a member bank or take securities over from a foreign bank with nobody in this market being the wiser. Market guesses at this week's purchases range from $50,000,000 to $10,000,000.

Steel.

To those tape readers who are unaccustomed to making dividend allowances for United States Steel common, the opening price looked lower than it really was. The stock opened ex dividend, the first time there has been any occasion for it to do so in five years, and the price of 55⅜ was down only an eighth of a point, with allowances made for the $1 a share dividend. The bears are saying that no ex dividend calculation will need to be made in another three months, but that is taking a gloomy view of the "spring rise" in business.

Insiders.

The latest report to the SEC on operations by directors, officials and large stockholders indicated that some buying took place by the insiders last month. However, the purchasing may have been of a support nature in some cases and of a bargain-hunting character in others rather than compelled by a realization of a turn for the better in business. What the public always would like to know is when insiders buy because they see orders, sales and operating rates begin to rise.

Washington Railway Votes $14 Special

Washingtoin Railway & Electric Co. declared yesterday a special dividend of $14 a share on the common stock, to be paid November 30, to stockholders of record on November 24. With the four $9 quarterly dividends and the $14 special just voted, the company will have paid $50 a share on the common stock this year. The stock is the highest priced issue on the Washington Stock Exchange. The last sale was recorded at $625 a share and it sold at one time this year at $725 a share.

Perpetual Bldg. Elects Board For This Year

Arthur G. Bishop Is Chairman and Marvin A. Custis President.

By Thomas M. Cahill.

Shareholders of Perpetual Building Association, which, from the standpoint of assets, is the largest member association of the United States Building and Loan League, held their annual meeting this week and elected the following officers, committeemen and directors: Arthur G. Bishop, chairman of the board; Marvin A. Custis, president; Vernon G. Owen, vice president; Edward C. Baltz, secretary; Franklin W. Harper, treasurer; Raymond K. Espey, assistant secretary; William H. Dyer, assistant treasurer, and William H. Rippard, auditor.

Executive committee: Marvin A. Custis, Arthur G. Bishop and Edward C. Baltz. Attorney, Arthur G. Bishop. Committee on status of loans, John C. Scofield and Dr. William G. Schafhirt. Appraisers, Vernon G. Owen, Franklin W. Harper and Samuel Scrivener. Trustees, John C. Scofield and Dr. William G. Schafhirt.

Directors are Arthur G. Bishop, Marvin A. Custis, Edward C. Baltz, Franklin W. Harper, Raymond K. Espey, John C. Scofield, Vernon G. Owen, Samuel Scrivener and Dr. William G. Schafhirt.

Mr. Bishop, the chairman of the board, in his annual address, reviewed the splendid growth in assets during the last year and the excellent condition of the real estate loans, aggregating $44,000,000. During the last year approximately $1,850,000 in dividends was paid to the 45,000 shareholders of the association, and more than $400,000 was added to the surplus and reserve account. Mr. Bishop also commented on the extremely bright outlook of business conditions for the coming year.

Christmas Savings.

Christmas Club savings deposits in mutual savings banks of 14 States had risen to $51,657,361 last month, an increase of $8,000,000 over the period in 1936. Maryland mutual banks alone reported club deposits of $1,903,600 to be apportioned among 54,243 accounts.

The National Association of Mutual Savings Banks has announced that there was an increase in the number of both depositors and deposits, total accounts rising to 1,226,891, a gain of 163,300, the average account being $42.10. New York led in deposits and depositors, a total of 527,497 savers having to their credit the sum of $21,928,107, a gain of $3,309,456.

Massachusetts is second among the States, club depositors amounting to $13,254,000 with 316,000 accounts. Connecticut is third with deposits of $5,355,020 and 131,509 depositors. New Jersey is next with $2,841,000 deposits and 62,241 depositors, then Pennsylvania, $2,672,000 in deposits and 46,938 accounts.

Although Washington has no mutual savings banks, local institutions will distribute more than $7,000,000 in their Christmas Savings Club accounts.

A. B. A. Research.

In making public the formation of a research council to co-ordinate and expand research activities of the American Bankers Association, Dr. Harold Stonier, executive manager of the association, states that Gurden Edwards, public relations director for the organization for the last 15 years, has been named director of the council.

Mr. Edwards became associated with the American Bankers Association in 1922. In addition to being public relations director for it, he has served as secretary of its economic policy commission since 1928. He is the author of a number of studies on banking subjects published by that commission and has been a contributor of many articles to financial and general publications.

He is a former newspaperman and at the time of the World War was with the New York office of the Associated Press. He was in Washington at one time serving with the press bureaus of the Liberty Loan campaign organization.

Grove Makes Address.

Paul F. Grove, representative of the Home Life Insurance Co. of New York, is in Rochester, N. Y., where he was signally honored by being invited to address the Rochester Life Underwriters Association yesterday. Mr. Grove has been a successful producer for many years and spoke on the vital subject of "Self Management."

Mergenthaler Linotype.

At the annual stockholders' meeting of the Mergenthaler Linotype Co., held yesterday, the present board of directors was re-elected. At the organization meeting the same executive staff was continued in office.

Foreign Exchange.

By the Associated Press.

Commercial demand for sterling helped to lift most European currencies in yesterday's foreign exchange dealings.

The pound in New York gained ¾ of a cent at 5.00¼. French francs were up .00¼ of a cent at 3.39½ cents. Swiss francs, at 23.15 cents were .00⅛ of a cent higher and The Netherlands guilder added .02 of a cent at 55.45 cents. Canadian dollars likewise moved forward, gaining 1-32 of a cent at 100.10⅛ cents.

In London the dollar finished at 5.00⅛ to the pound, compared with the New York overnight rate of 4.99¾. It closed in Paris at the equivalent of 3.397 cents to the franc, against the New York overnight rate of 3.396 cents.

U. S. Treasury Receipts.

By the Associated Press.

The position of the Treasury November 16:

Receipts, $34,537,807.64; expenditures, $31,783,313.13; balance, $2,642,013,474.06; customs receipts for the month, $17,302,678.67.

Workers Deny C. I. O. Charges At Cumberland

Employes Willingly Joined Independent Union, NLRB Is Told.

By the Associated Press.

Cumberland, Md., Nov. 18.—Defense testimony today concluded the National Labor Relations Board hearing here on charges of unfair labor practices filed against the Taylor Tinplate Mill, subsidiary of Republic Steel Corporation.

The end came swiftly after counsel for the company and the board agreed upon a stipulation regarding defense witnesses after the defense had placed three on the stand who testified they wanted the Republic Iron, Steel and Tin Workers Union, Inc., an independent union, to represent them.

The stipulation, which was read into the record by Thomas F. Veach, company attorney, said the company would produce 285 witnesses who would testify they wanted the independent organization to represent them.

The three witnesses also testified in answer to questions by company counsel that they joined the independent group of their own volition and did not want the Amalgamated Association of Iron, Steel and Tin Workers, a C. I. O. affiliate that is plaintiff in the proceedings, to represent them.

Veach said the organization was not fostered by the company, a charge preferred by the C. I. O.

Congress Library Plasterers Quit

Union stone setters and plasterers at the Library of Congress Annex laid down their tools early yesterday as the result of a jurisdictional dispute. Both groups are affiliates of the American Federation of Labor.

The walkout, affecting about a score, is the result of the handling of plastic acoustics. The dispute arose over which trade should handle certain work, and whether the work came under the jurisdiction of the plasterers or the stone cutters. It in no way involved difficulty between contractors and their employes.

Historical Portraits Display Opens Nov. 27

An exhibition of historical portraits will be held at the Corcoran Art Gallery from November 27 to February 1, it was announced yesterday by the United States Constitution Sesquicentennial Commission and its portrait committee, of which Mrs. McCook Knox is chairman. Approximately 150 portraits, besides many miniatures of the deputies to the convention of 1787, and signers of the Declaration of Independence and the members of their immediate families will be exhibited.

Keystone Club Favors Underpass at Circle

The advisory committee of the Keystone Automobile Club yesterday voted unanimously to support plans for an underpass beneath Dupont Circle.

The board also modified its previous stand on proposals to prohibit parking within 45 feet of an intersection, agreeing to prohibition of parking "a reasonable distance from certain intersections where engineering studies reveal serious hazards."

Contract

By Mrs. Ely Culbertson

Time Is of the Essence.

When a player holds a winning tenace over an opponent's high card he should generally encourage his partner to lead the suit. Usually, it is good play in such a situation to allow partner's card to win the trick when possible. The exigencies of the play, however, may require a revision of this general rule, as today's hand illustrates.

East, dealer.

	♠ 9 8 ♡ A K Q 5 ◇ 10 4 3 2 ♣ K 9 3
♠ 6 5 2 ♡ J 7 4 3 2 ◇ K J 7 ♣ J 6	North West East South	♠ A 7 ♡ 10 6 ◇ 9 8 5 ♣ A Q 10 8 4 2
	♠ K Q J 10 4 3 ♡ 9 8 ◇ A Q 6 ♣ 7 5

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
1 ♣	1 ♠	Pass	1 N T
Pass	2 ♠	Pass	2 N T
Pass	3 ♠	Pass	Pass
Pass

West opened the Jack of clubs; dummy ducked, and East shortsightedly played the eight spot. West continued the suit and East won the second trick with the Queen. The defense was now hopeless.

East awoke to the fact that his partner could not possibly have strength in any suit but diamonds, since declarer's bidding had made it only too clear that the trump suit was solid. He shifted to the nine of diamonds, but it was too late. Declarer played low, and West won with the Jack of diamonds. West could not continue the suit, however, without losing his King, and South had ample time to knock out the Ace of trumps and discard the Queen of diamonds on one of dummy's high hearts.

East should have seen the necessity for diamond leads as soon as the dummy had been exposed. He should have overtaken his partner's Jack of clubs at the very first trick. On a diamond lead at this point South would duck, as before, and West would win with the Jack. Another club lead would permit East to win and return another diamond. Nothing would help declarer at this point, since the Ace of trumps was still at large. Even if South should go up with the Ace of diamonds and attempt to take immediate discards on the hearts, East would frustrate this play by ruffing with his low trump.

Official Notices

AMENDED NOTICE OF HEARING BY MINIMUM WAGE BOARD FOR DETAIL TRADE. The Minimum Wage Board of the District of Columbia, having, on November 3, 1937, approved, with unanimous recommendation of the employer, employe, and public members of the Retail Wage Conference for a minimum weekly wage of $17.00 for all experienced women in the Retail Trade, and having, on November 11, 1937, approved the additional recommendations of the conference as required by law, hereinafter gives notice as to the time, place and legal holidays, Section 12 of the Minimum Wage Law, that it will hold a public hearing at 10:00 A. M., on TUESDAY, DECEMBER 14, 1937, in the Board Room of the District Building, at which time all persons in favor of or opposed to such recommendations will be heard. (1) RATES FOR EXPERIENCED WORKERS. No person, firm association or corporation shall employ an experienced woman in the Retail Trade at less than $17.00 for each standard week of work. Retail Trade as used herein shall mean all selling of merchandise to the consumer and all servicing of such merchandise normally performed in connection with retail selling. (2) DEFINITION OF INEXPERIENCED WORKERS IN RETAIL ESTABLISHMENTS. A woman shall be considered experienced who has been employed in the Retail Trade for twelve months. (3) LEARNERS' RATES. The weekly wage for experienced workers provided that: Women learners, over 18 years, shall be paid a weekly wage of not less than $13.00 for the first six months of employment and $15.00 for the following six months of employment, and thereafter shall be considered experienced workers and shall be paid not less than $17.00. Any time worked by a learner shall be deemed a part of the learning period, whether such time is worked continuously, or in more than one employment for more than one employer. Not more than ten per cent (10%) of the total number of female workers employed by any mercantile establishment may be employed as learners, except that in establishments employing from 2 to 10 women, one learner may be permitted in each such establishment. (4) LEARNERS' CERTIFICATES. It shall be the duty of the employer to require for each learner a certificate of registration which must have been applied for in person by said learner from the Minimum Wage Board on or before the date her employment begins. All women employed in the mercantile industry at the time this order becomes effective shall be rated and paid in accordance with their period of employment, at rates not less than those specified for such period in Section 2. (5) STANDARD WORK WEEK. A standard work week is defined to be the regularly established number of hours worked in any one calendar week of from 40 to 48 hours, provided, however, that if any establishment during any season of the year shortens the standard work week below a total of 40 hours, it shall not reduce the weekly established minimum wage for full-time employes. (6) PART-TIME WORKERS. Any employe not listed as a regular full-time employe who works less than the regular standard work week of her establishment or less than 40 hours a week shall be considered a part-time worker and shall be paid at the rate of not less than 40 cents per hour. (7) REPORTING TIME. Any employe who is under general instructions to report for work, or any employe who is instructed by any employer to report on any particular day, shall be paid for at least four hours of work at the rate of pay provided for in the classification in which she is employed. MINIMUM WAGE BOARD, D. C.: MRS. WILLIAM RITTLE, Chairman; JOHN H. HANNA, ARTHUR L. SCHOENTHAL. Attest: OWEN GEACH, Executive Secretary.

Bob Burns Says—

No matter if you're a card player, a prize fighter or a business man, you'll find that experience is a great asset because it teaches you to anticipate the other fella's moves.

Uncle Slub had spent all his life in the country but when he went to New York, it didn't take him any time to catch on to their ways. The second day he was there, he went into a bar-room, ordered a drink and after he had had about four of 'em, he told the bartender he didn't have any money.

The bartender says "Well, why didn't you tell me that before you ordered them four drinks?" Uncle Slug says "Well, I told that to several bartenders yesterday and they wouldn't gimme the drinks and you fellas ain't gonna play that trick on me again!"

CCC Desertion In Shenandoah Park Is Studied

Army Investigator Sent to Report on Disciplinary Problems.

CCC officials announced yesterday an Army investigator had been sent to camps in the Shenandoah National Park region to report on the causes of the unusual number of desertions and discharges from the corps.

Since October 1, of about 1,000 new enrollees, 77 have fled or have been dismissed. Officials denied anything approximating "mutiny" could occur, since the only penalty for refusal to work is discharge.

To combat desertion Director Robert Fechner last July inaugurated "the buddy system" under which each newcomer is assigned to be special charge of a veteran in his first weeks of adjustment to camp life.

The greatest single mass defection, according to officials here, occurred at National Park Camp No. 12 near Luray on October 23, when 38 young men from Scranton, Pa., disappeared after expressing great discontent with their work. In the camp near Elkton, Va., a dozen men, all World War veterans were discharged after refusing to work on Armistice Day. At National Park Camp No. 10 seven men were discharged when they refused to part with an automobile they had purchased contrary to CCC regulations.

Population of U. S. Gains.

By the Associated Press.

The population of the United States on July 1 was 129,257,000, the Census Bureau estimated Wednesday. This was an increase of 828,000, or .6 of 1 per cent, over the 1936 estimate. The last actual census was taken in 1930, when the total was 122,775,046.
